It is interesting to note that a distinguished Englishman ranks among the mahatmas or demi-gods who used their influence for the lasting good of India. The name of Sir Thomas Munro is still ringed with the halo of divinity by the people of the Ceded Districts, whose Principal Collector he was during the stirring times of the East India Company. Stories are still told of Munro's justice and magnanimity and ballads sung in his honour. The incident that won for him a mahatma's niche in the people's imagination, writes "Walrus" in the "Madras Mail", is thus related in the annals of Bellary. Mantasala, a little village on the bank of the Tungabudra, which is famous as containing the tomb of the Madhva saint, Sri Raghavendraswamy, and attracts annually a large number of pilgrims from Bombay and the Nizam's Dominions and even from Mysore. The landed endowment connected with this tomb being threatened with resumption, Munro, it is said, came to make inquiries. "After removing his boots and taking off his hat he approached the grave. The Saint thereupon emerged from his tomb and met Munro. They conversed for some time regarding the resumption, but though the saint was visible to Munro, none of the others who were there could either see him or hear what he said. The discussion ended and Munro returned to his tents and quashed the proposal to resume the endowment. Being offered some consecrated rice, he accepted it and ordered it to be used for the preparation of his meals for that day." Munro is supposed to have contributed to his election to mahatmaship by possessing arms "so long that they reached to his knees" and in this respect resembling the divine heroes of the Indian epics.

Munro died of cholera while on tour in his beloved Ceded Districts. The story goes that shortly before his death he was riding through a pass in the ghauts and imagined that he saw a garland of flowers stretched across the valley. This optical delusion is believed by the natives to have been a presentiment.

At Pattikonda, Government constructed a tope and tank to his memory; and at Gooty is the Munro choultry, within which hangs an engraving of Shee's full length portrait, copies of which also adorn the cutcherries at Bellary and Cuddapah. Munro was known in the Ceded Districts under the appellation of the Father of the People; and in the village of Bellaguppa, Rayadrug taluk, Bellary district, the eldest sons of a shepherd's family were till recently named after him Munrolappa. Many local ballads were composed in his honour, some of which are still sung. Munro Bridge, Chetput, was named after Sir Thomas Munro, during whose Governorship it was built.

Sir Thomas Munro's house and a wall in the compound in Anantapur are preserved now by Government as ancient monuments.

Munro writes [to his mother 17th May 1795]:—"I remember I left Cassimcottah about eight years ago, on account of the danger of hill fevers, but a stronger reason was that I could not live without playing fives." He frequently used to say "I would rather live on half pay in a garrison that could boast of a fives court than vegetate on full batta, where there was none."

057 — 9th July 1827. — ARCHIBALD MACLEOD. — Captain ARCHIBALD MACLEOD of the 43rd M.N.I., who died of spasmodic cholera at Ramdospet near Ghooty, aged 34 years and 35 days.

Commandant of the late Honourable the Governor, Sir Thomas Munro's escort.

On August 4, 1828, Andrew Robertson, C. S., married Isabella Flora, daughter of late Alexander M'leod of Dalvey, county of Moray.

1058 — 16th Dec. 1838. — FRANCIS WILLIAM ROBERTSON. — FRANCIS WILLIAM ROBERTSON, Esq., 32 years, a member of the Civil Service and 15 years Principal Collector of Bellary, who died at Anundapoor, aged 59 years. His zeal in promoting the welfare of the district over which he presided was indefatigable and will be remembered so long as the numerous plantations which he planted and which had gained for him a well deserved fame continue to flourish.

His memory is still affectionately revered and the munificence and benevolence of "Rob." Sahib is still the favourite theme among the old members of a village community.

He joined service as writer in 1806.

VELLORE OLD CEMETERY NEAR COMMISSARY BAZAAR.

Munro in a letter to his sister dated 23rd January 1780 writes "I have almost as much attachment to Vellore as to Northside; for it is situated in a delightful valley, containing all the varieties of meadows, groves and rice fields. On every side you see romantic hills, some near, some distant, continually assuming new forms as you advance or retire. All around you is classic ground in the history of this country ; for almost every spot has been the residence of some powerful family now reduced to misery by frequent revolutions, or the scene of some important action in former wars. Not with more veneration should I visit the field of Marathon, or the Capitol of the ancient Romans, than I tread on this hallowed ground."

1079 1st May 1804. JAMES McROBERTS .. Sacred to the memory of Mr. JAMES McROBERTS, Assistant Surgeon, H.M. 33rd Regiment, who died May 1st, 1804, aged 27 years. He was deservedly esteemed by the Officers of the Corps and all who knew him.

1080 5th June 1805. JAMES BULL .. .. To the memory of Captain JAMES BULL of H.M.'s 34th Regiment of Foot who died on the 5th of June 1805, aged 21 years.

Son of Major Bull, and younger brother of Colonel Robert Alexander Bull, R.H.A., C.B. and K.H. This officer had exchanged from a Hussar Regiment into the 34th, and was shot in a duel near the Chitteri tank, Vellore, by Lieutenant Sandys, of the 34th. Bull, who was engaged to be married, had refused to join the mess and the Irish officers of the regiment had drawn lots as to which of them was to call him out. Sandys and Yeaman, his second, were tried for murder at Madras and acquitted, but subsequently cashiered by Court-martial for conspiracy against Captain Bull's life, together with a third brother officer, Lieutenant Johnson of the 34th. It is noteworthy that Bull was gazetted as having "resigned" on the 7th of June, tho' he died on the 5th of that month. The commission was given out of the Regiment, by purchase, to Lieutenant J. Young of the 8th Light Dragoons. Possibly the purchase-money was secured for the family of Captain Bull. The records of the Court-martial on this case are to be seen at Fort St. George, Madras. A detailed account of the duel will be found in Carey's "Good Old Days of John Company," 1906 edition, Vol. I, pages 477 to 479, and in the Memoirs of George Elers, Captain in the 12th Foot.

1081 10th July 1806. ST. JOHN FANCOURT. ST. JOHN FANCOURT, Lieutenant-Colonel of H.M.'s 34th Regiment, aged 37 years, Commandant of Vellore, who was killed while gallantly defending the Garrison in the mutiny of the sepoys on the 10th July 1806.

His widow escaped by hiding with her children in a fowlhouse. Her narrative was published in the "Plain Englishman," 1821, a popular work edited by Edward Hawke Locker (at the time a naval officer at Madras, afterwards Commissioner of Greenwich Hospital) and Charles Knight. It is quoted in MacFarlane's "Indian Empire." Mr. A. F. Cox, in the District Manual, follows the account given by Captain Blakiston in his "Military Adventures under Wellington," Vol. I, Chap. XVI, pp. 281-301. Wilson's "History of the Madras Army" reprints the evidence of officers taken at the time. Assistant Surgeons Dean and Jones were the heroes of the defence.

Cassivelaun Fancourt is possibly his son. He was father to Major Fancourt a popular M.P. (Elers' Memoirs).

1082 10th July 1806. CHARLES ARMSTRONG. CHARLES ARMSTRONG, a Major in the service of the Honorable East India Company 16th N.I. While journeying to Madras, in the immediate hope of returning to his native country, he was barbarously murdered near this place on the 10th July 1806. Possessing unbounded benevolence and every quality of the soldier, he was endeared to the army in which he served and had acquired numerous friends. The monument is humble, but the record is true.

According to the District Manual, page 84, "Major Armstrong was passing outside the Fort, in a palanquin, when he heard the sound of fire-arms. Alighting, he advanced to the crest of the glacis, and asked what the firing meant. The answer was a volley fired by some mutineers on the ramparts, which killed him on the spot." Armstrong was captain of the Cadet Company at Chingleput and received 2 pieces of plate valued at 200 Pags. each from the cadets under his command. (Asiatic Annual Register fo 1802, pages 41—2.)

This monument erected in 1863–64, previous to the second departure of the Regiment from India, marks the spot where they rest. The number of the privates killed should be 90; and 15 more subsequently died of their wounds. Colonel James McKerras, Captain David Willison, and Lieutenants Philip Winchip and George Jolly (all of the 23rd N.I.) and Capt. James Isaac Miller, Lieut. Thos. O'Reilly, Lieutenants Charles Kenworthy Smart, John Michael Tichborne (1st N.I.) were also killed by the mutineers but no monuments to their memory are discoverable. "One of the first objects that struck me on entering the Fort, was the body of Col. M'Kerras, who commanded one of the sepoy battalions, lying in the middle of the parade." Blakiston, page 295. The following account of the mutiny is given in L. J. Trotter's "History of India":—"In the early morning of the 10th July 1806, the two native regiments at Vellore (one of which had been largely recruited from the ranks of Tippoo's army) rose in sudden mutiny, attacked the European barracks, where some 370 men of the 69th Foot (the present 2nd battalion of the Welsh Regiment) were still sleeping, poured volley after volley into their helpless victims, and shot down thirteen officers coming out from their rooms. Happily for the survivors, help was soon to reach them in their desperate need from the garrison of Arcot, eight miles off. At the head of a squadron of his 19th Dragoons and a few galloper guns, Colonel Gillespie (afterwards Sir R. R. Gillespie and killed in 1814 before the hill-fort of Kalanga on the Nepalese frontier) rode at his best pace to the scene of massacre, blew open the gate of the fortress and with the help of those inside dealt heavy destruction on the mutineers, hundreds of whom were shot, sabred or taken prisoners. Of the 69th, however, ninety-five men and officers lay dead and ninety-one wounded. (For a short sketch of his career, see Asiatic Journal, August, 1816). Lord William Bentinck, Governor of Madras, was summarily ordered home without a hearing: but the real culprit was Sir John Craddock, the Commander-in-Chief, who had issued a set of orders regarding uniform, which the sepoys chose to regard as a wilful attempt to tamper with the creed and customs of their race. They were forbidden to wear ear-rings on parade and were ordered to shave their chins and exchange their turbans for a kind of shako. The spirit of distrust and disaffection engendered by these orders was carefully fomented by the Mohamedans in Vellore, where Tippoo's family were then living: and one of the results of the mutiny was the removal of the Mysore pensioners to Calcutta where they still reside." F. W. Blunt in the Monthly Review for September 1906, publishes a letter which was written from Madras in September 1806, by a lady whose husband occupied a high position and which narrates the causes that led to this mutiny and the circumstances of it.

1116	12th Nov. 1858.	HENRY DOUGLAS HART.	Captain HENRY DOUGLAS HART, 39th Regiment, Madras N.I., aged 35 years, who died at Vellore by the hand of a fanatic sepoy assassin on the 12th November 1858.

This officer was shot, while standing on the steps of the late General Ottley's bungalow, by a sepoy who stood on the ramparts of the Fort. The cause of the attack is not known. The sepoy is said to have stood on the ramparts, threatening the house referred to, the inmate of which, a lady, had gone to Captain Hart for help; he, returning with her to investigate, was shot on alighting from his carriage. A correspondent, who was living near Vellore at the time, gives the following account of the occurrence:—On the night in question the sepoy who was on guard at the Flag Staff bastion, in the Fort, fired off his musket. The Jail, in those days, was in the Fort near the Flag Staff. Old Sergeant Stafford, the Jailor, hearing the report, went out to enquire, and was shot dead. The sepoy then, by some means, foul or fair, managed to pass the sentries, and made for the officers' lines. Captain Hart happened to be the first officer driving to the scene of mischief, and was unexpectedly met by the sepoy near the Commissariat Office, and shot in his phaeton. A strong guard with other officers had by this time turned out, and the sepoy placed himself on the Mahomedan Saint's tomb situated on the south-east glacis of the Fort. Here he threatened either to "do" for the rest, or die, when asked to lay down his arms and surrender. The officer in charge seems to have known that the sepoy was able to defend himself with bayonet only, and so closed on the villain with drawn sword, disarmed and made him a prisoner. When his ammunition pouches were examined, it was found that there was enough ball ammunition to have done a deal more mischief, but not a single cap. He had dropped them out of the cap pouch, which he left open, while running about. He was handed over to, and tried and sentenced by the civil authorities, and was hanged on the plain between the Fort and the market. (Mr. LeFanu's note.)

CEMETERY WITHIN THE FORT, ARNEE.

The grave yard is a very interesting one and situated to the west of a long line of deserted bomb-proof barracks in the old and dismantled Fort of Arnee, 7 miles from *Kalambur station on the South Indian Railway. It is described in Warren's book "l'Inde Anglaise," and also in Hervey's "Ten years in India" Volume II, page 153, who says that a worse station could not have been chosen for locating European troops. Couchman says it felt like desecration to ride through Arnee Fort in a motor car.

The estate itself is not without interest. It has formed part of the arena of much of the fighting of the past, and has seen the rapid march of Clive from Arcot when he attacked and won the fort of Arni from Raja Sahib. Under the walls of that fort, too, Sir Eyre Cooto defeated Haider and his ally Lally, and later on the British army concentrated there for the campaign of 1790. The estate itself is a feudal grant of land, or jaghir, originally given for military service and acquired by one Vedajee Bhasker Punt, under a permanent Sunnad from the Rajah of Bijapore. Unfortunately the archives of the family have been destroyed and little, beyond tradition, is ever likely to be known about it. The hereditary right of the Arni Jaghirdars to succeed to the Jaghir is maintained to have been fully recognised and guaranteed by the stipulations of the Treaty of 1762. But since then, in 1825, two additional conditions have been imposed by Government, to wit, the regular payment of Khandam allowances to members of the family and the liability to resumption by Government on failure to carry out the conditions of the Sunnad.

1131	12th Aug. 1784.	JOHN MACALISTER ..	Sacred to the memory of JOHN MACALISTER, Esquire, Captain and Commander of the Fourth Regiment of Cavalry in the Honorable East India Company's Service. Obiit 12 Augusti die 1784, anno aetatis 38 et 10 menses. This is the oldest tomb in the district. In 1784 the Madras Government formed a regular establishment of cavalry by taking into its own service the four Regiments belonging to the Nawab which had been paid and mounted by the Company during the war. During the campaigns of 1781–2 the commandants of cavalry had been: 1st Regiment, Captain (afterwards Major-General) John Pater, Nawab's service; 2nd, Captain Edward Jourdan, Company's service; 3rd, Captain (afterwards Major-General) J. D. Stevenson (see No. 1261), Nawab's service; 4th, Captain John Macalister, Company's service. Colonel Cosby stood posted to the 1st Regiment and commanded the whole (see Nos. 815 and 1235).

1132 19th June 1789. THOMAS MUNRO .. A tribute of friendship to the memory of Lieut. THOMAS MUNRO, late of the 4th European Battalion, who died at Arnee on the—day of June 1789, aged 28 years.

It is singular that there should have been at one time two subalterns in the Madras Army, named Thomas Munro. The famous Sir Thomas Munro, born May 27th, 1761, was of the same age as the officer who lies here and was himself present at the battle of Arnee, June 2nd, 1782. He had landed at Madras, January 15th, 1780, after working his way out as an ordinary seaman on board the Walpole. Next year he commenced his military career under Coote. A memorandum of his services written by himself is among his papers and will be found in the appendix to Bradshaw's "Life of Munro." He was quartered successively at Madura, Tanjore, Fort St. George, Kasimkota near Vizagapatam and Vellore.

Thomas Munro Senior (Sir T. Munro) was cadet in 1778, Ensign 20th May 1779, Lieut. 11th February 1786. Thomas Munro Junior was cadet in 1779, Ensign 23 August, 1780 and Lieut. April 17, 1786.

1133 5th Sept. 1790. THEODORE IVEY TANNER. Here lies interred the body of T. I. TANNER, Esq., aged 42 years, who departed this life the 5th September 1790.

A civil servant, and at the time of his death Paymaster to the Army. He married Miss Frances Mary Dormond, June 27th, 1778, and was probably father of No. 2689. At Calcutta, on September 17, 1766 Captain Thos. Ivey married Elizabeth Porter, widow. Edward Tanner (Artillery), Lieutenant Fireworker 4th January 1768, commanding 1st Battalion Artillery, 1786, Lieut.-Col. April 17, 1786, died 1789.

John A Tanner (Artillery), Lieut. Fireworker 20th March 1781, Lieut. June 2, 1783, Captain March 18, 1791, Major April 4, 1804, Lieut.-Col. September 21, 1804, died July 3, 1807.

1134 16th Dec. 1790. THOS. BECKET .. (Mr. THOMAS BECKET, Assistant Surgeon, died at Arnee, 16 December 1790.)

1135 23rd Dec. 1798. HENRY ASTON. HERVEY This monument, sacred to the memory of Colonel HENRY HERVEY ASTON, is erected by the Officers of His Majesty's 12th Regiment of Foot, as a lasting testimony of the Honor and Respect in which they held his character when alive. He died in the command of the Regiment at Arnee, in the 37th year of his age.

Lamented shade! pupil of spotless truth,
First in the ranks of honor's ardent youth,
Thy generous soul, magnanimous in death,
Stamps on our hearts who caught thy latest breath
Our country's loss. But while we mourn the doom
That sinks untimely Aston to the tomb
The worth to which we consecrate this grave
Shall waft thy spirit to the good and brave.

Colonel Aston is said to have been a noted duellist, and an unerring shot. Mortally wounded in this, his last duel, he is said to have fired in the air, exclaiming " my last act shall not be one of revenge," and it is to this circumstance that the words " magnanimous in death " in the above inscription allude. A member of the family states that another Hervey Aston, brother of the above, distinguished himself as a duellist during the occupation of Paris (1815) when the French fire eaters were continually picking quarrels with the officers of the allied Armies. (Mr. LeFanu's note). The Asiatic Annual Register adds that the deceased was " a man well known in the first circles of fashion in England and the friend and companion of the Prince of Wales, to whom he had been recommended by the generosity of his heart, no less than by the elegance and urbanity of his manners." From the Memoirs of Captain George Elers of the 12th Foot, we learn that Major Allan, the Paymaster, was Aston's antagonist. " He never held up his head afterwards and died in less than three months of a raging fever." Major Picton, a brother of Sir Thomas Picton, the Waterloo hero, had " called out " Aston on the previous day. His pistol missed fire and the Colonel fired in the air. Both Majors were tried by Court-martial and admonished.

" The Duke talked to me a good deal in the evening about the Aston family : said he knew Hervey Aston very well in India, who was killed in a duel which made way for him to take the command in the campaigns. He believed indeed he was himself godfather to Aston now at Madrid and that he was called Arthur after him" (Keijher's Journal II, 381). Cf. Blakiston's 12 years' Military Adventure, I. 335 : " He had seen a good deal of the world before he came out to India, had been a great fox hunter, a patron of the fancy, and a leading member in the sporting circles." He had a most inveterate habit of quizzing which involved him in many personal encounters whereby he obtained the reputation of a professed duellist.

1136 July 1799. DONALD D. MACALLUM. A tribute to the memory of Lieutenant DONALD D. MACALLUM of His Majesty's Scotch Brigade, who died at Arnee, July 1799, aged 22 years.

The inscription is cut in mortar and is almost illegible. Cf. Asiatic Annual Register for July 1800—At Madras Lieut. Macbeth Scotch Brigade a brave diligent and skilful officer ; At Seringapatam Lieut. Cotes Scotch Brigade ; At Arnee, Lieut. Macallum of the same corps.

1137 15th Dec. 1799. JEROMANA SMAASEN. Here lieth the body of JEROMANA SMAASEN, the wife of John Smaasen, who departed this life in the 48th year of her age. An affectionate wife and tender mother who has left a family ever to regret the loss of her.

1138 5th Aug. 1800. THOMAS WOOD .. Sacred to the memory of Captain THOMAS WOOD, who departed this life at Arnee. August 5th A.D. 1800. A.E.S. 29.

He married at Arnee May 4, 1796 Mary Nixon born 15 Jan. 1780, 3rd daughter of Sir Eccles Nixon. He was younger brother of Sir Mark Wood. Bart, of Galton Park, Surray and Admiral Sir James Atholl Wood Kt. K. C. B. and Major-Genl. Sir George Wood K.C.B.

1143 29th Sept. 1790. ROBERT KELLY .. Sacred to the memory of Colonel ROBERT KELLY, who departed this life in the vicinity of Arnee, September 29th, A.D. 1790, aet. 52. This monument was erected by Lieut.-Col. Urban Vigors, as a mark of respect for a gallant soldier.

There is an Elegy of 16 lines ending

"Then deeds of old shall stimulate the brave
And Kelly shall be useful in the Grave"

P.W.

He was "in Chief Command of the Western Army" 4th Regiment European Infantry.

This is an imposing masonry column, about 65 feet high, situated in the old parade ground in the Fort. It is in good order and the inscription is quite clear. The ball on the top of the column fell off some years ago. Colonel Kelly was killed in a duel in a field near Arnee by Lt.-Col. Vigors. Tradition has it that, on Colonel Kelly's appointment to command, Colonel Vigors spoke of him as an "old woman" to his wife, who repeated the remark to Mrs. Kelly, who insisted upon Colonel Kelly obtaining "satisfaction," with the above result. The story has been so handed down, and in those days, it was nothing extraordinary that life should be lost for such a trifle. (Mr. LeFanu's note.)

Urquhart euphemistically says "He died most suddenly in camp at Arnee." His relict Miriam died at an advanced age at St. Thomas' Mount, May 28th, 1837, and her tomb was erected by her only surviving child Myra Taynton, widow of the late Lieutenant-Colonel John Taynton of the Madras Establishment. In Wilson's "History of the Madras Army" (ii. 199) Colonel Kelly is described as "an able and distinguished officer who had seen much service. When a captain he commanded the 9th battalion, which is still known by his name." In 1775, at Palamcottah, he tried his native commandant for mutiny and blew him from a gun. At the time of his death he was in command of the centre army of the force then being gathered to oppose Tippoo. The 21st battalion, which formed part of the centre army, was commanded by Captain (not then Colonel) Urban Vigors. This officer took a gallant part in the siege of Seringapatam and afterwards commanded the Hyderabad Subsidiary Force.

'In the meanwhile the Carnatic Army under the command of Colonel Maxwell—for Kelly died the day after he received the account of the attack on Colonel Floyd—entered the Baramahal on the 24th of October". Munro : Gleig Vol. I—page 102.

Urban Vigors died April 10th, 1815 in England aged 68 and has a monument in Marylebone.

Colonel Bartholomew Vigors (Ensign 15 September 1770 and Major 18th March 1794) was on leave to Europe from 16th December 1786—no time specified—on half pay. Cashiered ; struck off.

WANDIWASH.

Mr. LeFanu writes as follows "This Fort, immortalised by the unflinching valour of the illustrious, but neglected, Flint, contains the graves of many brave officers and men. The only tomb now traceable is a modest masonry construction, on the southern glacis of the Fort, east of the road leading to the gateway. Its tenant has not been identified. The nearest conjecture is that it shelters the remains of Major Brereton, mentioned below. There were, until some few years back, two small masonry tombs of European officers, lying close beside each other in a field, inside the Fort, to the right hand side after entering the gateway. They were, roughly speaking, about 80 yards north of the southern, and 50 yards west of the eastern rampart. Unfortunately, the site was ploughed over in recent years, a vandalism which did not occur in or after November 1887. Although diligent search was made in and near the spot indicated, no trace of these graves could be found, so well had the destroyer done his work. According to the veracious Orme, Lieutenants Minns and Latour were killed, in an unsuccessful attack on the Fort by the British, in 1759. On this occasion 70 rank and file also perished. Lieutenant Mainville and two Captains were killed in September 1759. The Fort was captured by the British in November 1759, and, on this occasion, Lieutenant Robert Campbell of the Artillery perished. Major Brereton fell in an unsuccessful attack made on the Fort, by the French, in January 1760. He was killed close to a retrenchment near a tank. On the same occasion three French Officers were killed. The Chevalier Poete, Knight of Malta, is specially mentioned as having fallen in January 1760."

Son of William Bushby, H.E.I.C.S. He joined the army as Cadet in 1820 and was made Ensign on February 13, 1821. Four of his brothers were civilians: Charles Maitland and Henry Turner, Madras; William John, Bombay; and George Alexander, Bengal, who died Resident of Hyderabad, December 30th, 1856.

1150 29th Mar. 1825. T. E. GIBBON .. THOMAS EDWARD GIBBON, aged 2 years and 5 months (son of Richard Gibbon, Esq., Surgeon).

Richard Gibbon died at Cheltenham, August 1835.

1151 19th Nov. 1823 and 9th Mar. 1828 MRS. WATERS .. A large octagonal mausoleum, with an iron door, contains two tombs. It is locally known as the Meeting of the Waters, and tradition has it that these are the graves of the first and second wives of Mr. Waters, Judge at Chittoor. The door being secured by three heavy locks, it is not possible to see if the graves bear inscriptions. Popular belief amongst the natives adds that much valuable jewellery was buried with these ladies, and that more than one attempt was made to rifle their tombs. The two coffins are said not to be lying on the ground, but to hang suspended by chains from the roof. Mr. George Jenkin Waters was Judge of Chittoor from 1823 to 1832 and was afterwards Third Judge of the Provincial Court. He may justly be called the Blue Beard of the Civil Service, for he had no less than six wives. The first died November 19th, 1823, name unknown; the second, Eliza, the daughter of W. Cooke, Collector of Chittoor, whom he married on January 7, 1825 died March 9th, 1828; the third, Maria Frances, the 3rd daughter of Conway Dobbs Barrister of Dublin, whom G. J. Waters married on 30th June 1831, died October 28th, 1831; the fourth, Harriet Eliza Cooke, only daughter of James Cooke, Assistant Surgeon, Madras Medical Establishment, he married at Rajahmundry on July 17th, 1833, died October 13th, 1833, at Masulipatam (See No. 1855); the fifth, Clara Robina Alves died March 30th, 1857; the sixth, a Miss Robson, he married at Brighton, December 6th, 1871. Mr. Waters, who must have been born about 1792, died February 12th, 1882 at Portishead. He was in the Civil Service from 1808 to 1847. In Cleocian Church, Somerset, the first "table" tomb near the gate bears the inscription (partly erased) to Clara Robina Alves, for 20 years the beloved wife of George J. Waters of the Madras Civil Service who died of rapid consumption on the 30th March 1857.

1154 3rd Sept. 1831. JAMES POLHILL CHAMBERS. JAMES POLHILL CHAMBERS of the Bombay Civil Service, aged 22 years, born March 31st 1809.

Assistant Collector of Ahmedabad.

1155 29th Nov. 1833. THOMAS GAHAGAN .. THOMAS GAHAGAN, aged 48 years.

Mr. Gahagan born 1785 entered the service in 1804, and was Second Judge of the Centre Provincial Court at the time of his death. His daughter Fanny married in 1833 G. A. Harris, C.S., son of Hon. M. T. Harris, C.S., and grandson of the first Lord Harris. Thomas and Frederick Gahagan, C.S. (No. 2228), were sons of Terence Gahagan (see Nos. 388 and 1061).

One Charles Gahagan, Captain Lieutenant of the H.C. Madras Foot Artillery died at Ellichpoor on 14th May 1817. (Asiatic Journal, November 1817.)

1156 11th July 1838. ARCHIBALD MACNAIR. Captain ARCHIBALD MACNAIR, late of the 15th Regiment, aged 33 years.

1157 17th Oct. 1843. JOHN STEDMAN COTTON S. M. Beneath this stone repose the mortal remains of JOHN STEDMAN COTTON, Esq., Captain in the VII Regiment, Madras Light Cavalry, who died at Chittore on the 17th October 1843, aged 31 years.

Son of Mr. John Cotton (1783—1860), long Collector of Tanjore. He was a celebrated sportsman and published in 1841 the well-known "Tale of a Tiger" illustrated by himself. He is also credited with designing the illustrations to F. W. N. Bayley's "New Tale of a Tub," but disclaimed them in a remarkable preface to his "Tale of a Tiger." "The first plate in Bayley's book with my name in the corner, I must disclaim in toto The others have a certain resemblance, but still the actual designs are no more mine than they are yours. I have no idea of being presented with a niche small or great in the temple of fame, and I could only compare the benevolent assistance of Messrs. Aubrey, Colnaghi, and Puckle to the vigorous but undesired aid I once received from two stalwart but breechless Arabs in ascending the mausoleum of old Cheops. Fiat justitia is my motto, and I only desire that every tub may stand on its own bottom. Arcot, June 7th 1841." The Tale of a Tiger was translated into French in 1852 by the abbé de Savigny. There is a fine monument by Weekes in Ranipet Church to Cotton's memory. It bears a portrait medallion of the deceased, whose mother was Sophia Charlotte Stedman, daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel John Gabriel Stedman, 1744—1797 (see No. 414). Mr. John Cotton's son, grandson, and great grandson all entered the Indian Civil Service; and his father Joseph Cotton (1745—1825) was a Director of the E.I.C. from 1795 to 1823 (see No. 1807).

Captain Steadman in his narrative of a 5 years Expedition against the revolted negroes of Samiam relates that on waking about 4 o'clock one morning in his hammock he was extremely alarmed at finding himself weltering in congealed blood and without feeling any pain whatever. "The mystery was", continues Captain Steadman, "that I had been bitten by the Vampyre or Spectre of Guiana which is also called the Flying Dog of New Spain and by the Spaniards, Penovolador. This is no other than a bat of monstrous size, that sucks the blood from men and cattle while they are fast asleep, even sometimes till they die; and as the manner in which they proceed is truly wonderful I shall endeavour to give a distinct account of it." Percy Anecdotes (T. Boys Ludgate Hill 1821. Anecdotes of Instinct, page 71).

Letters to the Government of Madras relative to the disturbances in Kanara in April 1837 by Francis Carnac Brown of Tellicherry (Smith Elder &co., 1838): "The conduct of the [young] officer, Lieut. Cotton of the Madras Cavalry, cannot be too generally known. He was a passenger on the Lamont in bad health, going from Bombay to Madras. No sooner did he hear that some

RANIPET CEMETERY.

Ranipet means Queen's town. It was built about 1771 by Sadatulla Khan in honour of the youthful widow of Desing, Rajah of Gingee, who committed suttee upon her husband's grave. A favourite Telugu ballad describes how Desing Rajah refused to pay tribute to the Nabob and girt with a magic sword sallied out to fight him near Gingee. He at first defeated the Mahomedan troops, but the powers of his weapon were only to last for a short time and when the Nabob resumed the contest, Desing, in spite of the utmost gallantry, was overcome and slain. Out of respect for his valour and his wife's devotion, the Nabob founded a new village opposite to Arcot and named it Ranipet. It was for many years a large Cavalry Cantonment.

1159 4th Nov. 1789. CHARLES INGLIS .. CHARLES INGLIS, one of the Attornies of the Honorable the Mayor's Court in Madras died at the Cavalry Cantonment near Arcot on the 4th of November 1789: "the same evening his remains were attended to the grave by all the officers of the cantonment, as the last friendly tribute due to a worthy man."

1160 10th Dec. 1791. JOHN GRANT .. Lieut. JOHN GRANT Adjutant of the 2nd Regiment Native Cavalry, aged 27 years died at Arcot in the prime of life after a short illness in the month of December 1791.

A quaintly carved slab with letters in relief which are quite legible. The older tombs all lie together on the ground in the far corner of the cemetery.

He joined the Cavalry as cadet in 1782 and was Lieut. on June 29, 1785. His executor was Lieut. Allen Grant (No. 265), his brother.

1161 30th Sept. 1793. THOMAS HUCKERBY. Here lieth the body of THOMAS HUCKERBY, Esq., late Surgeon to the 4th Regiment of His Majesty's Cavalry, who departed this life 30th September 1793, aged 23 years, esteemed and lamented by his brother officers.

He was Assistant Surgeon on 29th June 1791.

1162 30th Dec. 1796. WILLIAM AUGUSTUS YOUNGE. This monument is erected by the officers of the 4th Regiment Cavalry as a lasting tribute of the sense they entertained of the merits of their late excellent and beloved commandant, Lieut.-Colonel WILLIAM A. YOUNGE, who departed this life on 30th December 1796, anno aetatis 42.

He was Commander of Co.'s 4th Cavalry known as Younge's Regiment.

Lt.-Col. William Augustus Younge married Miss Mary Davidson on March 27, 1795. (She was baptized on January 6, 1776.)

He became Lieut. on April, 5, 1773 and was Lieut.-Col. on December 18, 1794.

SOUTH ARCOT DISTRICT

FORT ST. DAVID, CUDDALORE.

On a lonely part of the Coromandel Coast, a little north of the town of Cuddalore, and within a quarter of a mile of the sea, the passer-by will note a circle of low earthen mounds, with here and there a fragment of broken masonry crumbling half-hidden under the rank herbage of an Indian climate. Under these earthworks may be seen a succession of casemates and bomb-proof rooms, with small off-shoots probably intended for powder-chambers. This is all that remains of Fort St. David, a fortress which in 1746 was better fortified than any of its size in India and was for over five years (1746–1752) the seat of the Government of Madras, during such time as the French held Fort St. George, and after. Now it is but a vestige Keep and drawbridge have gone; goats graze over the grassy mounds, and a stilly quietness dwells over the neatly-kept. garden of the Police Officer's bungalow, the only building within the Fort limits.

Before the English obtained a foothold upon the Coromandel Coast, a rich Hindu merchant fixed upon this spot for the erection of his warehouses. He threw up earthworks and mounted some cannon thereon to protect himself from the marauding Mahrattas. Later on, at the end of the seventeenth century, English merchants asked the reigning Rajah for a domicile in Cuddalore, and were given the Fort which the original owner had vacated some years previously. For the sum demanded in return they were to receive the ruined warehouses and fortifications and as much land as could be covered by " random " cannon balls fired from the ramparts. The chief gunner, with his guns of longest range, was sent down from Fort St. George; the shots were marked down, and the boundary line drawn. The villages thus enclosed are to this day known as the " cannonball villages."

Owing to its proximity to the French territory, Fort St. David was particularly liable to attacks, and the garrison must have been kept in a state of tension during the middle of the eighteenth century when France and England were trying, with the assistance of the Native Chiefs, which could drive the other out of Hindustan. As giving a curious reminder of the customs of those times, an account of a skirmish records the fact that during the retirement several English Officers were taken prisoners owing to their lagging behind in their palanquins.

Rectangular in shape, with bastions at each of the corners, the Fort, though surrounded by a territory larger than that at Madras, was small and cramped as to its inside area. An attack was organised against it at Pondicherry in 1746, a force of 1,700 men, mostly Europeans, with six field pieces and as many mortars being told off for the expedition. The army arrived within sight of the Fort, the garrison of which consisted of two hundred Europeans and one hundred Topasses, and some skirmishing took place; but on the approach of the Nawab of Arcot with a large force the French retired precipitately back to their own boundary. The following year another attack was made. The English garrison marched out with three field pieces and a troop of horse, composed chiefly of Volunteers, to prevent the French from crossing the river Pennar. Cannonading ensued, and the French won their way across, but retired again hastily to Pondicherry on the appearance of an English squadron in the offing.

In April 1758, Lally, who had just arrived at Pondicherry, despatched a force of 1,000 Europeans and as many Sepoys under the command of Count D'Estaign, against Fort St. David, following himself later with more troops. At this time the Fort had by many additions and improvements become armed at all points; but the original defect of want of space still remained, the inside area being only 140 feet from West to East, and 390 feet from North to South. The four bastions at the angles each mounted twelve guns, and a faussebray with brick parapet went round the curtains as well as the bastions. The outworks consisted of a hornwork to the North, mounting thirty-four guns and two large ravelins, one to the East, the other on the West. There was a wet ditch with brick scarp and counterscarp; a broad covered-way excellently pallisaded, and the glacis itself was provided with well constructed mines. The rampart of the hornwork had unfortunately been made too narrow to allow of the free recoil of the guns. The garrison consisted of 619 Europeans, of whom 286 were effective, 83 pensioners, and 250 were seamen, the crews of two vessels which had been run ashore on the appearance of the French squadron. There were, in addition, 1,600 Sepoys.

The French quickly set to work to throw up batteries and dig trenches, and fighting went on continuously till, by 30th of May, the enemy had advanced their sap to within three hundred yards of the glacis. They had now four batteries, mounting twenty-one cannon and thirteen mortars, playing on the Fort, and such a heavy fire was kept up that the English sailors and even the Artillerymen at times were forced to quit their guns. At noon on 1st June the French squadron was perceived working towards the roads, and by evening the enemy had carried on their trenches to the foot of the glacis opposite to the salient angle of the north-east bastion, where they began to erect a battery. All the embrasures in the Fort which commanded this spot were ruined, and their guns either dismounted or withdrawn, so that, although the wet ditch would still remain to be crossed the enemy could soon make a lodgement in the covered way. Under these circumstances it was considered that a general assault could not be resisted, and that further fighting was useless. A flag of truce was despatched from the Fort, and after a short parley terms were made with Lally. At six o'clock in the evening a company of French Grenadiers was admitted into the Fort, and the garrison marched with drums and colors to the foot of the glacis, where they grounded their arms and surrendered as prisoners.

In compliance with instructions from France orders were immediately issued for all the fortifications to be razed to the ground; and how completely this work was carried out the present few vestiges of the Fort show. The town and Fort of Cuddalore were occupied for some time by the French; but, though they retired into Pondicherry territory later on, no attempt was ever made by the English to rebuild or re-occupy Fort St. David.

" Fort St. David is now no more: all that is to be seen of it are desolate ruins, dismantled walls and dilapidated battlements. The masonry of the works was blown up with gunpowder and the rubbish carried away in carts for the construction of roads in the new town or elsewhere. The brick work must have been very strong for the cement holds together with such firmness that the shock of the powder does not separate the bricks " (Hervey: Ten years in India, Volume II, P. 229, written in 1836). Cuddalore. " The Factory House is a chaste piece of architecture built by my relative Diamond Pitt when this was the chief station of the British on the Coromandel Coast. It has a noble portico and had a terrace roof that pleased monsieur Lally so much, that he carried it off to Pondicherry " (Lord Valentia, Feb. 3, 1804, who stayed in it with the Resident Mr. Kinchant). Cuddalore is also described in 1836 by Captain Hervey in his Ten years in India, Volume II, page 218. " The houses are in the old style reminding me of those in Cochin." In the new town are still to be seen the quarters and barracks of the Cadet Company, used partly as a post office and partly as Civil Treasury. There was a famous banyan tree 4 miles from Fort St. David which was described and which is mentioned by Pennant.

1194 25th April 1708. WILLIAM READ .. Here lyeth interr'd the body of WILLIAM READ, Sometime Ensign in the Right Hon'ble Compa's Garrison in Fort St. George. By his last will he bequeath'd to the Protestant Church in said Place what estate he dyed possessed of. In memory whereof the Church erected him this Monument. He dyed ye 25th April 1708.

This may be compared with an inscription from Vizagapatam. " Here lyeth the body of Jonathan Wilson, aged about 65 years, who dyed in the year 1706, and having left his estate to the poor belonging to the English Church in Fort St. George, hath this monument of his charity and their gratitude."

1195 25th April 1738 and 1st May 1749. THOMAS COOKE. GRACE CRADDOCK. Here lyeth ye body of Mr. THOMAS COOKE who departed this life the 25th day of April 1738, Aged 62 years. Also the Body of Mrs. GRACE CRADDOCK, His Daughter, who departed this life the 1st day of May 1749 in the 29th Year of her age.

This is evidently the Thomas Cooke, Cashkeeper at Fort St. George, who was placed under arrest in 1721 when defalcations were found by President Elwick on taking charge from Francis Hastings in October of that year. Thomas Cooke entered the Civil service in 1702, married Grace Bach (or Back) on Feb. 18, 1714 when 7th of Council and Land Customer.

Christopher Craddock, Jun. son of Capt. Christopher Craddock, was a Supercargo. He married on May 24, 1736, Grace, daughter of Thomas Cooke. Florentia Craddock, their daughter married Alexander Wynch on Dec. 30, 1754 (See No. 65).

1196 13th Sept. 1747. ROBERT MISENOR .. To the memory of ROBERT MISENOR, a Sea Commdr. in the service of the Hon'ble East India Company, who died at Fort St. David, September 13th 1747 in the 32nd Year of his age and Whose Remains are deposited here.

Misenor is a most appropriate name for a " country captain." His father John Misenor was in 1716 commander of the Princess Amelia. There is a still more characteristic notice of another ancient mariner recorded by Asiaticus, but the tombstone is no longer extant. " Captain Andrew Kerr, formerly of the country service but better known by the name of the old Commodore. He was born at Fort St. David about the year 1724, which place he first left in 1735 and went to England that year. He was a sensible old man of plain and blunt manners, strongly characteristic of his profession. In his will he directed his body to be interred in a particular spot of his garden, without ceremony or service. His coffin had lain for many years in his godown and was occasionally made use of as a liquor chest, or a receptacle for horsegram. He died at New Town, Cuddalore, in the month of March 1800, at the advanced age of 76 years." Kerr was Captain of the Princess Royal Indiaman, which in 1779 brought out to Madras Charles Darke, grandfather of Lady Peel. Darke's wife died at Trichinopoly, July 17th, 1797 (No. 2698).

1197 27th Aug. 1748. JOHN HALLYBURTON. Here Lies JOHN HALLYBURTON, An Honest Brave Man and A Sincere Lover of his Country, who was basely Murdered on the 27th day of August 1748, by a Mutinous Sepoy at the siege of Pondicherry where he served in quality of a Volunteer, Aged 31 years.

This is the famous siege commemorated in the " Plan de la Ville de Pondichéri, dedié à la memoire de Mr. Dupleix, chevalier de l'Ordre du Roy, Commandeur de l'Ordre Royal et Militaire de Saint Louis, qui la deffendit en 1748 contre l'Amiral Boscawen et l'obligea après 54 jours de tranchée ouverte de lever le siège, qu'il avoit mis devant cette ville avec 6000 soldats européens, 20000 soldats noirs et 15 à 20 vaisseaux de guerre. Il n'y avoit alors dans la Place qu'environ 1,200 soldats européens et 2,000 cipayes ou soldats noirs." The memoirs of Runga Pillay, Dupleix's Dewan, describe the siege in daily detail, and sum up its result in the remarkable words, " How can I picture the renown that the Governor has acquired; it is like the sun that shines everywhere." A French narrative of the events was published at Brussels in 1766, under the title " Relation du siège de Pondichéry."

He was mortally wounded by one of his own sepoys, whom he had reprimanded. Cf. John Hallyburton's Journal (in Orme's mss.) of the siege of Madras.

Hallyburton's will is to be found in the India Office and bears date August 4th, 1748: " I, John Hallyburton, late of Madras, but at this present of Fort St. David, being in Health of Body and Mind do in case of my death make this my last Will and Testament, hereby revoking all former Wills by me made. Imprimis I give and bequeath the sum of seventy pounds to my Moor servant Allie Rizzabeag and to my Christian servant Thomas Morse all my Linnen and wearing apparell of what kind soever. To Mr. Joseph Fowke, Capt. John Holland, Capt. Rodolphus de Gingins, Lieut. Joseph Dalton, Lieut. George Gardner, Mr. Andrew Munro and Mr. William Belsches each ten pounds sterling for mourning." A Mr. David Haliburton, C.S., gave valuable information about Clive and Indian affairs to Sir John Malcolm, when he was writing Clive's memoirs. It was at Belsches' house that the Rev. Francis Fordyce, Military Chaplain of Cuddalore, insulted Lieutenant Clive in Dalton's hearing, and was caned by Clive publicly in the street. Charles Floyer, Governor of Fort St. David, instituted an enquiry on March 3rd, 1749, which suspended Fordyce and recorded " lest the same (i.e., the assault) should be to Mr. Clive's prejudice, we think it not improper to assure you that he is generally esteemed a very quiet person and no ways guilty of disturbances." (Memoir of Capt. Dalton 1886, pp. 57—64). Browning has worked up this and another incident of Clive's factor-days into his poem " Clive " (Dramatic Idylls 1880, second series) where his hero is described as a " desk-drudge, slaving at St. David's."

1198	18th Oct. 1748	MARY FLOYER	..	Here lyeth the Body of Mrs. MARY FFLOYER, lately the Wife of the Hon'ble Charles Floyer, Esq., President and Governor of this Place. She departed this life in Childbed, on the 18th day of October 1748 Aged 29 years 4 months and 26 days.

On April 14th, 1747, Charles Floyer succeeded John Hinde as Governor of Fort St. David, which was the chief English settlement during the occupation of Madras by the French from October 1746 to August 1749 and continued to be the seat of Government till April 5th, 1752. Floyer and Hoet were dismissed the service for gambling, July 6th, 1750. The well-known incident in Clive's life when he refused to pay money lost at the card table to players, who were proved to have cheated, occurred at Fort St. David. Clive was Deputy Governor of Fort St. David for two months in 1756 and held that appointment at the time he fought the battle of Plassey. Mr. Alexander Wynch, who was acting for him, surrendered the Fort to the French on June 2nd, 1758, so that Clive was its last substantial Deputy Governor, the local officers after 1761 being styled chiefs of Cuddalore. In the annual list of covenanted civil servants sent to the Court of Directors in 1757 appears the name of Colonel Robert Clive as " Deputy Governor of Fort St. David, at present commander of the troops in Bengal."

Charles Floyer, Chief of Masulipatam married Mlle. Catherine Carvalho, July 27, 1761. Hamilton, Robert married Georgina Floyer at Cuddalore, June 23, 1792. John Fullagar married Rebecca Floyer, April 23, 1724. He died in 1727. She remarried Richard English, May 17, 1729.

1203 12th Nov. 1718 JAMES HUGONIN .. Here lyes the body of JAMES HUGONIN, who departed this life the 12th of November 1718, aged 62 years 10 months and 12 days. Oh! Mortal! endeavour to subject [thy] fleshly lusts and exchange worldly desires for those of eternity !

[Urquhart who places it at Thowanah Pettah of Pondicherry, gives the date as 1778.]

A Swiss and presumably the "old" Captain Hugonin who was confined in Fort St. David when Richard Raworth, the Deputy Governor, openly rebelled in 1713 against the authority of Governor Harrison. This singular insurrection proved to be a real crisis in the history of Cuddalore. Henry Devonport (who had married Jane Chardin, niece of the great traveller) was at once sent from Madras as Commissary to supersede Raworth, but "finding the whole garrison debauched from their duty, except old Captain Hugonin and some other officers which were confined beforehand" was forced to retire ignominiously. Raworth held out for two months longer with 130 men under arms, "of whom eighty Europeans, who seemed to be as stout men as any in the Company's service." Davenport meanwhile possessed himself of Condapah choultry and Horse-tail Point, two strategic points, and was reinforced from Madras by the President, Rev. Mr. Stevenson, Lieutenant Roach, Messrs. Theobalds, Bulkley, Maubert, Nanney, Langlier, Turner and Richardson. This extraordinary affair ended by Raworth's escaping to Pondicherry through the good offices of Governor Dulivier. He eventually reached France and died in Paris, just as the Directors of the Company were preparing to prosecute him in England. "Lieut. Hugonin the Swisse, who came over by the King William hath behaved himselfe very well: the few men that hee brought over with him remained under him in this Garrison." (Public Despatches to England, Vol. I, 19th October 1696.) He was later sent to Fort St. David. Lieut. James Hugonin first arrived in 1696 in charge of a few soldiers among whom probably was his younger brother, Sergeant Francis Hugonin. (Love II, 38.) In the consultations of May 12th, 1705, the name of Serjeant Hugonin occurs as having been promoted to be Ensign of a Company in Fort St. George, together with one Serjeant William Dixon, a Roman Catholic. Another Francis Hugonin was the gunner of Fort St. George, who fired a salute of nearly 1,000 guns at the proclamation of the Firman granted by Ferookseer, on the 24th July 1717, the day concluding with "tubs of punch and a bonfire at night and abundance of fireworks upon the island by the black merchants."

Among the names is that of Captain Chisholm. Draper's Regiment was originally the 64th Foot. The name is illegible. It may be de Leyrit or de Boistel (see No. 912). On the 3rd April 1782 Cuddalore surrendered under Captain Hughes to the combined Mysorean and French armies, M. Duchemin being in command of the Pondicherry detachment. It was besieged again by General Stuart and a sortie of the garrison took place on June 25th, 1783. Bernadotte, then a young French serjeant, was wounded and taken prisoner, together with the Chevalier de Damas, who led the attack and was inconsolable because he was unwounded. Colonel Wangenheim, commander of the Hanoverian troops in the English service, was struck by the young serjeant's appearance and treated him kindly until his recovery and release. Many years later when Napolean's army under Bernadotte entered Hanover, Wangenheim among others attended the victor's levée and was at once recognized by his old acquaintance. Wilks recounts the incident in his "Historical Sketches of the South of India," Volume II, pages 442-3. He entered the army as cadet in 1782 and probably had the story from Wangenheim himself.

Expose the vain of life,

Give death his eulogy, thy fear subdue,

A manly scorn of terrors from the tomb.

1237 12th May 1777. CATHERINE WOODHOUSE. Sacred to the memory of the best of wives and most amiable of women, CATHERINE, the beloved wife of HARCOURT WOODHOUSE, Esq., one of his Majesty's Justices of Peace and Deputy Lieutenant for the county of Hertford, Captain in the Hon'ble Company's Service and Commandant of the four independent companies of this garrison in 1775 and 76. Her form was elegant, her deportment noble. Possess'd of every virtue, every grace that could adorn her sex, she was religious without superstition, prudent without meanness, generous without prodigality, the sweet companion and the steady friend. She was—but no more! Gratitude from an affectionate husband requires thus much; love, friendship, and esteem inscribe the rest. She bore the inevitable stroke with her usual unshaken fortitude on the 12th of May 1777, about the 47th year of her age.

Alas! in this neglected spot is laid
A heart once pregnant with celestial fire,
Hands that the rod of empire might have sway'd
Or wak'd to extacy the living lyre.

The coat of arms bears the word "Agincourt" and the motto "Frappe Fort." Captain Philip Dormer Stanhope, in his "Genuine Memoirs of Asiaticus" writes thus in a letter dated Chillingbrum, September 1775: "From Pondicherry I proceeded to Cuddalore, a fort of considerable extent but in a most shattered condition, situate on the most beautiful spot in India, and distant about a mile from the ruins of Fort St. David's, which at the close of the last year was given up to the French, and the fortifications levelled with the ground. I was here most politely entertained by Captain Harcourt Woodhouse, formerly of the county of Hertfordshire, who having spent a considerable fortune in every species of fashionable dissipation, entered the service of the Company and though in his seventieth year, still retains a great share of that activity and vigour for which he was distinguished in his youthful days."

1238 7th Jan. 1779. MARIA CHASE .. Here lyeth the body of Mrs. MARIA CHASE, wife of Lieut. R. Chase, Town Major of Pondicherry, who departed this life 7th January 1779, aged 25 years. Richard Chase, son and grandson of R. Chase, went out to India in 1771 and was one of Hyder's prisoners (1780–4). He was Ensign 15th June 1771, Lieut. 24th January 1776, Captain 2nd November 1783, was in 1787 in the 7th Battalion. Invalided at his own request 16th July 1792. He died in 1834.

He was bitten when hunting with a cheetah and died of blood-poisoning. A most interesting memorial of Mr. Irvine and other old residents of the station is to be found in the archivial whist box presented to the Cuddalore Club by thirteen of its original members in 1865. It bears the inscription: "The Cuddalore Club instituted in the days of W. S. Whiteside (C.S.), H. E. Busteed (C.I.E.), P. L. Roberts (C.S.),G.D. Irvine (C.S.), T. H. B. Young, C. W. Reade (C. Back, "Accipe si vis. Accipiam tabulas; detur nobis locus, hora, sodales. Videamus uter plus scribere possit." Dr. Busteed, one of the donors and author of the well-known "Echoes from Old Calcutta," was for some time stationed at Cuddalore, and within the site of Fort St. David is a little monument erected by him, "in memoriam laborum, dolorum ac ludorum comitis fidelis Nettle eheu tenebrosa nocte anguis latentis victimae hoc monumentum erexit maerens H. E. B. Obiit 3 die Feb. 1862." All that is left of Fort St. David is the foundation with here and there lumps of the broken wall, and subterranean galleries now choked up, which visitors, reading the warning inscribed on the monument of the dog, are not likely to explore. G. Banbury's father was born in 1766.

Mr. S. G. Roberts writes.—"The inscription is inscribed in "similar manner and on a plate similar to the above, and is enclo- "sed in a border of flowers much resembling the first. It also "bears a helmet and shield, but these are surrounded by heraldic "flourishes, instead of being enclosed in a wreath. The helmet "is a knight's tilting helmet, visor down, represented, as the "helmet on the Pfeiffer tomb, fullface. It bears, as crest, a "heraldic rose, from the centre of which rises a funeral obelisk "adorned with a single chevron inverted. The obelisk and "chevron are reproduced on the shield, standing on a hill bet- "ween two conventional cypress trees. There are no indications "of the tinctures and metals employed in blazoning either of "the above shields or crests." The quotation from the Psalms "runs in English: "Mark the perfect man and behold the "upright; for the end of that man is peace."

No epitaph is quoted by Urquhart. Daniel Stevenson is described by Urquhart as "brother to Col. Stevenson of the Madras establish- ment and partner in the firm of Stevenson and Harrop of Tran- quebar." He married Metta Margaretha Sundt widow of Ketting, "Grenadier-Capitain in english service". A sister of hers married the brother of Blücher. Another sister married Colonel Mühldorff and died at Tranquebar, June 23rd, 1814. Michael Sundt, their father, was a Lieutenant in the Danish Company's service and died at Tranquebar, May 21st, 1785. Daniel Steven- son's brother was Major-General James Daniel Stevenson (d. February 21st, 1805 according to Dodwell and Mile's 'Alphabe- tical List of officers of the Madras Army'). He died at his house in Orchard St., Portman Square, in the parish of St. Marylebone and was buried within the consecrated ground surrounding the historic church of St. Marylebone on the 21st February 1805.

No stone, however, now remains to mark the hallowed spot, nor is there any tablet within the sacred edifice recalling the memory of the distinguished soldier. He married Elizabeth West, daughter of Captain James West, A.D.C. to General Draper, and Ann née de Morgan, the widow of Captain John Innes (see No. 264). E. W. Stevenson was the son of a younger brother, who married Rosalia Fischer née Tournac " vz. Edvard Stevenson, Merchant at Tranquebar and Rosalie de Tauranach, widow of Colonel J. J. Fischer." —See Marriage Register February 24, 1779, and Baptismal Register November 15th, 1779 (Rev. K. Heiberg). (No. 2440) E. W. Stephenson [sic] was in 1795 Commander of the ship Neptune. Charles Wetherell, C. S., married Frances Stevenson (died a R.C.) at Rajahmundry October 20th, 1797. Capt. E. P. Stevenson 25th Regiment, N.I. married Miss Sarah Stevenson on 6th May 1807.

1262 8th Oct. 1819. ALEXINA WRIGHT .. ALEXINA, daughter to Mr. ALEXANDER WRIGHT, born on the first of May 1816, died on the 8th October 1819. This monument is erected as a last tribute due to her by an affectionate father.

Mr. Alexander Wright's wife was named Martha. She died at Tranquebar on July 29, 1824, aged 44 years.

Mr. Wright's daughter Arabella married, February 7th, 1821, Mr. W. E. Peterson of Tranquebar.

1263 13th April 1835. JOHN MILWARD .. JOHN MILWARD, smelter in the service of the Iron and Steel Company, aged 45 years.

1264 15th June 1835. ROBERT WOOD .. ROBERT WOOD, plate roller in the service of the Iron and Steel Company, aged 47 years.

The inscriptions on the tombs of some of those who were servants of the Iron Company are on cast iron sheets—almost the only iron which remains to show the work of the Company. Its founder was Mr. Josiah Marshall Heath, who died January 28th, 1851. He had resigned the Civil Service in 1829 in order to devote his attention to the Company and was ruined by it. A full history of these unfortunate Porto Novo Iron Works may be read in Mr. Garstin's " District Manual " of South Arcot (see No. 2316). " The Indian Steel & Iron Company was started in 1833 with factories at Porto Novo (South Arcot), Beypore (from the terminus of the Madras Railway Company) in Malabar and at Palampetti in Salem."—(New Asiatic Review for September 1907, vol. I, No. 9 at page 439). Dickens was a personal friend of Heath.

PORTO NOVO ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH.

[" Facing the sea is a little hillock, where the moving sand covers with a thin curtain the sparse grass of former times. Some scanty trees lean mournfully round it, a forest of caitus hides two or three tottering walls surrounded by a few tombstone crosses; there is the church or rather the ruins of what was the church of Porto Novo. In the middle of these ruins two marble slabs in good preservation testify to the graves. The first is that of John Harrop who died 30th May 1776 and was buried near the High altar: in the other opposite the side altar to the right is buried Louisa Weston, died 10th November 1820 " (Father Prudent of Cuddalore 1896 in De Lausay. Histoire des missions de l'Inde 1898, P. XV.)].

1267 30th May 1776. JOHN HARROP .. Aqui jaz sepultado o corpo de JOAO HARROP menino de idade de hum anno e cinco mezes faleceo aos 30 de Mayo de 1776.

Menino means a child, as in " Las Meninas," the famous picture of the little maids of honour by Velasquez, in which the artist has introduced himself at the easel in the act of painting the portrait of King Philip IV. Harrop is a Danish name, and this little child was probably the son of a partner in the firm of Stevenson and Harrop of Tranquebar. A Mr. G. Harrop died at Tranquebar, September 1799, while Chief of Porto Novo.

1268 10th Nov. 1820. LOUISA WESTON .. LOUISA WESTON, the daughter of W. W. WESTON, Esq., aged 7 months and 10 days.

Her father William Willis Weston, Port officer and merchant, lies buried at Cuddalore, July 19th, 1828, aged 47. He was merchant in 1817.

1269 2nd June 1703. MARIA WESTRENEN .. Hier leyt begraven Juffr. MARIA DE VISSER, huysvrouw van GERRIT WESTRENEN boeckhouder in dienst der E. Compe overleden den 2en Juny anno 1703 oud 21 iaren 11 maanden en 7 dagen.

Conimere or Kunyimodu lies 13 miles north of Pondicherry. The English settlement there is better known than the Dutch. An English factory was established in 1682 in consequence of a preliminary failure at Cuddalore. John Wilcox, the first Chief, with Richard Milton, accomptant and Ralph Ord, warehousekeeper, set out on October 25th, 1682, and on November 9th, received a cowle from the Havildar of Tindivanam. In 1688 John Nicks was appointed to be Chief and Conimere is best known to fame through his wife's private trading during his Chiefship. Three years later the Court "do hereby expel from our service that expensive and unjust person Mr. Nicks and all those that assisted him in that wicked sortment." In 1692 Mr. Dolben, the Judge Advocate, issued a warrant to arrest Mrs. Nicks "being a woman notoriously known to be a separate merchant from her husband"; and a guard of musketeers was put over her house at Madras. She paid what was demanded and, after a short visit to England, returned to Fort St. George, where she died in 1709, and her husband in 1711.

POTTANUR.

"The District Manual" describes the site as being on the high road 4 miles west of Pondicherry and close to the French Frontier.

1270 11th Oct. 1778. AUGUSTUS DE MORGAN. Sacred to the memory of Captain AUGUSTUS DE MORGAN, who was killed in the execution of his duty October 11th, 1778 in the sap battery before Pondicherry, aged 39 years, greatly beloved and sincerely lamented by all who knew him. A loss to the service, friendship and society. This monument is erected by his nephews GEORGE AND JAMES INNES as a testimony of their regard.

[From a monument erected to his memory on the plain south of Pondicherry.]

The deceased and two brother officers were blown up in a battery, which they had vainly reported to be unsafe. De Morgan's head is said to have been completely severed from his body by the explosion. He was an artillery officer and the only surviving son of John De Morgan (No. 1537), one of whose daughters married an Innes (see No. 264). Augustus De Morgan married Christina, daughter of the Rev. G. H. Conrad Hüttemann, a Tranquebar Missionary (1728–1781) and Kiernander's assistant at Cuddalore, where he died the year before the town fell into the hands of the French. Mrs. DeMorgan died at Ganjam in 1774 (No. 1627). They had three sons. The eldest, George Augustus, born at Vellore 1771, entered the Madras Cavalry and was killed in an action against Tippoo's troops at Amboor in 1792. Edward died an infant. The second son John, born December 21st, 1792, was married when a Lieutenant in the Madras army to Miss Elizabeth Dodson daughter of John Dodson and granddaughter of John Dodson F.R.S. "at Colombo by the Rev. Mr. Ph. Rosenhagen in presence of John Briggs and Honor Briggs, 4th August 1798." From this union sprang the great mathematician. "At Madura 27th June 1806, the Lady of Captain John DeMorgan of a son." This child was the fifth of a family of seven. His two elder brothers, John Augustus and James Turing DeMorgan, were lost off the Cape in June 1804 in the wreck of the Prince of Wales Indiaman. The mathematician lived till 1871. By his wife Sophia Elizabeth, daughter of William Frend, architect, he had seven children, of whom one son and one daughter survive (see Nos. 339, 1204 and 2781).

Honor Dodson married at Madras January 18th, 1798, Surgeon John Briggs, Esq. and Sophia Dodson married at Madras August 31st, 1803 Josiah Coghill Cramer R. N. Commander of H. M. sloop Rattlesnake. At Madras in April 1805 Lieut J. L. Watson of the 80th Regiment married Miss Anna Maria Dodson, daughter of James Dodson, Esq., of the Longroom, Customs House.

"Send out as writers this season: John Nodes, Francis Jourdan, Josiah Hayward, Samuel Peake, Augustus de Morgan and Peter Perring: and Cadets for Madras William Thomson and John Agey" Dodwell's Calendar of Madras Despatches, 1754—65, page 183 (November 1st, 1758, Despatch from Company to George Pigot).

1271 14th Oct. 1778 WILLIAM STEVENS .. Sacred to the memory of WILLIAM STEVENS, Esq., Major in the East India Company's service and Chief Engineer at the siege of Pondicherry, who was unfortunately killed by a cannon ball. He was a gallant soldier and an honest man, justly esteemed while living, sincerely regretted now dead. This monument was erected by Major General Sir Hector Munro, K.B., as a token of his regard and esteem.

Major Stevens was wounded in the advanced batteries of the south-west attack and died the same evening. General Munro, the hero of buxar, had laid siege to Pondicherry on the 8th August 1778, with an army of 10,500 men, of whom 1,500 were Europeans. On the 10th of the same month Admiral Edward Vernon with four ships fought an indecisive battle in the roads with five French ships under M. Tronjoly, who some days later sailed away and left the town to its fate. After a gallant defence M. de Bellecombe, the Governor, surrendered the town on the 18th of October. Article 1 of the capitulation runs: "La belle défense faite par le Maj. Gen. de Bellecombe et sa garnison exige avec raison toutes les marques d'honneur. C'est pourquoi il est permis à la garnison de sortir avec les honneurs de la guerre. Arrivée sur le glacis, elle mettra ses armes en faisceaux par commandement de ses propres officiers et les y laissera avec les tambours, canons et mortiers. Il est permis à tous les officiers en géneral de garder leurs armes, et sur la requisition particulière du General de Bellecombe, le régiment de Pondichéry gardera ses drapeaux." Among those who took part in the defence was the Breton sailor of fortune Madec, whose life and adventures are narrated in M. Emile Barbé's book "le Nabab Réné Madec." The muster roll contains an even more interesting name, "Barras, chasseur au régiment de Pondichéry." Chasseurs ranked below sub-lieutenants and were of the grade of elèves-officiers. Barras was born June 30th, 1755, and entered the Languedoc Regiment at the age of 16. He then received a commission in the Regiment de Pondichery, and asked to be sent out to his kinsman M. de Chabrillane, Governor of the Isle de France. On his way he stopped at the Cape of Good Hope where he met Captain Cook, "who welcomed me in kindly fashion and I came very near accompanying him to austral lands." At Port St. Louis he learnt that the English were making great designs on French India and obtained permission to join his regiment at Pondicherry. On the fall of the town he became a prisoner on parole in Madras and Poonamallee, which he spells Pont Damalé. Barras' subsequent rise to prominence during the French Revolution is well known. La loi du 3 Ventôse l'an III destined him to return to India with two other commissaires, Le Tourneur (de la Manche) and Armand (de la Meuse): but the party never started. On 23 Thermidor l'an II, Barras had been named Commandant General of the armies of Paris.

Stevens was an intimate friend of Swartz. "General Munro who knew that Major Stevens and I lived together as brethren condoled with me in the kindest manner saying "You will not get another Stevens again, however I request you will consider me as your friend". Swartz wrote a letter to Chambers from Stevens's quarters at Trichy 25th June 1778.

In Hickey's Gazette (1780 April 29th to May 6th No. XV) are congratulatory stanzas on the fall of Pondicherry. The last verse is:

"Stevens thy worth thy Skill shall show
Recorded by Truths [sic] sacred hand
For ages yet to come."

Note.—Our Chief Engineer who was unfortunately killed by a cannon ball in the afternoon of 14th October at the very time the Frenchmen were meditating to surrender.

Francis Jourdan was his Executor (Love, Vol. III, p. 152). He himself died Nov. 14, 1784.

Waugh, was composed of one brigade 6-pr. guns from Bellary, 300 rank and file and headquarters H.M. 55th Regt., N.I., 31st Regt., L.I., rifle Company of 24th Regt., N.I., and 200 Sappers and Miners. It marched on the 1st April from Hosakota to Sanivarsante. On passing the Coorg boundary at the river Hemavati, the enemy's advanced posts had retreated and no molestation was offered until the force reached Kodlipet, where an armed body of 200 men occupied an entrenched high ground, but on their flanks being turned they speedily fell back, and the advanced guard of the English encountered only one more slight opposition at Mudravalli, which was as speedily overcome. A far different resistance the troops met on the following day, when they were to join the Eastern column at Haringi. They had scarcely proceeded a few hundred yards beyond their encamping ground, when they found the road blockaded with felled trees, which rendered their progress exceedingly difficult and slow. As the column approached a village in a wood near the base of the pass in which the enemy's principal position was situated, a feeble fire was opened, which was readily silenced. But the stockade, known as the Buck Stockade, was exceedingly strong; outside, protected by thick bamboos and trees and surrounded with a deep ditch, and inside, built of mud walls faced with stones and pierced with innumerable loop holes which commanded the approaches in every direction. The intrepid Coorgs who held it were commanded by Madanta Appachu (the late Head Sheristadar who died in 1876), a fine old Coorg, of tall stature and martial bearing, who ever since the British accession, was a most loyal and devoted servant of Government. Determined to carry it by assault as the stockade barred their advance, the troops under Major Bird of the 31st Light Infantry as field officer of the day attempted every means of attack for four hours and a half, during which they were exposed to a most severe and raking fire; but in vain. A misdirected flank movement of H.M. 55th Regt. under Colonel Mill proved equally unsuccessful. Colonel Mill (See No. 418) was shot dead on the spot, likewise Ensigns Robertson of the 9th N.I. and Babington of the 31st N.I. In this most unfortunate affair about 48 were killed, including the 3 officers, and 118 wounded."

1310 — 7th Mar. 1836. — MARGARET SIMSON MACQUARIE.

MARGARET SIMSON, wife of HECTOR MACQUARIE, Esq., His Majesty's 55th Regiment, aged 23 years and 3 months. Deeply and sincerely lamented by her disconsolate husband and a numerous and kind circle of friends. She was a dutiful and affectionate daughter, a faithful, loving and sincerely affectionate wife, a true and sincere friend and had it pleased the Almighty to have spared the mother and babe, would have proved herself an indulgent and fond parent. The trifling tribute to her inestimable worth is erected by her bereaved husband.

1311	9th Oct. 1839.	WILLIAM GEORGE TREDENNICK LEWIS.	Captain W. G. T. LEWIS, 46th Regt., N.I., and Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General at Bellary, who died of cholera at Kodanoor with the field force under Major-General Wilson, C. B., leaving a deeply afflicted but resigned widow to mourn his loss. This tablet is erected as a mark of respect by his brother Staff Officers in the Ceded Districts. He joined the army as Cadet in 1819, was Lieut. Sep. 4, 1823 and Capt. July 13, 1835. Brigadier John Bell, Commanding Bellary, and Assistant Surgeon Robert Martin Davis died at the same camp, but have no monuments to their memory.
1312	14th Sept. 1844.	JAMES CONSIDINE ..	Lieut. JAMES CONSIDINE, only son of Major-General Considine, K. H., aged 24 years.
1313	18th Mar. 1846.	JAMES MORRIS ..	JAMES MORRIS, Esq., cotton planter of Natchez, Adam's county, Mississippi, U.S.A. The condition of cotton was so serious in 1838 that, in order to improve the quality of the crop, twelve experienced planters from the Southern States of America were located in the Western Presidency and supplied with seeds and agricultural improvements. Morris was probably one of these. The experiment did not prove successful.
1314	16th Feb. 1852.	DANIEL ALEXANDER FENNING.	Lieut.-Colonel DANIEL ALEXANDER FENNING, 1st Regt., L.C., aged 59 years. This tomb is erected by the Officers of the 1st, 3rd and 5th Regts., L.C., which corps he severally commanded, as a token of their respect.
1315	4th July 1856.	RALPH HORSLEY ..	RALPH HORSLEY, Esq., of the Madras Civil Service. Born at Courtallum on the 4th July 1831. Murdered at Bellary, where he was Acting Head Assistant Collector. He was the twin son of John Horsley, M.C.S., 1817–51. The murder took place in the whist room of the present Bellary Club, then a private house, into which the deceased and his younger brother, W. D. Horsley, a student at college, had recently moved. The situation was lonely, the house standing by itself and being commanded on three sides by hills. On the night of the July 4th, at about half past twelve, Mr. Ralph Horsley was heard to call to his servants sleeping in the verandah, and was found a few minutes later lying dead in his writing room, which opened out of the bed room. An office box was then missing from its usual place under the cot, and was subsequently discovered broken open on the rocks some 300 yards away, the only object stolen being the silver handle of a seal. On an examination of the deceased's body, it was seen that the wound, a stab in the back, must have been sufficient to cause instantaneous death. No trace of the murderers was discoverable. The peons and servants had apparently heard nothing to attract their attention, although four of them were sleeping in the front verandah of the house. An inquest was held and an exhaustive enquiry instituted by Mr. C. R. Pelly, the Collector, but the crime long remained a mystery. It seemed probable that robbery and not murder was the motive of the intruders, and that Mr. Horsley was stabbed while endeavouring to prevent the theft of his month's pay. Several persons were arrested at the time on suspicion, but were subsequently discharged. At last in 1864 a man, about to be hanged at Delhi for another crime, made a full confession of Horsley's murder, giving such details and so correct a description of the treasury then in the Fort and of Horsley's house that the Collector and Horsley's brother William had no doubt that his statement was true and had cleared up the whole secret. The man was a Khaikare named Hunoora and his brother Hunmunta was the robber whom Horsley secured. The intruders were 3 in all. Hunoora confessed; when and where is not stated. See Adam's "The Indian Criminal" (London, J. Milne '09).

		TOMB AT THE EAST FORT GATE, BELLARY.
1319	1769	TOMB OF A FRENCH ENGINEER.	Under the wall at the East Fort Gate stands a tomb, said to cover the remains of a French Engineer. The tradition is that when Hyder Ali took possession of Bellary from its Poligar in 1769, he employed the services of this man to build the upper and lower Fort, but at the completion of the work hanged him near the Fort Gate, because it was discovered that the opposite rock was the higher and commanded the Fort. A few years ago, when a new road leading to the gate was under construction, the Mahomedans of Bellary made a successful appeal for the preservation of this grave, saying that it contained the remains of a saint of their own faith. The tomb is certainly built in Mussalman fashion, and some doubt is thrown on the legend of the French Engineer's fate by the fact that a similar story is told of other fortresses built by Hyder or his son. For instance, the tale connected with the fort at Hosur in Salem district may be cited. It runs as follows: Captain Hamilton (or according to others Stevenson), a British officer, then in captivity, is said to have been employed by Tippu Sultan to construct the fortifications, with the assistance of a midshipman, also a captive. Unfortunately, the position chosen happened to be overlooked by a neighbouring hill, and Tippu on learning of this mistake, at once issued orders for the execution of the two prisoners. The Englishmen had, however, during their stay at Hosur, been on very friendly terms with the inhabitants of the place; and so great was the sympathy evinced for them that no one could be found willing to put them to death, or even to lend a weapon for the purpose. After much difficulty, the only implement that could be procured was a small shoemaker's knife, and with this instrument the prisoners were beheaded, Hamilton, stipulating that the younger man should die first. Tradition adds that, at the time of execution, a native maistry, who had long worked under Hamilton, begged him to leave him some memento. Hamilton had nothing to give the man but an old pair of compasses. Some thirty years ago an English officer, while visiting Hosur, was struck by observing a native carpenter at work with a pair of compasses (an unusual circumstance) and asked him where he had obtained them. The workman answered that the compasses were an heirloom in his family, and had been given to one of his ancestors by some European Officer, pointing in proof of his assertion to the letters J.H. scratched on one side. The story goes on to say that in a field named by this workman, two skeletons were found, which bore marks of decapitation. It is a historical fact, as narrated in Thornton's "History of India," Volume II, pages 439, 440, that Hamilton and two other prisoners were massacred at Hosur on the approach of Lord Cornwallis' army in 1791. A thrilling tale on this subject under the title of "a Pair of Compasses" appeared from the pen of Mr. D. S. White in the "Madras Athenaeum" about the year 1875. It may be of interest to add that the bridge in Madras known as Barber's bridge was originally named Hamilton's bridge from the Engineer who built it. The natives called it Ambuton's bridge, and, in course of time, the name being supposed to be synonymous with "Ambattan," the Tamil word for a barber, the title was transferred into the present one of Barber's bridge.

"The sliding rock" near the steps leading up to Hyder's fort on the Bellary Rock, is one of the chief attractions of the place. It is a channel cut into the solid granite by rain water, rubbed smooth and polished fine by generations of Bellary children sliding down it in immense delight, and paying dearly for the pleasure at the hands of those who had the mending of their clothes! But of late "oldsters" as well as youngsters have fallen victims to the fascination of gliding down this rocky chute. Every evening crowds of Indian men and women may be seen indulging in this pastime till the rocky surroundings ring with their mirth. Some of these people, not content with a few hours of the sport, encamp in the adjacent empty godown, that was once the residence of General Munro and spend a whole day in sliding.

HOSPET.

1320 1854 WILLIAM CLAVERING. WILLIAM CLAVERING, aged 22 years.

The circumstances of his death are as follows: He landed from England in May 1853, and, in the latter part of 1854, was engaged in laying the Telegraph line from Bellary to Secunderabad. When on the point of joining the working party, which was spanning the Tungabhadra River some few miles above Hampasaugar, he was attacked by cholera and died in the Hospet travellers' bungalow. He was a man of good birth, and closely connected with the family of Claverings in Durham, and had he lived a few months longer, would, it is said, have succeeded to a Baronetcy. A short time after his death, a Government enquiry was instituted and a report sent in by Mr. Brunton, at that time Superintendent of Telegraphs. Mr. Jones was present at the time of the death; and Mr. C. Dawson, lately store-keeper at Kurnool, was also a member of the working party. An old man of the Korava caste, who dug the grave, was alive at Hospet in 1894. According to him, four Europeans, who were staying at Hospet, went to Huligi (in the Nizam's dominions) to see the shrine of the deity. While there, one of the party was attacked by cholera, and returned to Hospet very ill. He died at one o'clock in the travellers' bungalow and was buried in his hat and clothes under a banyan tree. Local rumour has it that he tried to prevent the hook-swinging festival at Huligi, and was visited by the wrath of the goddess in consequence. In 1893 a slab was placed over the spot indicated by the grave digger, in an open piece of ground some 40 yards to the south of the travellers' bungalow, beneath two banyan trees.

MANGALORE CEMETERY.

1324 3rd Nov. 1799. J. R. STUART .. (At Mangalore Lieut. J. R. STUART, Adjutant and Gunner to the 3rd Regiment Native Infantry.)

1325 29th Nov. 1800. JOHN CARNAC .. In memory of Brigadier General JOHN CARNAC, formerly Commander in Chief of the Forces in Bengal and afterwards second in Council at this Presidency. He distinguished himself by the important victory gained over the Shahzaddah in the year 1761, and in both stations his zeal for the public service, integrity and distinterested conduct were equally conspicuous. He died at Mangalore the 29th November 1800, aged 84 years.

His father was probably Captain Carnac or Carnac, a Huguenot refugee, who died in Dublin in 1756, aged 91. He had a brother Scipio (untraced) and by a first marriage in India with Elizabeth Wooleston a spinster (m. Nov. 7, 1765, d. 1767) had an only son "Master Bobby" who died in 1769 in London of a dose of physic given to him by Sutton, the inoculator. On April 6, 1763, Peter Amyatt Esq. "of Council" married another Miss Wooleston Maria. She remarried another Amyatt. As John Carnac was born seemingly in 1716, he can hardly have been a son of the Peter Carnac, who in 1716 married at St. Antholins Adriana Lelaute and was perhaps identical with the Peter Carnat (sic) from Meyrnis, naturalized in 1698. John Carnac commenced his military service in the 39th Foot (Primus in Indis) and being in India when that regiment was ordered home in 1758, was admitted into the Company's service with the rank of Captain. "The officers who remained in India after the departure of Adlercron's Regt. to England were Captain John Carnac, Ensigns Joseph Adnott and Martin York (1758). All those officers joined the Bengal army with a step in rank" (Orme). Carnac was early known as the friend and associate of the Gallant Lord Clive. It is asserted by some that John Carnac "had been Clive's Second-in-Command at Plassey." Most emphatically Carnac had not been anything of the kind. At that time he was a very junior Lieutenant in H.M.'s 39th Foot, and on the day Plassey was fought, John Carnac was in the Carnatic, with a field force under the Command of Major Forde. Clive's Second-in-Command at Plassey was Major James Kilpatrick. The three Companies of the 39th present at Plassey were under the Command of Captains Archibald Grant, Eyre Coote (afterwards Commander-in-Chief in India) and Nicholas Weller. In 1760, when a Major, John Carnac succeeded Colonel John Caillaud in command of the army at Patna and on January 15th, 1761, won an important victory near Behar over the imperial troops of Delhi and a French contingent under M. Law, who, with fifteen officers and fifty of his men, was taken prisoner. The courtesy with which the captives were treated appears to have greatly impressed the natives, who had at that time but little acquaintance with European usages in war. The author of the Seir Mutakharin remarks upon this incident: "Nothing can be more modest or becoming than the behaviour of these strangers whether in the heat of battle or in the pride of success." Carnac was appointed a Brigadier-General in May 1764. The following year he drove the Mahrattas across the Jumna. His name with Clive's is signed to the Allahabad treaty of August 16th, 1765. Returning to England in 1767 he was elected M.P. for Leominster. Four years later he was again in India and rendered effective aid to Lord Clive in quelling a mutiny of the English officers in Bengal. In 1776 he was appointed Second Member of Council at Bombay and successor to the chair. While still filling that office in 1778, he was named one of the civil committee with the army who early in the following year executed the unfortunate convention of Wargaum. For his participation in this affair he was dismissed the service, but remained in India till his death.

The officer who "conducted the opperations against Sindhia which resulted in the capture of Gwalior in 1780" is not Carnac as stated by some. The officer who conducted the operations against Sindhia (though not those resulting in the capture of Gwalior, which were carried out entirely by Major Popham), was Colonel Jacob Carnac, who succeeded Popham at the end of 1780, and had the credit of the signal defeat inflicted on Sindhia on the 24th March, 1781. Carnac (of whom there is a reminiscence in Carnac Street) was a real soldier.

When in Parliament, Carnac had married Miss Eliza Rivett, a celebrated court beauty and the daughter of Mr. Thomas Rivett, M.P. for Derby. Her portrait was painted by Reynolds and now hangs in the Wallace Collection. It is esteemed one of the finest of his works and an excellent engraving of it appears in the second volume of Mr. James Douglas' book on Bombay. Mrs. Carnac died at Broach, January 18th, 1780, aged 28. Memorial tablets to herself and her husband were erected in Bombay Cathedral by James Rivett, her brother, who arrived in India in 1776 and rose to be Member of the Bombay Council. He died in 1803, aged 43. After his brother-in-law's death he had assumed the name of Carnac. The General had left him all his property, which was considerable. His son Sir James Rivett Carnac (1785–1846), originally an officer in the Madras Native Infantry, was twice Chairman of the East India Company, M.P., and baronet, and Governor of Bombay, 1838 41. Sir J. Carnac's bust, subscribed for in 1841 and despatched in 1846, lay for three years forgotten in a packing case under the Bombay Town Hall stairs and was only discovered by accident. Samuel Milers in his "Canara Past and Present" writes most gratingly "To the East of the Cantonment is the Protestant Cemetery; among the osseous remains here deposited is that of Brig. Gen. John Carnac."

There is a tablet in Marylebone Church to Henrietta, daughter of James Fisher of Great Yarmouth and relict of James Rivett Carnac of Derby died of E.I.C.S. and Member of Council, Bombay from 1796 to 1802, died 23rd December 1837, aet. 72.

CORDEL CHURCH.

1349 11th Dec. 1877. ALEXANDER DUBOIS. Beatam resurrectionem expectans sub hoc marmore quiescit ALEXANDER DUBOIS, Rothom Archidiocc in Gallia oriundus annis XII miraculorum ecclesiam in civitate Mangalorensi rexit. Fuit vir simplex et rectus ac timens Deum, omni virtutum genere commendabilis, bonum testimonium habens etiam ab iis qui foris sunt, omnes boni pastoris vices explevit. Haec ecclesia et quidquid late longeque conspicitur illius pecunia magis autem precibus exstructum fuit. Usque ad finem laborans viribus deficiens, meritis dives, coelo maturus, placide decessit die Decembris XI anno domini MDCCCLXXVII ætatis vero LXVIII. Ab hac die illius sepulturae locus, indesinenter ab omni gente, ab infidelibus etiam invisitur. Deum pro illo aut per illum rogaturi accedunt et plerumque voti compotes recedunt. Ad perpetuam memoriam hunc lapidem ex oblationibus quotidianis pecuniaque collecta apud illius parochianos et amicos, amicus moerens et mirans ponere curavit. In memoria aeterna erit iustus. L.D.S.

The "amicus moerens et mirans" was Father Ladislaus. Father Dubois, who is said to have been related to the family of Abbé Dubois, made the building of Cordel Church the work of his lifetime, but died before it was finished though the foundation stone was laid on Sept. 14, 1873. It is now a deserted ruin, in the chancel of which its founder lies buried. Father Dubois had acquired during his lifetime a widespread reputation for sanctity, and the spot is visited to this day by numerous pilgrims of all castes and creeds. Father Ladislaus Des Lognes died Nov. 21, 1888 without completing the roofing of the church. "When Father Ladislaus was taken with his last sickness he was brought from Cordel to St. Aloysius' College where he lingered about a week and then peacefully expired at 3 a.m. of November 21st. His body was exposed in the College Hall during the forenoon and part of the afternoon of the same day, and then taken to the College Church where a funeral procession was formed and the remains were borne to Cordel and deposited in the vault under the Chapel of "Our Lady of Sorrows." (St. Aloysius' College Magazine, Mangalore, June 1903. Vol. II, No. 10, pp. 307–8).

Inscription on an old stone. It has been deciphered by Rev. A. M. Teixeira and reads as follows: "Quem me pos neste lugar Pos tambem sua figura Avendo que quem no entrar A miseria grande ventura." The whole is a verse, the last line being a common saying in Portuguese. The slab must have been a gravestone and the words mean "He who put me in this place put also his own figure. If there be any one to enter it, his wretchedness will turn out a great boon."

CHURCH AT THE LITTLE MOUNT.

This church contains a cave where St. Thomas is said to have suffered martyrdom, and visitors are also shown the print of his footsteps. The Little Mount owes its name to the Portuguese, who, with a view to distinguish it from the Big Mount (St. Thomas' Mount) where they had built a church on the Hill, called the former "Monte Picano." There is a description of it in Milne Rae's "Syrian Church in India" (1892).

The legend runs that Saint Thomas lived and preached on the Little Mount, hiding in a cave there when heathen persecutors threatened him, until one day a Brahman pierced him with a lance from the little window of the cave. A Brahmin's javelin tears his holy breast, says Camoens. Then he fled to Great Mount, two miles farther on to die; stumbling as he ran and leaving giant hand and foot prints in the rock.

Another version is given by Alexander Hamilton who had spent thirty-five years, covering the reigns of William and Mary, Anne, and George I, in trading between the Eastern ports. "When he saw them (his enemies) coming he left his cave, and came down in order to seek shelter somewhere else; and at the foot of the Mount, as a testimony that he had been there, he stamped with his bare foot on a very hard stone, and left the print of it, which remains there to this day, a witness against those persecuting priests. The print of his foot is about sixteen inches long and in proportion, narrower at the heel and broader at the toes than the feet now in use among us." We are never able to judge of the historical value of this account for the pleasure which that "now in use" gives us. It hints at such a comfortable power of choice in these things.

A prettier, though perhaps a less apostolic, story is the one that Marco Polo repeats: he says that St. Thomas was accidentally shot by a fowler who mistook him for a peacock. But if that were so what becomes of the lance found by the Portuguese? We need to know whether the lance was made to fit the legend or the legend shaped to fit the lance.

In any case both the hills come into the story, which is the reason why accounts of the Mount commonly begin with the statement, rather trite and puzzling to the reader: "There are two Mounts, Little Mount and Big Mount."

Little Mount is not much more than a rock, one of the stony hillocks of India lying beside the road on the left just where you cross the Adyar River on your way out to Big Mount.

A steep flight of steps leads to the little plateau on which the chapel stands, built up against the face of the hill; the chapel is small and dark but in the tiny sanctuary there is just light enough for this inscription, painted on the rock to be read:—

The Cave

1353 1612 .. STATUE OF ST. THOMAS. Este baluarte S.T. fes ANT. GSZ. DE ATHAIDE a sua custa no ano de 1612.

"This statue of Saint Thomas did Antonio Gonsalves De Athaide make at his own cost in the year 1612." The figure represents St. Thomas raising his right hand in the attitude of benediction and holding in his left hand a carpenter's square. Three sites near Madras are connected with the legend of St. Thomas. They are the Cathedral of San Thomé, which claims to possess the apostle's grave; the Little Mount, where he is said to have been martyred; and St. Thomas' Mount, on whose summit is the church containing the famous inscribed cross. St. Thomas and St. Bartholomew are also said to have preached Christianity in Ceylon, and there is the still more curious tradition that Ceylon had been visited and the Christian faith introduced by the Eunuch of Candace.

1354 1663 .. KHOJAH MARGAR .. (Translation from the Armenian). This is the tomb of KHOJAH MARGAR, the son of KHOJAH DAVID, in the year 1112 (of the Armenian era corresponding to 1663 A.D.).

Epigraphica Indica, volume VI, part II, April 1900, contains a facsimile of this inscription with the translation, "This is the grave of Khojah David, the son of Khojah Margar." The proper reading of the text according to Mr. Mesrovb J. Seth is as given above. This is the oldest Armenian tombstone in Madras. It is at the foot of the steps leading to the church and in shape and appearance resembles a milestone.

CHURCH OF THE EXPECTATION OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN, ST. THOMAS' MOUNT.

This church crowns the summit of St. Thomas' Mount, familiarly known as the Big Mount, an isolated cliff of greenstone and syenite 300 feet above the level of the sea. In the Annual Register for 1774 will be found extracts from a curious poem on Saint Thomas' Mount written by "a gentleman, resident in India." Its author was Eyles Irwin (1751–1817), a well-known Madras Civilian (see No. 2028).

The legend of St. Thomas Mount.

At the back of the altar of the church was a large carefully preserved block of stone upon which a cross was carved. It is said that when St. Thomas was pursued and finally martyred by Brahmins, his blood gushed out upon this rock on which he fell and that the rock was removed to the church, and during the recital of the creed on the 21st Day of December, which is the anniversary of the death of St. Thomas, the rock was seen by all the people to sweat large drops of blood, and ever after at the same time of the year the wonderful miracle occurred. It had, however, not been seen to do so for last 70 years. An oil painting is placed before the sacred rock. It represented the Virgin and child, a crude painting upon wood, after the style of the old religious paintings. "This," it is said, "is a picture painted by St. Luke, who was an artist. The Virgin died when St. Thomas was away and on his return he had the tomb opened in order that he might once more look upon her. It was found that the body had been miraculously removed and St. Thomas was so distressed that St. Luke offered to paint him a portrait of the Virgin as a consolation. This St. Thomas carried about with him on all his wanderings. It was eventually found buried at the foot of the Mount, and was brought to the Church. Many years ago an attempt was made to renovate it, but when the artist touched it with his brush, he immediately became blind. Thirty years ago, another attempt was made, but the paint would not adhere to the wood, and rolled down in globules of mercury. It was seen, therefore, that this was a holy picture and it has not been touched since."

Father Joseph Carroll in an article dated 29th January 1918 to the Pioneer quotes some authorities in support or mention of the tradition bearing on the martyrdom of St. Thomas the apostle.

Burnell, M.C.S., was the first in 1873 to decipher the inscription, which dates from about the ninth century A.D. There is a facsimile of it in Epigraphica Indica, volume IV, page 174. Practically the same inscription is found round the two crosses in the Valiyapalli church at Cottayam in Travancore, followed in the case of the larger cross by a text in old Syriac from Galatians VI, 14. "But far be it from me to glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ."

1359 | 1707 | .. | SAFAR ZACHARIAS | .. | Esto alpendre com a porta desta igreja mandou fazer Coja SAFAR ZACHARIAS no anno de 1707.

Tablet let into the outer wall of the church commemorating the building (mandou fazer = fieri mandavit) of the porch (alpendre) and doorway by an Armenian named Zachary in 1707. The Armenian inscription below runs: "This is in memory of Safar, son of Zachariah, the Mahtosey." Mahtosey means pilgrim and denotes one who has gone on pilgrimage to the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem. It corresponds to the Persian Haji or in Holwell's quaint spelling "Hodgee, who acquire this title from having made a pilgrimage to Hodge."

1360 | 20th Oct. 1707. | GREGORIO PARAO | .. | GREGORIO PARAO Armenio 1707.

"This is the tomb of Gregory, who is the son of Sarkies. He is a native of Erivan, a citizen of a great city, a merchant of pearls and a sojourner at Madras. He is of a meek and humble nature. The Lord seated on a throne of light shall have mercy on his soul and he will be worthy of the Kingdom. Whoever on his behalf shall say 'Father, I have sinned' shall be remembered before Christ. Died in the year of the Saviour 1707, on Saturday, October 20th." (Translation from the Armenian.)

This is the one of the oldest inscriptions of this nation traceable in Madras. There are older ones at Calcutta (Reza Beebee Sookeas 1630) and at Agra. An Armenian colony had existed at the last-named place from very early times, and in 1609, Captain William Hawkins, of the ship Hector, envoy from James I to the Court of the Mogul, had been given an Armenian maiden in marriage by Jehangir. Hawkins unfortunately died on the journey home. His widow married Gabriel Towerson, one of the first factors of the East India Company, who was killed in the Amboyna massacre of 1622.

He had displayed great gallantry that same year in defeating an attack made on Trivatore by the Nabob's troops; and Governor Collet and his council made him "Major of all the Honourable Company's forces on the Coast of Coromandel and the island of Sumatra." He was also awarded a gold medal set with diamond "sparks" and valued at 300 pagodas. Roach sailed for England on 23rd January 1735 on the Montague, Capt. Richard Gosfright with G. M. Pitt (late President) and Rev. Robert Wynch (see No. 89). A Captain Edward Roach was in Calcutta at the time of the siege in 1756.

He formed and commanded the Madras Horse Artillery with eminent skill and with the recorded approbation of the highest Military and Civil authorities, and died at Madras 16th July 1827, in the 48th year of his age. In remembrance of his intrepidity of spirit and presence of mind, his professional enthusiasm, vigour and promptitude in action, and kindness and generosity in peace, his brother officers of the Madras Artillery have raised this monument.

A fine marble monument by Chantrey, with a bust of the deceased. In the R.A. Mess, Woolwich (upper smoking room), is a portrait of Noble. There is an isolated tomb to his memory at the Mount, erected by the native commissioned and European and native non-commissioned officers and gunners. It was blown down in the hurricane of 1846, but re-erected in 1848 under the superintendence of Captain R. L. Reilly, P.W.D. (No. 2277). It bears in Tamil, Telugu and Hindustani the words "Colonel John Noble."

This tablet is erected by his afflicted widow, as a poor tribute to his worth, and in testimony of her devoted attachment.

Captain Adolphus Elizabeth Byam was a godson of the Duchess of York, from whom he took his second name Elizabeth. There is an obelisk to his memory on an eminence opposite the Bolarun Residency. He had been Military Secretary to the Resident at Hyderabad, and died at Rondebosch, near Capetown. He married, April 26th, 1835, Maria, widow of the Lieutenant-Colonel Grant (Nos. 997 and 2871).

Erected by his friends and brother officers.

Perhaps of the same family as Sir John Peter Grant, Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, who was the second son (born 1807) of Sir John Peter Grant, Kt. (1774–1848), of Rothiemurchus, Inverness, M.P. for Great Grimsby and Tavistock, a Puisne Judge of the Bombay Supreme Court and subsequently of the Calcutta Supreme Court from 1833 to 1848.

ON THE RACE COURSE AT GUINDY NEAR THE SIXTH HOLE OF THE GOLF COURSE.

"The following inscription is taken from his monument which stands on the plain opposite the Madras Race Course and between St. Thomas' Mount and the Marmalong Bridge."

PULLALORE.

Pollilore or Pullalore is a village lying about 2 miles from Palur Railway Station, which is between Conjeeveram and Arkonam on the Chingleput-Arkonam branch of the South Indian Railway. It was the scene of two memorable battles between Haider and the English.

1453 27th Aug. 1781. JAMES HISLOP .. Sacred to the memory of Captain JAMES HISLOP who was killed by a cannon ball from the enemy near this spot, the field of battle, while serving as Aid-de-camp to Lieutenant General Sir Eyre Coote, K.B., Commander-in-Chief. His professional abilities and private virtues were felt and acknowledged by all his contemporaries.

1454 27th Aug. 1781. GEORGE BROWN .. Sacred to the memory of Lieutenant Colonel GEORGE BROWN. When Lieutenant of Grenadiers in Draper's Regiment, he lost his right arm on the storm of Conjeeveram Pagoda occupied by the French on the 16th April 1759 and fell in a general action fought on this field between the English forces and the troops of Hyder Ally Cawn Behawder on the 27th August 1781, esteemed by every rank, a gallant soldier, an able officer, and an honourable man.

"More than 6,000 of them were killed or wounded. Our loss was about 500 men. General Stuart and Col. Brown lost each of them a leg by the same cannon ball, as they were talking together in the beginning of the engagement; the Colonel died a few hours after; but the General recovered and is now in the field. It is doubted by many whether we have derived any advantge from this battle" (Munro's Journal to his father dated from the Camp at St. Thomas' Mount 2nd Oct. 1782. Gleig Vol. 1, p. 45).

These are two lofty obelisks with inscription tablets painted black. Urquhart locates them in a garden near a village about 4 miles from Perambaucum. "The battle in which the above gallant officers fell is described as having been one of the most ably contested and desperate that was ever fought with the native powers of India. The scene of action was on the same memorable ground where the gallant but ill-fated troops commanded by Colonel Baillie had been recently destroyed by the countless hosts of Hyder and his son Tippoo." Hyder claimed it as a drawn battle. Another veteran of these campaigns lies buried near Chandernagore in Bengal opposite Gyrotty Ferry. "Major James Moore, who so gallantly distinguished himself during the late war in the Carnatic; he died on the 26th of January 1785, aged 34 years. S.O. sculpsit." [sic]. The sculptor was Samuel Oldham. A monument was erected to Baillie's memory at Seringapatam by his nephew Lieutenant-Colonel John Baillie, Resident at Lucknow, in 1816 (see No. 947).

WALLAJABAD.

A considerable cantonment for His Majesty's and the Company's troops. Wallajabad received its name from Mahomed Ali, Nabob of the Carnatic, 1754–95, the hero of the Nabob's debts, who took the title Walajah in 1776. Its mortality for troops became so great that it earned the appellation of " the grave of Europeans." There are three portraits of Nabob Walajah in existence ; a full length at Government House, Calcutta ; a replica of this with a different background at Hampton Court Palace (dated 1774) ; and a similar picture in one of the Committee Rooms of the India Office. The painter was George Willison, a Scotch artist, who realised a large fortune in the East Indies and died at Edinburgh in 1797. TRIPASORE.

Tripasore stands in a Zomindari estate about 2 miles west of Tiruvallur. It was formerly a considerable cantonment and a station for cadets in the Company's service. The new Town of Cuddalore was substituted in 1806 for Tripasore for quartering the cadets of infantry arriving from Europe.

1478 24th Aug. 1781. SAMUEL KILPATRICK. This tomb is erected by me as a mark of esteem, affection and gratitude to the memory of Major SAMUEL KILPATRICK of the Hon'ble Company's service, Bengal Establishment, who departed this life while on service with Colonel Pearse's detachment on the Coromandel Coast. William Kilpatrick.

Colonel Thomas Deane Pearse was Warren Hastings' second in the duel with Francis. He died in 1789 and lies in South Park Street Cemetery, Calcutta. On his epitaph it is recorded that he marched a detachment to join the army under Sir Eyre Coote in the Carnatic and served there during the war and returned to Bengal in 1785. During the campaign of 1781–82 several duels took place with fatal result and in one of these Major Kilpatrick fell. The survivors in such encounters were tried by Courts-martial for having been accessory to the deaths of the persons killed, and were invariably acquitted. The finding of the Court in the present case is dated camp at Velout, September 18th, 1781: "The Court, having well considered the evidence for and against the prisoner Captain Richard Scott, together with what he has urged in his defence, are of opinion that the charge against him, viz., of his having been accessory to the death of Major Samuel Kilpatrick, has been fully proved, but as through the whole course of the proceedings many circumstances occur very favourable and alleviating, they do therefore acquit him of any degree of criminality, and he is hereby acquitted accordingly. Signed George Mackenzie, Major, 73rd Regiment and President." Both Scott and Kilpatrick belonged to the Bengal Native Infantry.

COVELONG.

On the coast 20 miles south of Madras. The fort now demolished was called by the natives Saadat Bunder, and was built by Anwar-ud-deen (Nawab of the Carnatic 1744–49) within musket shot of the sea near the ruins of another belonging to the Imperial East India Company of Ostend, whose principal factory was at this place. Covelong possesses a Roman Catholic Church, almshouse and orphanage founded and supported by grants from the DeMonte family, formerly rich merchants of Madras. The place is only known to-day as a Salt factory.

1481 6th May 1821. JOHN DEMONTE

In memory of JOHN DEMONTE, Esquire, of Madras, the founder of this chapel who departed this life on the 6th of May 1821 in the 56th year of his age, possessed of an ample fortune, the reward of diligence and integrity in commercial pursuits. He adorned the prosperity with which Providence blessed him by humility, moderation, and active, though unostentatious benevolence, while his heart and hand were alike open to the cries of genuine distress or the calls of public utility, without respect to differences of religion or nation. He strikingly exemplified the injunction of the Lord Jesus Christ, "When thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth."

The firm of Lys Satur and DeMonte was dissolved January 1st, 1810, and the old firm of Lautour & Co. altered to the title of Arbuthnot DeMonte & Co. John DeMonte's portrait hangs in the Mylapore Seminary. He lived in what is now the Adyar Club. He married Mary Bilderbeck. (see Nos. 805 and 1356). Her brother was Christopher Bilderbeck who had 4 sons Emmanuel, Joseph, Charles and John. Christopher's daughter Mary was left 25000 Star Pagodas by de Monte and the House and Garden situated at the Luz. The House and Gardon situated at Egmore near the Pantheon known as Underwood's gardens (the house lately bought from the Estate of Mr. Mclaggart) was bequeathed to his nephew Joseph. His will was dated 19th July 1820 and codicil was dated 25th April 1821. He was released from the firm of Arbuthnot De Monte & Co., 31 December 1820.

Mrs. Penny in her "On the Coromandel coast, p. 69" has a story of DeMonte's only son being killed in a duel on the ship that was carrying him to Madras the day before it landed and that he was buried in the cemetery at Mylapore.

1482 Feb. 1905. MARIA BERNARD .. In memory of MARIA BERNARD born 1856 entered religion 1874 died Feb. 1905 R.I.P. (Native nun).

DUTCH CEMETERY AT PULICAT.

Pulicat (Palaiyaverkadu "the old jungle of mimosa trees" or Pavalaikkadu "the jungle of coral") is situated 25 miles north of Madras on the south bank of a lake of the same name. It is the site of one of the earliest settlements of the Dutch East India Company, who in 1609 built a fort here and named it Castel Geldria, after Gelderland, one of the States of Holland. The old Dutch cemetery is perhaps the most interesting of its kind in India; and the artistic merit of the coats of arms carved on the tombstones is such that it has been suggested that they were sent out from Holland, though no authority is known for the statement. Twenty-two of the tablets are reproduced in reduced facsimile in Mr. Rea's "Monumental Remains of the Dutch East India Company" (Archæological Survey Series, volume XXV). The burial ground is entered by a quaint Romanesque lichgate, bearing the date 1656 and the words "Beati qui in domino moriuntur, quiescunt a labore suo. Apocalyps cap. XIV. V. XIII. Salich syn se die in den Heere sterven, sy ruston van haren arbeyt." In front of each of the two gateposts stands a sculptured stone skeleton, almost life size. These figures are said to be male and female. One has a hourglass on his head and the other supports a skull on a column. The native legend is that the former figure holds an eggshell and represents a Dutch Governor who, during a terrible famine, doled out eggshells of rice to the starving poor and made a fortune out of their sufferings. His memory was so execrated that every passer-by used to spit at the effigy, and a railing was therefore placed round it. An old church and an old sun dial adjoin the cemetery. On the opposite side of the lake to Pulicat is the small hamlet of Coromandel which is popularly supposed to have given its name to the whole of the eastern coast of this Presidency. The word Coromandel is, however, either a corruption of Cholamandalam "the realm of the Chola kings" or of Karumanal "the black sand" (ironstone) washed down by the Palar river and carried up the coast. Towards Sadras, especially, quantities of such sand are found on the shore.

Pulicat is described in Taylor's Vepery Mission page 12 as follows:—"Pulicat is a prettily situated place on the bank of a river which, in the rains, is made to communicate with the sea. A small Fort heretofore was on its bank. On the other side is a narrow strip of land, termed Coromandel, in miniature, which the sea may be expected within a few years to destroy. The river running between opens into a fine lake: an inroad there is reason to believe from the sea. It was once a flourishing place of commerce, excelling in the manufacture of a peculiar kind of handkerchiefs, in great demand among the Malays of the Eastern Islands; and, at one time, highly esteemed even in Europe. It has an old Dutch Church and M. Roger, author of La Porte Ouverte aux Indes, was at an early period, about 1726–30, Chaplain to the Dutch Factory."

The letters stand for Vereenigde Oostendische Compagnie, "United East India Company." They have been taken to mean "Very Old Coin." Major T. Ffrench writing to a paper some years ago wrote that he picked up a coin at Cannanore which, he said, had on one side, as far as he could remember, a lion rampant rising out of the sea on the top of a shield, and on the other side the mystic letters V.O.C.

home againe about 8 at night. Signor Outhorne discoursing with the Agent amongst other Bravadoos delivered this as remarkable, that their Company had so many Islands and Castles in the South Seas, many of which he named, that they were as Emperors, they had heretofore made Kings, as a King of Ternot and a King of Cochin, and now lately they had made an Emperor, viz., the Mataran, who had severall Kings under him, and he had given their Company all the seaports upon the coast of Java; when they wanted men upon their call, the Kings brought their armies to fight for them, as a great Prince of Macape whom he named had brought a great army to Battavia to fight the King of Bantam by land, and they intended to block it up by sea, and when 'twas objected that it may be their Company at home would not approve of a warr with Bantam, he replied he knew better for he came from Battavia, this yeare about January last." The Dutch at that time had a firmer hold of the country than their competitors the English. These remarks foreshadowed the attack on Bantam in 1682, when the Dutch took the place and drove out the English.

Henrik Van Outhoorn became Chief at Masulipatam in 1679 in succession to Hartsinck who followed Smit in 1677. "Senior Peter Smit Chief for the Dutch of this place lyes very dangerous sick, Senior Hartsinck their Cheife at Golcondah Mr. Smithe's half brother is come down to succeed him, being to succeed him in his place." At various times he commanded Fort. St. David and Anjengo. He was commanding at Fort St. David in 1746 when Madras fell to the French. He retired in October 1748 as Captain on account of infirmity after 38 years honourable service. He married firstly Sarah des Pommaré, September 2nd, 1717. She was a Miss Clark and had married firstly, in November 1706, George Tourwille, who died on the " West Coast " (i.e., Sumatra), and secondly Peter des Pommaré, on November 13th, 1715. Mrs. De Morgan died at Cuddalore in 1720 (No. 1204), and her hubsand married secondly Mrs. Tivill, a widow (see No. 2769). By her he had four sons and five daughters. The daughters all married, the eldest three times and three out of the other four twice. Their husbands' names were Callend, De Vœux, Wilson, West, Taylor, Turing, Innes (see No. 1270), Campbell, Buchanan and R. T. R. Maitland. The only surviving son Augustus, a Captain, was killed before Pondicherry, in 1778 (No. 1270). He was appointed writer in the year of his father's death, but he was shortly afterwards transferred to the Artillery. He married Christina Huttemann, daughter of the Rev. G. Huttemann of Tranquebar on July 31, 1768, at Cuddalore. His eldest son George Augustus De Morgan was born in 1771. He joined the Madras Cavalry and was killed in action against Tippoo Sultan at Ambur in 1792. John De Morgan, his second son who also joined the Madras army, was the father of Augustus De Morgan, the celebrated mathematician and logician, for many years professor of mathematics at University College, London. He died at St. Helena in 1816 on his way to England. The mathematician's son William Frend De Morgan was a novelist. He adopted Art as a profession and studied at the Royal Academy, subsequently devoting his attention chiefly to stained-glass work, and then to ceramic work. His experiments in lustre attracted much attention among artists. He took to fiction late in life but won a position rapidly as a novelist of the School of Dickens. He died at the age of 77. The mathematician's younger brother was Campbell Greig De Morgan (1811—1876) who was a surgeon and who died on April 12, 1876. Their mother was Elizabeth Dodson whom John de Morgan married at Colombo on August 4, 1798.

John Innys married Ann Morgan October 24, 1753. Anne Innis married James West April 21, 1761. Charles Campbell married Susanna Morgan on July 4, 1750. Samuel Troutback married Susanna Morgan March 21, 1726. Mr. John Calland (Sen. Merchant) married Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson (widow) June 11, 1762.

This tablet is affixed on the fourth step of an obelisk 40 feet high. Native tradition has it that the deceased lady's coffin hangs from silver chains inside this immense structure. A curious article on this subject entitled "A legend of Pulicat" appeared in 1861 in the "Madras Athenæum."

A similar story is told of a Dutch tomb at Negapatam which is said to contain the body of a sea Captain seated in a chair and slung from chains. See also No. 1151.

DUTCH CEMETERY AT SADRAS.

Sadras or in Tamil Saduray is situated on the sea coast about 35 miles south of Madras. Its name was probably shaped into the usual form by a sort of conformity with Madras or Madraspatam. It was made a settlement by the Holland East India Company in 1647. Valentijn, the Dutch historian (1726), gives a fanciful derivation for the word (page 11). "It is 20 miles (Dutch) north of Teganapatnam, real name Sadrangapatnam, but shortly Sadrampatnam and generally Sadraspatnam. In Tellinga it signifies the name of the founder, and in Persian thousand difficulties or the Sjah Bord by us called the Chess board." The only historical fact of any political importance connected with it is the abortive peace conference between the French and the English, which held its sittings here in January 1754. The English deputies were Messrs. Palk and Vansittart, those of the French, Father Lavaur, Superior of the French Jesuits in India, M. Kerjean, Dupleix's nephew and M. Bausset, a member of council at Pondicherry. Sadras was taken by the British in 1795, but restored to the Dutch in 1818. It finally passed into British possession in 1824, along with the rest of the Dutch Settlements in India, exchanged for others lying mostly in Sumatra. The old Dutch cemetery within the Fort is still maintained in order under treaty.

"The town is now in decay: there was formerly a small fort, surrounded by a brick wall, about fifteen feet high, on one side close to the sea. This was seized by Lally at the siege of Madras, in violation of the Dutch neutrality, and formed into a depot of stores. It is now in ruins. A range of houses faced the three land sides of the fort at a small distance. They are rapidly decaying and the inhabitants are retiring to more flourishing stations." (February 7, 1807. Lord Valentine's Travels, page 330).

"From Tirepoplier one comes over Poelejere, Poelemœr and Alembrue to Sadraspatam, where our people have a logie." (Baldæns, page 158).

"Sadras is a large but poor-looking town, once a Dutch Settlement and still containing many families of decayed burghers like those of Ceylon, the melancholy relics of a ruined factory. Some of them have little pensions from the Charity of the British Government and there is a Dutch missionary a very poor and modest and apparently a good man, who lives among them, does duty in Dutch and Portuguese, and has a little school for both Christian and Heathen children. His salary is paid by a religious society in the Netherlands" (Heber's Journal, March 15, 1826).

1598 — 6th Aug. 1831. — RICHARD CLIVE ..

Sacred to the memory of RICHARD CLIVE, Esq., of the Madras Civil Service, who departed this life on the 6th day of August A.D. 1831 in the 39th year of his age.

The Clive family has become illustrious in India by the heroism, valour and statecraft of the first Lord Clive, Governor of Bengal and founder of the British Empire in India. But his descendants appear mostly to have lived their official lives only in Madras, his first love. Madras it was that discovered the true merits of Clive, and it is small wonder, therefore, that his descendants should have chosen the Madras Presidency for their civil employ. Of the first Lord Clive little need be said now. His is an imperishable name in the history of India; or rather, in that of the British Empire. But writing only of things locally connected with him, it must be mentioned that Writers' Building in Fort St. George, in a house opposite to which he is known to have lived after his marriage to Miss Margaret Maskelyn, is closely connected with him. A street called after him, Clive street, is popular in Old Town, Cuddalore, where he was at one time Deputy Governor. Besides these, there is nothing in Madras city (excepting his picture by Thomas Day in Government House) or in the mofussil, so far as is known, connected with his name. That is, to say the least, somewhat remarkable for one who, to adopt the language of Macaulay, though not without his faults, was both a great soldier and a great administrator.

By his wife Margaret Maskelyne, he left Edward, born March 7, 1754; Rebecca, born September 15, 1760; Charlotte, born January 15, 1762; Margaret, born August 15, 1763; and Robert, born August 31, 1769. (Malcolm's Clive: Vol. III, p. 387.)

Clive's wife lived to a great age and died on 28th December 1818 in the 84th year of her age at Oakley Park near Luddow. (Asiatic Journal, February 1818.)

Edward Lord Clive, his eldest son and heir, became Governor of Madras in 1798. He was Governor during the Mysore War, to mark the successful termination of which he built the Banqueting Hall in Madras in 1801. There is a tradition current amongst the Indians of Madras that he caused the removal of the Chennakesava Perumal temple from the beach opposite Fort St. George to the interior of the town, about 1800, paying a large compensation as an inducement to the temple authorities. The now well-known Buckingham Canal was commenced during his time, and was known then as the Clive Canal, after him. The battery on the north Georgetown Road, close to the Harbour, is named after him. He married, on the 7th May, 1784, Henrietta Antonia, daughter of Henry Arthur Herbert, Earl of Powis, and sister and heir of George Edward Henry Arthur, the last Herbert Earl of Powis, by whom he had two sons and two daughters. His son and heir was Edward, Second Earl of Powis, and his younger brother Robert Henry, born on the 15th January, 1789, married on the 19th June 1819, Harriet Baroness Windsor, who assumed the additional surname of Windsor by Royal licence on the 8th November 1855. He subsequently became M.P. for South Shropshire, and died on the 20th January 1854.

1609	2nd April 1783.	MORGAN STANELY and OTHERS.	This obelisk commemorates the siege of the fort at Caroor and its evacuation on the 2nd April 1783, during which operation there was sustained a loss of one officer, Lieutenant STANELY 102nd Regiment, killed, 19 Europeans and 30 sepoys killed and wounded.
			In 1760 Karur, then the most important frontier post of Mysore, was captured by the English and held by a British garrison till 1768 when it was re-taken by Hyder Ali, to whom its possession was confirmed by treaty next year. In 1783 Colonel Lang held the fort for a few months, and it is this occupation that is here commemorated. It was a third time captured in 1790 by General Meadows and again restored in 1792. This oft contested fortress passed finally into the possession of the English after the fall of Seringapatam and was abandoned as a military station in 1801. It is now a busy market town and an important centre of railway traffic. The obelisk is 2½ miles south of Karur, just beyond the village of Tantoni where there is a rock temple of some local consequence. It is a heavy and inelegant monument 13 feet high and is believed to mark the site of the besiegers' camp.

CUDDAPAH TOWN CEMETERY ON THE SIDHOUT ROAD.

Said by some to be a colony founded by Kripachari one of the generals in the Mahabarata War. " In the Batihagarh stone inscription of the time of Nasir-ud-din Mahmud of the Slave Dynasty (A.D. 1246–1266) we find a mention made of the Kharpara armies, identified with the Kharparikas of the Samudragupta pillar at Allahabad. But no attempt is made to decide who the Kharparas were. Possibly they were Afghans from Kharappa in the Khyber and a tribe of that name in after times played a great part in Southern India, founding Cuddapah in Madras. But here philology must ratify or refute our conjecture."

1610 1st Sept. 1807. WEBB THACKERAY .. W. THACKERAY.

The stone bears no date and gives no information, but it undoubtedly marks the grave of Webb Thackeray, C.S., who died at Gundloor, 28 or 30 miles from Cuddapah, aged 19, in the first year of his service, but not before he had won notice for a clever little grammar of Hindustani in verse. He was uncle of the novelist and son of William Makepeace Thackeray, the elephant catcher of Sylhet. He was called Webb after General Webb, the victor of Wynendael, whose rivalries with the Duke of Marlborough are commemorated in Esmond. Three of Sylhet Thackeray's twelve sons entered the Madras Civil Service. St. John Thackeray (b. 1791) was killed at Kittoor near Dharwar in an attack on the Desai's fort, October 23rd, 1824. The circumstances under which he was killed are mentioned in Asiatic Journal, November 1830. His eldest brother William Thackeray (b. 1778) joined as writer in 1796 and was Subordinate Collector in the Ceded Districts from 1800 to 1803. He became the friend of Sir Thomas Munro and long wielded influence in Southern India as Chief Secretary and eventually Member of Council. He had the ablest pen of his day in the Madras service and his writings hold an honourable place alike in the Fifth Report and in the selections printed by the Company, 1817–21. Richmond Thackeray, B.C.S. (b. 1781), the novelist's father, went on sick leave to Madras in the first year of his India service, and it was from his brother William's house that he wrote to his mother on February 17th, 1799: " My dear Mater, it is intensely hot at Madras and I am obliged to go out in the sun. There are no palankeens here, for the bearers are all gone with the force which has taken the field against Tippoo Sultaun. (A.A.R. for February 1799: 'accounts from Madras state that the palankeen bearers, employed by individuals, being required for the public service they have been collected to the number of 6,000 and were marched off to join the Grand Army, in order to facilitate the conveyance of provisions and stores).' I would give anything to be again at home. I would even be glad to carry gravel in a basket on my shoulder in the garden. It was this time last year we made the new walk; it will be wonderfully altered when I see it again." As Hunter remarks, the poor lad was never to see it again. " He lies for ever by a coarse brick path in a land where no gravel is found." William Makepeace Thackeray was born at Calcutta (where his father was Secretary to the Board of Revenue) on the 18th July 1811 in the house in Free School Street, which is now the Armenian College; but five months later his father was appointed Collector of the 24 Pergunnahs, and it was at Alipore he lived until, on the 13th September 1815, Richmond Thackeray was borne to his last resting place in the North Park Street burying ground. Richmond's Madras brother William died on his passage to the Cape of Good Hope, January 11th, 1823, on board the Nancy.

William Thackeray was the eldest son of William Makepeace Thackeray, of the Bengal Civil Service, who earned fame and fortune as Settlement Officer and elephant-hunter in Sylhet, a frontier district, in his day, which he helped to bring under the orderly control of the East India Company's Government. After only ten or twelve years' service, William Makepeace found himself in possession of a comfortable fortune, made out of private trade, a recognized privilege which Civilians then enjoyed. He went to Calcutta for a holiday, fell in love with a beautiful young girl named Amelia Webb, a daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel Richmond Webb, married her in 1776 at St. John's Church, Calcutta, and sailed away with her to England, to live in retirement and happiness ever afterwards. They settled down at Hadley, a picturesque spot to the north of London, from which, on a fine day, you can view St. Paul's Cathedral in the distant lowland. The young couple were blessed with a large family, all born and bred in England. The children were all exceptionally well endowed with brains, and the quondam elepant-hunter, himself the son of an old Headmaster of Harrow, had the good sense to take care that those brains were stimulated by the best education that could be obtained. Five of his seven sons entered the Service of the East India Company: another son became a Barrister and practised in Calcutta, not only at the Bar, but as a leader—writer on the Englishman newspaper and in the days when it emerged from the John Bull, a paper much quoted in the old Madras Courier. The only son to remain in England became a Clergyman, and he showed considerable literary ability in writing the Life of the great Earl of Chatham, a work that was reviewed by Macaulay. All the six sons who went to India died in India, and only one of them married, namely, Richmond, of the Bengal Civil Service, and father of the novelist. The eldest son, William, was appointed a Writer on the Madras Establishment, and arrived in Madras in 1796, when he was eighteen years of age. In view of the remarkable success that attended William's early career in Madras, it is not surprising that two of his younger brothers elected to go to the same Presidency, namely, Webb in 1806 and St. John in 1809.

It was at a critical period in the history of the Civil Service that William Thackeray arrived in Madras. The problem for some years had been how to make the Civil Servants more proficient in the vernaculars. In 1791, special allowances had been made for the payment of munshis to teach other languages than Persian, such as Mahratti, Telugu and Canarese, and a warning was issued by Government that promotion in the service would depend on efficiency in languages, the object of Government being that officials should be able to transact business with Indians direct, without the aid of an interpreter. In Madras, both Sir Charles Oakley and Lord Hobart recognized the necessity of insisting on a language test as a qualification for the post of Collector, and issued Notifications to the effect that if Civilians failed to qualify in the vernacular the Government would not hesitate to employ the services of competent military Officers in Revenue work. Had not military Officers like Read and Munro proved their efficiency as Settlement Officers and Collectors? It was the establishment of the College at Fort William, Calcutta—which young Madras Civilians attended till the establishment of the Madras College—and the institution of large money rewards for proficiency in vernaculars, that brought about the desired linquistic improvements in the members of the Civil Service. The Fifth Report recognizes the excellent work accomplished by Lords Hobart and Clive in Madras, in this direction. The policy they pursued is described as "wise and liberal."

After serving a year in the Secretariat, William Thackeray was posted to Vizagapatam, where he devoted his energies to mastering the Telugu language, receiving the reward of Rs. 3,500 for high proficiency in 1800. Lord Clive immediately appointed the young Civilian a Translator to Government. A much more important post followed soon after. At the close of the Mysore War, Colonel Munro, on his own application, was appointed to settle the Ceded Districts, a territory that came under British administration in terms of the Treaty made with the Nizam, (It would have been more correct to describe the Ceded Districts as the "Seedy Districts", for they had been fearfully devastated and impoverished during a long period of anarchy and misrule.) The young Telugu proficient was appointed one of Munro's assistants. The delightful letter in which Chief Secretary Webbe informs Munro of his appointment and introduces him to young Thackeray is worth quoting:—

"..... I send this by express to apprise you that you will probably be appointed Superintendent of the whole of the Ceded Districts, with four Civil Assistants as Collectors of such portions as you may appoint them. The Assistants may be Mr. Cochrane, Clive's Head Assistant, who is master of Persian and Hindostanie; Mr. Thackeray, who has received the reward for the Gentoo language; Mr. Stodart who has been a long time Assistant to one of our Northern Collectors; and some other undubashed person (i.e., not needing an interpreter), if I can find him. These gentlemen will be put on a better footing than the Assistants in the Baramahal, under Read, but your allowances must be curtailed, in consequence of your pertinacious resistance to the authority of a regular Government and in conformity to that noble contempt of wealth in which you effect to imitate the old snarler in the tub. Provide accordingly, my good man, for your early departure to the Upper Regions, and I hope you will not require Mercury to conduct you thither. I stipulate, however, that you leave a sufficient number of good men and true to enable Read to conduct the affairs of Canara after your departure. Remember, you will be required to move at short notice, and don't let me find you casting 'any longing lingering looks behind' at a bit of a back-yard with two pepper-corns and a betel-nut tree."

What a light the witty Chief Secretary—considered by the Duke of Wellington as one of the cleverest men he ever met—throws on the character of Sir Thomas Munro. Fancy describing the plains of Northern Bellary, that "weary waste expanding to the skies", as the Upper Regions.! They are more often referred to by dwellers on the plains as lying in the opposite direction.

Webbe's letter was accompanied by a note from Lord Clive to "Dear Webbe," in which His Lordship refers to Munro as "that excellent fellow and Collector" whose request must be complied with as a matter of course. The correspondence shows that very pleasant relations existed between Munro and the great officials about Lord Clive. The brilliant Webbe died a few years later on the banks of the Nerbudda, on his way to Gwalior, to which State he had been appointed as Political Resident. The association of Munro with Thackeray has been immortalized in Munro's own letters. Thackeray's headquarters were at Adoni, and Munro often stayed with him there in camp. The Chief was evidently fascinated with the conversation of his young Assistant, which was full of sense and vigour, as his writings are. There was a difference of seventeen years in the ages of the two men, yet there was something between them that seemed to bridge over the space of years. The fact seems to be that the Chief and his Assistant were companions in intellectual thought outside officialdom. They had both studied classical history and loved to fight the classical battles over again. It is on record that in one of Munro's letters to Thackeray he likened the head of his Assistant, after being cropped by the Adoni barber, to the head of Themistocles as represented in an ancient wood-cut. Munro's chaff shows much intellectual familiarity between the "boss" and his sub. On parting with Thackeray after three years of official and congenial companionship, Munro lamented that the non-official causeries were over. But he predicted success, in the future for his young friend, only warning him to keep a cool head under all possible circumstances. In effect he said:—"Don't attempt to scale village walls when an enemy is waiting on the other side with weapons to slay you." The advice was given apropos of an incident at a village near Adoni, which nearly cost Thackeray his life. He had attempted, rashly, to scale a village wall to get at some murderous culprits within the village. He happily thought better of the attempt and retired to his tent to devise means for a more deliberate and effective capture of the enemy.

The three years training under Munro did wonders for Thackeray. But the greatest wonder of all was the avowed conversion of Lord William Bentinck, Governor of Madras, to the system of ryotwari as opposed to a Zamindari settlement for the Madras Presidency. That eminent statesman publicly notified that it was the conversation and arguments of young Mr. Thackeray then only 28, and with about 10 years' service, that persuaded him to be a ryotwarist. The Government of India almost demanded the creation of a host of Zamindars in Madras, the Marquis of Wellesley having been so enamoured with the Zamindari system that he once asked that the fact that he believed in it might be recorded on his tombstone. The Directors in England, many of them landholders themselves, were attracted with the idea of creating great Indian landlords in Madras. Happily, they listened to the arguments, based on practical experience of men like Munro and Thackeray, who were able to show that the conditions of life and the customs of the people, in Southern India were very dissimilar to those in Northern India. After Lord William Bentinck's public profession of Revenue faith, the name and fame of Thackeray was in everybody's mouth. There is no other instance in India, except perhaps that of Robert Clive, where so young a man stepped at a bound into so prominent a position, and became so necessary to the Government of the day. Having definitely cast his vote for ryotwari, Lord William Bentinck appointed Thackeray to the Board of Revenue, and wrote a minute of apology and justification for selecting so young a man. The appointment was notified in the Madras Courier of the 24th September 1806, where William Thackeray is described as "Junior Member", and Alexander Falconer, later a Chief Secretary, as Senior Member of the Board, two other appointments noted in the same paper being those of E.W. Fallofield as a member of the Board of Trade and Mr. James Strange as Magistrate and Collector at Pondicherry. The same paper by the way shows that large subscriptions were being collected for the Cornwallis cenotaph in Madras, E.W. Fallofield subscribing 150 Pagodas, T. Munro 100, T. Gahagan 100, C. Carpenter (Walter Scott's brother-in-law) 100, J. A. Casamajor and many others 50 or 25, H.M's. 33rd Regiment allotting £130, for a Mess vase in perpetual memory of their old Colonel.

Thackeray had only been a member of the Board of Revenue for four months when he and Hodgson, another member of the Board, were deputed to make that historical tour the results of which were embodied in their respective Reports, afterwards presented to Parliament. Their appointment is dated the 14th January, 1807, Mr. Charles Harris being nominated to act as a member of the Board during Hodgson's and Thackeray's absence. Lord William Bentinck had intended to accompany Thackeray on his tour, but was prevented by public business in the Presidency town. Thackeray's report dated 4th August 1807, is his magnum opus, copious extracts from which, covering 24 closely printed pages, appear in the old Parliamentary Blue Books. This document with a previous Minute which Thackeray had submitted to Lord William Bentinck, induced that statesman to record the following opinion, the wisdom of which is more apparent to-day perhaps—when we read everywhere of the breaking up of large landed estates—than it was at the time:—"I am satisfied that the creation of Zemindars is a measure incompatible with the true interest of Government and of the community at large." The Court of Directors, in acknowledging Thackeray's Report and the Governor's Minute, remarked that they were "truly of a most important nature." The Directors had also received Mr. Hodgson's Report, which was in opposition to Thackeray's views, Hodgson, who was a Bengal Civilian, being in favour of the creation of Zamindaries. They further asked for all arguments that could be offered for or against the extension of the Zamindari system to Madras. The Reports of Munro, Thackeray and Hodgson would, they added, be then submitted to the House of Commons Committee, which desired full information on revenue questions.

It may be noted that William Thackeray had not attained thirty years of age when he had reached this unique position of eminence both in Madras and in Leadenhall Street. Sir William Hunter finds fault with his literary style, complaining that his official papers are wanting in the graces of composition of some of the other Thackerays, including the great novelist. The criticism seems hardly just. A young man who gives his days and nights to Settlement work has not much time for cultivating literary graces. Thackeray's Reports have a more sterling value. They are crammed with indisputable facts, supported by sledge hammer arguments. The vigour of his literary style is quite Thackerayan. He had statesmanlike ideas and a power of expressing them forcibly, which is more important than style in official documents. Moreover, Thackeray, like a true gentleman, was always loyal to his great Chief whom he was fond of referring to as "Collector Munro."

No appointment was now too high for Thackeray to aspire to. In the latter part of 1810 he was acting as Chief Secretary under the regime of Sir George Hilaro Barlow, in the place of Mr. Alexander Falconer, whose "elegant mansion and charming chateau" on the south side of the Adyar was being advertised for sale by a local poet-auctioneer who described the house as "almost surrounded by the River Adyar, contiguous to the sea, which replenishes and purifies the river twice every day—commanding a view of the shipping sailing to or from the Roads, the flagstaff and signals of Fort St. George, St. Thomas Mount, the Race Stand and Cenotaph, the Bridge and adjacent buildings: the most cheerful and healthy residence in Madras." There is nothing to show that the new Chief Secretary, who received his pucca appointment on the 1st January 1811, was tempted to become the owner of this commanding outlook of his predecessor, though he was the owner of a house in Madras in later years, when he had become a Member of Council.

1616 31st July 1830. GEORGE WILLIAM SAUNDERS. GEORGE WILLIAM SAUNDERS, Esq., Civil Service.

Third Judge of the Provincial Court, Centre Division. He married Miss Angel Marshall May 17th, 1817. She was the eldest daughter of Rev. G. Marshall of Carndonhgh in the county of Donegall (Asiatic Journal, December 1817).

1617 15th June and 7th July 1832. CHARLES EDWARD and AGNES MACDONALD. Erected by the civil officers of this station as a tribute of affection and esteem to the joint memory of CHARLES EDWARD MACDONALD, Esquire, of the Madras Civil Service, aged 24 years, a civilian of the fairest promise, who, while attempting, in the fearless and conscientious discharge of his duty, to appease by prompt and persuasive measures, the fury of a fanatic rabble of Moormen, assembled on the 15th of June 1832, in the town of Cuddapah, was though completely unarmed, attacked, deserted by all his peons and barbarously murdered. And of AGNES, his wife, who only survived him 21 days, having died on the 7th July 1832, broken hearted, in the 20th year of her age. "They were lovely in their lives and in death shall not be separated."

There is a monument to his memory in the Cuddalore Church. He was a grandson of Flora Macdonald and son of Colonel Macdonald, an old and highly respected inhabitant of Exeter. He left behind two children. (Asiatic Journal, December 1832). His wife was the daughter of E. W. Stevenson, Port officer of Port Novo. Mr. J. D. B. Gribble gives the following account of his death in the District Manual: "On the 15th June 1832, the Pathans of Cuddapah, the most excitable and daring of the Cuddapah populace, descendants of the same men who had attempted to assassinate Hyder Ali at Sidhout, were in a great state of ferment. Early in the morning it was discovered that a small pig had been killed and thrown bleeding into the Jumna Musjid. It turned out afterwards that this pig was merely a bandicoot, and had been purposely placed there by a Mahomedan, aided by two Hindus. But the excited mob did not stop to consider who had done the thing. They met in the market place and in the bazaar streets; they raged and fumed, and their numbers increased every minute. By ten o'clock the crowd was so large and had worked itself into such a state of fanatical fury, that the additional Sub-Collector, Mr. Macdonald, sent off a message to the Collector Mr. Lacon, who resided at some distance from the town, telling him that he would endeavour to quiet the mob, but, if necessary, would send for the military from the cantonment. Mr. Macdonald then got into his palankeen and went to the cutcherry where he found native subordinates assembled and in a great state of alarm. An order was at once sent for a detachment, but Macdonald was not destined to see its arrival. A letter was brought to him from a Missionary, Mr. Howell, who lived in the middle of the town, and who said that he feared an instant attack upon his house. Macdonald, in spite of the protestations of the cutcherry officials, at once determined to do his best to help the missionary. He went into the bazaar accompanied only by a few peons. A naick and some of the treasury guard sepoys followed him, but it is probable that their presence served only still more to excite the crowd. Macdonald had scarcely reached the bazaar before he was attacked and cut down. His revenue peons ran away, but the guard tried to defend him and shared his fate. The last blow is said to have been dealt by a Pathan butcher; but after this had been dealt, the mob was taken aback. It had assembled quickly, but it dissolved at once; in a few minutes there was no one to be seen in the streets, and the only signs of the outbreak were the dead bodies of Macdonald and the faithful sepoy guard. After a time the military came and the tardy Collector, but all they could do was to carry back poor Macdonald's body in his palankeen. The Collector endeavoured to magnify this into a preconcerted rising of the Mahomedans with intent to massacre all the European residents, but it is clear that it was nothing more than a sudden outburst of fanaticism to which Macdonald generously, but injudiciously, exposed himself." This murder is referred to in "an Indian Olio" by Campbell.

The Bushbys furnish a pathetic instance of four brothers dying in India. Besides Nos. 1149 and 1346, Lieutenant J. S. Bushby, M.N.I., died at Mominabad, April 4th, 1827 (see No. 1013). Cotton died, aged 71: and another brother General Frederick Conyers Cotton born in 1807 died in 1902. Of the family of eleven brothers three only died young. The father of these Cottons was a man without any particular profession who married an heiress and had a place called Woodcot. One F. C. Cotton of the Civil Commissioners department, Tanasserim provinces, was married on 16th June 1838 at Moulmain by the Rev. Mr. Hamilton, to Hannah eldest daughter of Mr. H. MANGAPATNAM.

1626 12th Sept. 1902. .... A memorial Tablet 'To the memory of 10 Europeans and Eurasians and 61 Hindus and Mahomedans who lost their lives near this spot in a disastrous accident on 12th September 1902, when the mail train from Madras was precipitated into a breach caused by the carrying away during a violent storm of part of Bridge No. 665.'

"Between the hours of midnight and 3 a.m. on the early morning of September 12, 1902 a sudden deluge of rain in the nature of a waterspout fell and flooded the country on the south side of the railway line, sweeping away the second and third spans of bridge No. 664 (665 ?) near the 206th mile a little beyond Mangapatnam railway station. The mail train, which was unusally full as it carried homeward bound passengers and the Europe mail, passed through the station without stopping shortly after 3 a.m. and, on reaching the bridge, was, with the exception of the rear brake-van, precipitated into the gap. The disaster was unfortunately attended with lamentable loss of life; seventy-one dead bodies were subsequently recovered either at the scene of the accident or at various points down stream where they had been carried by the current. Seventy-seven persons escaped, and eight only remained unaccounted for to complete the total of 156 who were in the train according to the calculation made by the committee of enquiry. The collapse of the bridge was found to be due to the side pressure to which the skew piers and girders were subjected by the immense volume of water which rose above the girders on the south side: its force being augmented by large accumulations of straw and rubbish until one of the piers gave way and bodily overturned. The Government held the accident to be due to causes beyond human control and neither attributable to negligence on the part of the railway administration nor laxity on the part of the Company's establishment." GANJAM CEMETERY†.

This little graveyard is picturesquely situated near the ruined fort of Ganjam which was built in 1768 by Mr. Edward Cotsford, the first Resident, at one time a Captain of Engineers, who had seen service on the Manilla expedition. Cotsford was a man of considerable energy, and his vigorous administration called forth the following remark in Hickey's "Gazette", November 17th, 1780: "Mr. Whitehill's private and public character is so despicable as to render him unworthy a moment's consideration. The times require a Cotsford at the head of our Presidency; they require not only an honest but a sensible man." The most historic tomb in this cemetery has unfortunately disappeared. It is that of Alexander Macrabie, the brother-in-law and devoted Private Secretary of Philip Francis, whom he accompanied to India in 1774. Next year he found himself Sheriff of Calcutta, and it was part of his duty to carry out the execution of Nuncomar. He fell ill in August 1776 and was sent to sea; but getting worse, landed at Ganjam, where he lingered till November 29th, 1776. He had just been appointed to a Writership in the Bengal Service. No trace of his grave is now discernible. Macrabie kept a diary of his life in India, extracts from which found a place in the Memoirs of Francis, who preserved it among his own papers. The visit to Madras in September 1774 is characteristically described. The party disembarked from the Ashburnham while the "sun flamed in the zenith" and were honoured with much military parade and firing of salutes. "We were received like the fallen angels in a little hell of our own." Mr. Wynch, the Governor, and the small social world showed them profuse hospitality, having ready for them on the very first evening a concert, assembly and supper, where the newly-arrived ladies, "by exciting different passions in the two sexes, did all the mischief they could desire." "Fort St. George," it was observed, "does not abound with pretty women, though it may boast with some reason of Mrs. Johnson. The appearance of the ladies even before country dances is more ardent than luminous. When the minutes are ended, they go home with their partners to undress, and after a little refreshment return again in the purest innocence of muslin and the simplicity of a night-gown." See Mrs. C. F. Keary's "Correspondence of Francis" and Dr. Busteed's "Echoes from old Calcutta." "The loss," says Mr. Merivale, "of this clever, lively, unselfish and most attached dependent evidently affected Francis keenly. There is something very touching in Macrabie's numerous letters to his chief during his absence, addressed to his 'dearest and best friend', wishing him once more all happiness, and assuring him 'sick or well, I am yours with the truest affection.' He seems not only to have loved his brother-in-law as a friend, but to have worshipped him almost as an idol." Until 1815 Ganjam continued to be the headquarters of the district and a military station, but in that year it was visited by an epidemic of fever which almost depopulated the place and led to its total abandonment in favour of Berhampore. The decaying fort, the pillars of the Judge's house and the old parade ground are all that remain of a station which was once famous for the magnificence of its European residences.

RAJAHMUNDRY CEMETERY NEAR OLD CIVIL COURT. *

[I inspected this cemetery on 9th March 1908 in company with Rev. Mr. Smith, a Missionary who has known Rajahmundry since 1870. The cemetery is at the foot of the old Civil Court, which was condemned in John Kelsall's time and rebuilt for a Railway Engineer's bungalow. The ground next to it is the Mission Bungalow, which with the Club House belonged to Judge Copleston (see No. 2057). Under the old Civil Court House, Smith excavated and discovered the old Sallyport, and used it as a gravestone. The fort was evidently built by mahomedans, as pieces of Hindu temples have been used in constructing it. The cemetery tombs are many of them sunk in the ground owing to the flooding by the river. The site of Somayajulu's godowns belonged to mahomedans and is said to have belonged to Judge Copleston and to have his cattle staked. He was very fond of boating, gardening and breeding cattle. He built the harbour at the foot of the Judge's bungalow. (N. V. Somayajulu, Sep. 3, 1913.)]

		NARSAPORE.*
The old factory of Madapollam stood on a portion of the present town of Narsapore. It was till 1833 the seat of one of the Company's commercial agencies, which was the chief of three in the delta, the other two being Bunder Malunka and Ingeram. Madapollam is now a staple export from India to England; it is a finer kind of white piece-goods, intermediate between calico and muslin.

James Wheeler arrived in India on June 24th, 1675, became a factor in 1680, and was nominated as Chief of Pettipolee in 1684. In February 1685 the Court appointed him Chief at Madapollam; but before their letter arrived, he resigned the service. Subsequently he became one of the Civil Judges in the Admiralty Court and Member of the Fort St. George Council. On August 28th, 1693, he met with his death in an extraordinary manner, being poisoned by the carelessness of Dr. Samuel Brown and his assistant, who powdered pearl in a stone mortar in which arsenic had been beaten and gave it to Wheeler in some potion. Mrs. Wheeler was sister to Ralph Ord, the schoolmaster, and had been bridemaid at Elihu Yale's wedding to Mrs. Hynmers. The name Triphena is uncommon. At Pollicull is a great Pagodae where great numbers of people come to worship once a yeare, and performe their vowes of being hung up by the skin of the back with iron hookes at the end of a long pole turned round upon a post of about 10 or 12 feet high before the pagoda. This feast hapned this yeare the day after we were at Pollicull and some of our people went to it, and saw near 20 people soe hung up by the back before the pagoda at the top of the high pole." This temple of Ramalingeshvaraswamy is still in existence and stands in sight of the quiet enclosure where the Dutch graves lie.

GUNTUR.*

The following inscription was accidentally found in the year 1789 on a stone at the head of a moorish tomb at Guntoor. Over the inscription is a crucifix which leaves no doubt of his religion, notwithstanding the other appearances to the contrary. The structure of the tomb evinces that he might have been a person of distinction.

1794 29th Nov. 1770. CHARLES BABEL .. D.O.M. CHARLES BABEL, dit Zéphyr, génèral des armees de Basalat Zingue, mort à Gontour le 29 Novembre 1770, agé de 39 ans. Requiescat in pace.

Chéri de la Fortune et favori de Mars,
La Victoire suivit partout ses étendards,
D' Hercule il égala les travaux et la gloire,
Mais une mort trop cruelle a trompé notre espoir.

Basalat Jung was brother of Salabat Jung and Nizam Ali. Under the treaty of 1766 the Guntoor or Murtazanagar circar was given to him for his lifetime. He was never without some French officers in his service. The younger Lally otherwise known as Mons. Vesser (Munro's Life and Letters, Vol. III, p. 74) commanded at Adoni and another officer named Bon Enfant was Governor of the Fortress of Kondaveed. A few months after Babel's death M. Mangin, chief of the French factory at Masulipatam, wrote a letter which shows the seamy side of his career of glory. Mr. G. T. Mackenzie found the original in the possession of a native Christian in Sattenapalle taluk and quotes it in full in his Kistna Manual.

Mr. EVAN MARSH WHITE of the Honorable East India Company's Civil Service at Madras, who departed this life on the 17th of August 1796, aged 23 years and 7 months, beloved and regretted by all who knew him. He fell a sacrifice to the incautious use of castor oil nuts. This stone was placed here by the desire of his brother Captain Charles White, of the Bengal Establishment, as a last mark of fraternal affection.

How loved, how honoured once avails thee not,
To whom related, or by whom begot.
A heap of dust alone remains of thee.
'Tis all thou art and all the proud shall be.

Brother of Charles Nicholas White, who married Miss Letitia Mython Williams on February 28, 1792. Captain C. White was lost Novr. 5, 1806 in the Skelton Castle. He joined the Bengal army as a cadet in 1781.

The quatrain is found in Pope's works. It appears on many a tombstone. Cf.. Hervey's Meditations among the tombs, p. 28., where it is quoted from the tomb of Anna Stonehouse (wife of Dr. Stonehouse) at Northampton: Elegy to the memory of an unfortunate Young Lady, lines 71-74.

MASULIPATAM FORT CEMETERY.

The Fort is now a melancholy ruin deserted except for the Port officer's bungalow. Till late in the last century Masulipatam or Bunder, to give it its popular native name, was the seaport where troops disembarked and took the high road for the Deccan stations. The town is a mile and a half from the Fort, a raised causeway across the swamp connecting the two.

The port of Masulipatam known as Bunder is situated at the Fort, the site of which is an island surrounded by swamps on all sides. The Fort is very sparsely populated, practically all the buildings being in ruins, except the Custom House which was the old arsenal and Port Officer's Bungalow. The trade of Masulipatam in Chintzes and coloured cloths was formerly very extensive but when Manchester goods superseded the produce of Indian looms the trade of Masulipatam in these articles disappeared. Masulipatam was until the advent of the Railways the port and depot for Secunderabad, Jalna and Kampti. The creek is very tortuous and the distance from the creek to the mouth of the wharf is nearly 3 miles. The depth on the bar at the mouth of the creek is about 6 feet at high water, spring tides. The port is unhealthy being surrounded by swamps and mangrove trees.

There is an excellent account of Masulipatam in Hervey's "Ten years in India" Volume III, Chapter XI, page 280. "Robson's Pettah" the old mart was then almost deserted. The crowded cemetery is mentioned on page 283. "Salt in the soil renders the mortar crumble into dust." Dutch Government House and tombstones are mentioned on page 285. "Bunder is the only part of the Coast from Cape Comorin on which the sea does not beat with a strong surf even in rough weather". Factory inside the Fort was used as the meeting room of the mutinous officers in 1809. In Hervey's time it was the Brigadier's house. St. James' Church and Miss Robinson's monument are also referred to; hog hunting was then found in abundance near Bunder. Mention is also made of "Dick Sahib" (Alexander) Master Attendant at Bunder: he supplied sailing boats for Hussain Saugor at Hyderabad, some of which were built at Coringa. (Peter Alexander died at Masulipatam May 13th 1819.)

According to Urquhart "his death was occasioned by a malignant fever, the consequence of over-exertion in a survey of the northern tanks, after a severe inundation." He came out to Madras as Government Astronomer and gave the first idea of the Godavari anicut, which Sir Arthur Cotton revived with such admirable success. He was the author of several able reports, one of which, being a journal of the first survey of Coringa harbour (1789), is quoted in Mr. Henry Morris' "Godavari Manual." William Hodges, R.A., in his "Book of Travels in India during the years 1780 to 1783," gives an engraving of the great pagoda at Tanjore stating that the picture is one which he painted from an accurate drawing made by Mr. Topping "an ingenious friend of mine now on a survey of the coast of Coromandel for the E.I. Company". Cecil Smith, C.S., married Miss Eliza Topping, May 10th, 1793.

Captain M. Topping made a chart of the Bay of Bengal in 1788. In 1790 he was appointed to make a survey of the Godavari river, a service which he performed most creditably, and in 1792 he was taking observations for determining the course of currents in the Bay of Bengal.

CYCLONE MONUMENT IN THE FORT, MASULIPATAM.

1934	1st Nov. 1864.	ANTHONY FRUVALL and 30,000 OTHERS.	This monument commemorates the melancholy fate of ANTHONY and MARIA FRUVALL, their sons, JOSEPH, MICHAEL, PETER, MANUEL and DANIEL and their daughter, MARY ANN HONEY and her children JOSEPH and GEORGIANA, and about 30,000 souls, who were all unexpectedly swept into eternity by the ocean wave, which desolated this town on the night of the cyclone of 1st November, 1864. Manuel Fruvall anxious to pay a tribute of affection to the memory of his brother and family and to express his cordial sympathy with his surviving fellow-citizens, has caused this pillor [sic] to be erected on the very spot where his relatives perished (which for years had been their happy home). To perpetuate the remembrance of this awful event and to serve at the same time as a lasting memorial of the grateful feeling with which he and the entire population recognize the unceasing and noble-hearted exertions of their worthy Chief Magistrate,

G. Thornhill, Esquire, to console the survivors and relieve as far as human succor [sic] could avail the distress of the inhabitants.

"O ye seas and rivers bless the Lord.
Praise and exalt him above all for ever."
Dan. III, 78.

The text is from the Song of the Three Holy Children in the Fire which appears in the Apocrypha as part of the third chapter of Daniel. Manuel Fruvall was a shop-keeper, and there are persons of his name buried at Hyderabad. Shortly after the cyclone a traditional land mark at Bunder disappeared in the shape of "Eliza's Tree". Eliza Draper, Sterne's correspondent, had stayed at Masulipatam with her uncle John Whitehill, after her elopement from Daniel Draper's house at Mazagon, Bombay, on July 12th, 1773, and spent much of her time under this tree, which was the general resort of the station "to eat the air" both in her day and long afterwards. An unsupported Masulipatam tradition describes Mrs. Draper as a fair Eurasian with dark eyes. She was the daughter of May Sclater, a Bombay factor, and his wife, a Miss Whitehill, and was born at Anjengo, April 5th, 1744. John Whitehill, her uncle, was chief of Masulipatam from October 28th to December 11th, 1773, and again from April 22nd, 1774, to January 29th, 1776. He acted twice as Governor of Madras for short periods in 1777 and 1780, and obtained an inauspicious notoriety in connection with the Nuzveed Zemindary scandal, which led in 1783 to the introduction of a bill of pains and penalties against him in Parliament. For Eliza Draper, see a good article in the Bombay Quarterly Review for January and April 1857, Vol. V. No. IX (Article VI, an age of progress in Bombay).

Mr. Thornhill died in 1907.

In front of Dedel's tomb (see No. 1936), facing the sea is the Cyclone Monument, an obelisk on a platform approached by steps, with an inscription below the approach (faded) and another above. On right you enter the road passing an arrack shop near which was the Old Flagstaff. Here is the Port Officer's House, formerly the offices of Messrs. Maiden & Co. In front of it is an old gate leading to the wharf on the Canal (Water Gate).

Here stood the old Light House. Further on to the right is an old Dutch Storehouse now used as a Repository for Bones (Granary). It has a long and sloping roof (wooden windows with five stout buttresses) on each side and a double wooden doors. The only living things, inmates in it, are rats, lizards and bats. In a compound overgrown with Croton trees (Telugu Nepala from their having come from Nepal) is the Belfry all that remains of the old Protestant Church in the Fort. Opposite is the old Arsenal now used as a Port Office, Custom House and Police Station. In the Godowns, or vaults below are teak pillars inscribed No.3 M and No. 4 1804 : and on the other side No.2 M 1805 and No. 1 M 1846. A horrible smell of bats pervades the vaults. At the back of the Arsenal is the old Garrison Hospital, bought years ago by the Nizam of Hyderabad when the port was the depot to Secunderabad, Kamptee and Jalna. In former days there used to be a Hotel in the Fort and there are still traces of the Fort Ditch (6th November 1916).

TOMB AT ENGLISHPALEM, MASULIPATAM.

1935 25th Aug. 1701. JOHN ROWLAND .. Here lyeth interred the Body of JOHN ROWLAND, who departed this life the 25th of August 1701.

The first English Settlement at Masulipatam was in 1611. In August 1699 Mr. John Pitt, who died in 1703, landed there as Agent for the new East India Company and assumed the title of President of the Coromandel Coast and Consul for the King of England. In 1700 the old Company resolved to re-establish a Chief and Council there and despatched a force of twenty-four soldiers with a Lieutenant, Sergeant and Corporal. Rowland was probably one of the party. His tomb is in the quarter of the town called Englishpalem, which was the site of the H.E.I.C.'s factory, as Frenchpeta and Valandupalem were of the French and Dutch Companies. There are other tombs there which were repaired and cemented over some years ago. Rowland's is the only inscription now legible. Tradition has it that Captain Alexander Callender (District Manual, pages 61 et seq.) is buried there. He was one of the heroes of Forde's capture of Masulipatam from De Conflans in 1759. At the hour fixed for the assault, he mysteriously vanished, but reappeared when the contest was at its height and fell by the last shot fired. " I think it was lucky for him he was killed for he certainly must have been broke if not worse." (Forde to Clive, June 16, 1759). Callendar was at assault of Nellore 1757.

Captain Francis Rowland (who died Aug. 7, 1767) married at Calcutta, Jan. 22, 1763 Mary Bull widow.

Englishpalem is a suburb of Ramanaidupet so called from Rama Naidu, a Commissariat contractor. You reach it through Butchupet so called from a wealthy renter of the Company's days. You turn off Butchupet: the corner house belongs to Tadikonda Sriramulu and the bungalow opposite to Mylaveram Zemindar. There are 3 walled enclosures: the first with one tomb, the second with three, the centre bearing the inscription to Rowland (8 feet by ten, a large stone like those at Fort St. George: these being in flourishes: inscription occupies half the stone) and beyond it in a vegetable garden another, 3rd enclosure in another cemented tomb. In the distance (to the west of Rowland's) rises the tower of a new temple to Ramudu.

OLD FORT PARADE GROUND, MASULIPATAM.

1936 | 29th Aug. 1624. | JACOB DEDEL | .. Hier leyt begraven den E. JACOB DEDEL in syn leven Raet Van Indien ende opperhooft te water ende te lande over de Nederlantse Negotie deser custe Cormandel overleden den 29 Augusty Anno 1624.

" Here lies buried the Honorable Jacob Dedel, in his life councillor of India and chief by land and by water of the Netherlands East India Company on the Coromandel Coast, died August 29th, 1624."

See the English Factories in India, 1624–29, page 17:—" August 22. This day the principall for the Dutch at Masslapatam [died ?], being named Deadell, hee being in his lifetyme a deadly enimye to our natione, as most of all there principalls are to this daye ". The Dagh Register, 1624–29, (p. 103) gives the date of his death as 29th Aug. (N.S. = 19th Aug. O.S.).

This is the oldest Dutch inscription in the Madras Presidency, if not in India. It is inscribed on a detached tomb in the old parade ground within the Fort with white rails near the small Gunpowder Magazine; not far off is the cyclone monument.

In't Jaar 1624 was hier als Opperhoofd bescheyden de Heer Admiraal Jacob Dedel, die ook in September des zelven Jaars, den weg van alle vleysch ging, en in de Logie, onder het grote pakhuys, dat op het pleyn staat, begraven wierd.

DUTCH CEMETERY AT MASULIPATAM.

Mr. Gordon Mackenzie writes in the "Kistna Manual" as follows:—"The site where the Dutch had their villa residences is still known as Valandupalem, a corruption of Hollandpalem, and their burial-ground is in a corner of the compound of a bungalow behind the Collector's office. It contains several tombstones in very good preservation. The stone is the hard nápa ráyi on which the Hindoos carve their inscriptions, but the Dutch must have had a trained stonemason, for almost every stone bears a coat-of-arms, executed with considerable skill. Even the gravestone of an obscure Schipper or sea captain probably not of a degree to bear coat armour, has an effigy of the deceased with the three-cornered hat and long coat, familiar in old illustrations, reminding one that this Dutch skipper was a contemporary of those bold mariners, Gulliver and Robinson Crusoe. The graves are enclosed by a good masonry wall, but some inscriptions have disappeared before that destructive personage, the village herdboy, who, stone in hand, delights to chip off the raised letters that tell of the virtues of long buried merchants and their vrouws." Other stones have been carried off by dhobies for beating clothes. The five inscriptions quoted by Mr. Mackenzie are reproduced here, together with the complete text of the other Dutch epitaphs, as prepared by Mr. Robert Morris, Collector of Kistna, and Rev. Father van de Westelaken.

Jacob Corbesier—Weird hy, en zijn gehele huysgezin van de pestilentiale ziekte aangetast (Havart, Vol. I, page 174).

Twee Jacobs, Margariet, en Willem rusten heir,
De moeder, voorzoon, de oude, en jonge Corbisier,
De hongers-nood, de pest, en't water deed hun sneven.
(Havart, Vol. I, p. 175).

Margarita Booms: het eerste Hollands kind, dat aan de Caab de Goede Hoop geboren is (Havart, Vol. I, page 174; Cf. Havart, Vol. I, page 25). She married (1) Fredericus Frontenius, Predikant and (2) Jacob Corbesier. Elizabeth Frontenius married Adrian Blokkeel van Zeeland (died May 19. 1687 "in de fleur zijns levens"; first buried in Daatserom and then in Mazulipatam).
William Frontenius: verdronk in het overvaren van de spruyt op groot Golepalem, tusschen Mazulipatam en Palicol den 14. October alle in't Jaar 1687 (Havart, Vol. I, page 174).

The records of Fort St. George mention that in 1687 there was a great contagion at Masulipatam, which may account for some of these deaths. The whole family must have been swept away by the pestilence, for the charitable friend who wrote the inscription did not know their exact ages. Dætcherom and Palicoll are in the Godavari district.

Separated from her husband.
In bitter ruth, bestowed to earth,
Bewailed with flood of tears, according to worth."

Gosewyn Maire buried two little daughters here and a third at Pulicat. The epitaphs of his children interred here are much injured by time. He is described upon them, as "twede persoon van de gandsche custe Cormandel."

COMPOUND OF THE DISTRICT MOONSIFF'S COURT, MASULIPATAM.

In the compound is now a golf links and these two tombs (near each other) adjoin one of the holes in the far corner.

The District Moonsiff's Court-house was formerly the council chamber of the Dutch factory, and there is a tradition that the compound of the factory was used as a burying-ground before the Dutch cemetery at Hollandpalem was opened. It was the District Judge's Court for years, till a building was bought from the Nawab. It has a fine approach of steps on either side and a flat roof.

1954 18th Sept. 1679 and 17th April 1680. MARIA and FREDERICK BRAUN.

Memento mori. Hier leggen begraven MARIA de Bengala en Sr FREDRICK BRAUN ondercoopman, getrouwde luyden, overleden alhier ten contoire den 18en September 1679 en 17en April 1680.

Den ongelukkige, den ouden Frederyk,
Rust onder deze steen, en word het stof gelijk,
Hy was een klugtig mensch, en vol van snaakze kuren,
Hier in de wandeling geheeten vader Frits,
De Dood ontzag hem niet, zy nam een pijl zeer spits,
En ging zijn lijf in d' aard, zijn ziel naar boven sturen.

"Here lie buried Maria of Bengal and Frederic Braun, junior merchant, married folk, who died at the factory here on the 18th September 1679 and 17th April 1680. Poor old Fredrik rests under this slab, turned into dust and slime. He was a droll fellow and full of jokes, and was called for short Father Fritz. Death spared him not but took a very sharp arrow and sent his body to the earth, his soul above."

This is a rare instance of an epitaph in the jocose style, with which may be compared the lines over William Gordon, A.M., who died at Dacca, September 11th, 1817, aged 36.

"If Scotia's music have a charm
Your soul to cheer, your heart to warm,
Pause and do homage to the shade
Of one who in the fiddling trade
Had few compeers, and what is better
He was the essence of good nature."

ARMENIAN TOMBS AT MASULIPATAM.

These are in a corner of St. John's cemetery, in left hand corner in the shade of Mr. Topping's monument, tall square 20 feet high. Two of these Tombs commence with the letters I.O.S. not unlike the S.O.S signal. Eleven slabs, five with inscriptions. Two headed eagle MALACCA PATNAM.

In the "Azdarar," the first Armenian newspaper published at Madras from 1794-6 there are frequent references to the Armenians of Masulipatam and the periodical visits of the Armenian priests of Madras there. At the commencement of the wars with Hyder, the Armenian community of Madras had divided into three parts, one settling at Negapatam and Seringapatam, another at Masulipatam, where they erected a church about 1782, and the third remaining at Madras. See Mr. Seth's "History of the Armenians in India."

1957 8th Mar. 1791. MARY MEKHITHAR ..

This is the tomb of MARY the wife of MEKHITHAR and the daughter of AVIET AGAH of SHAKHATHOON (?). (Died) at Masulipatam in the year 1791, on the 11th Nirhan of the (new era of Azarea) 175.

The new era of Julpha, otherwise known as the "era of Azarea" began from 1616 A.D. and was in vogue only among the Armenians in Persia and India. It gradually fell into disuse and was abandoned in favour of the Christian era during the early part of the 19th century. The national era, which reckons from 551 A.D. is still popular with Armenians all over the world (M.J.S.).

"He was the first man who took upon himself to abolish the custom when payment of kist was made in kind, that the ryot might reap his field when the grain was ripe. RAMNAD.*

The Fort of Ramnad was taken in 1772 and garrisoned by a detachment of the Nawab's troops under Colonel Martinz. They were withdrawn in 1792 and Colonel Martinz was left to command the local corps of armed police called the Revenue Battalion. Lieutenant and Adjutant Clarke was killed in the Fort of Ramnad, of which he was the Adjutant, by the Poligar of Panjalam Coorchy: whom Mr. Jackson the Resident ordered somewhat hastily to sieze "The rebellious black princes to the Southward."

2025 — 8th Jan. 1810. — WILLIAM C. WHEATLEY. — In sure and certain hope of a happy resurrection to eternal life through our Lord Jesus Christ, here reposeth the remains of WILLIAM C. WHEATLEY, who departed this life the 8th January 1810, aged 36 years and 6 months, who with the fewest failings possessed the noblest virtues of the mind. He was a sincere Christian, a true friend, a tender parent, the most indulgent and affectionate of husbands. In testimony of her irreparable loss, this monument is erected as a small tribute to his much esteemed memory and many amiable qualities by his affectionate and disconsolate widow Elizabeth Wheatley.

"Master of Schwartz's English School for Natives 1785, also as a mission agent of Schwartz, Mr. Wheatley after the death of the missionary Jaenicke transacted the secular concerns of the Tinnevelly mission as the gratuitous agent of the Revs. Gericke and Kohlhoff" (W. Taylor's Memoir of the first centenary of the Earliest Protestant Mission at Madras, p. XVIII Appendix, footnote).

2026 — 7th Oct. 1810. — MANUEL MARTINZ .. — Colonel MANUEL MARTINZ, late Commandant of this Garrison and District. Born in March 1740, died on the 7th October 1810, aged 70 years and 7 months, after an honorable service of 50 years.

Colonel Welsh, author of an excellent book entitled Military Reminiscences, has left the following description of this personage: "The Ramnad fort is indeed only interesting to Indians as having been, for upwards of 30 years, the residence of Colonel Martinz of the Nabob's service, who commanded the place, as well as a regularly disciplined provincial battalion, bearing his own name. Of all the hospitable men in the most hospitable country in the world, this extraordinary old gentleman stood foremost. He had a large well-furnished house, and received with a hearty welcome as his guests all who chose to come to it. He had a cellar or godown, as it is there styled, full of the choicest liquors, and amongst the rest, pipes of Madeira of various ages, slung by ropes from the roof, to which he decreed an "Europe voyage" as he called it, every time the door was opened, by making a servant swing them about for some minutes. His wine was never fined, and seldom bottled, but drawn for immediate use. He was a man of few words, and directed his servants by snapping his fingers, or by whistling. A native of Savoy, or Portugal, of a diminutive form, being under the middle size, with a visage more resembling a baboon than the human species, and manners the most uncouth and outré, Colonel Martinz was still the father of his corps, and the kind friend of all his little community; and to sum up his character in a few words, was generally known, much beloved, and wanted only the outward forms of religion to be universally respected and esteemed" (see No. 1838).

Lord Valentia was his guest. Jaenicke in 1791 visited him. Gericke refers to him as the good Colonel. Taylor defends him from Welsh's animadversions.

2027 — 9th Oct. 1810. — JOSEPH BRETON SEWARD. — Major J. B. SEWARD, 24th Regiment N.I., who departed this life 9th October 1810, aged 34 years. He rests in the hope of a joyful resurrection.

He joined the army in 1794 as a Cadet, was Lieut. June 1, 1796, Captain Aug. 13, 1801 and Major in 1809.

He married, August 1804, Miss Sarah Isaacke, who remarried, February 21st, 1814, Capt. W. G. Pearse, of the artillery (see No. 203). "She died on the sea coast near Ramnad."

2028 9th Oct. 1813. EUGENIE CHERRY .. Here lie the mortal remains of EUGENIE, wife of GEORGE F. CHERRY, Esquire, who left this world for a better on the 9th October 1813. Possessed of every amiable quality which could call forth love and esteem and eminently gifted with those qualifications which claim respect, she was an affectionate wife, a faithful friend, and truly good woman. This tribute of respect to her memory is erected by a mournful husband.

Mr. Cherry died at Combaconam, February 10th, 1827. He was eldest son of John Hector Cherry, acting Governor of Bombay in 1802. Mr. Cherry and "Mrs. Bridget Josephine Eugenie Irwin were united in holy matrimony according to the rubric of the Church of England this 2nd day of June 1812 at half past ten o' clock A.M. by R. Andrews, Assistant Magistrate. Witnesses J. S. Sullivan (C.S.), John G. Turnbull (C.S.), Lieutenant Colonel Shakespear, U. O. Shakespear." She was the widow of William Irwin, a Madras civilian, who died childless, September 2nd, 1810, off Malacca. Her previous marriage took place at Karikal, April 20th, 1802, when she is described as Mlle Eugenie du Perron, daughter of the late Colonel du Perron of the Regiment of Pondicherry (No. 837). Her first husband's father was the well-known Eyles Irwin (1751—1817), who married Honor Brooke and who died at Clifton 12th Aug. 1817 in the 70th year of his age. He was dismissed from the service in consequence of the part he played in denouncing the deposition of Governor Pigot, but returned to Madras with Lord Macartney, whom he afterwards accompanied on the embassy to China. He was one of the first to take the overland route. He wrote two volumes of travels and innumerable books of poetry of the age, and was a friend of Hayley. His parents were James Irwin, H.E.I.C.S., of Hazeleigh, and Sarah Beale, daughter of Mary Beale "from St. Helena," baptized at Calcutta, February 28th, 1728, and buried at St. Helena, September 8th, 1792. Sarah Beale married three times: (1) Captain Henry Palmer, of the family of Lord Selborne, a private merchant, who died in 1743; (2) James Irwin, who died June 20th, 1752, by whom she became the mother of three children, James, Sarah Gambier and Eyles; [In 1767, Dec. 2, at Calcutta, Thomas Pearson (See Bengal Obituary 1871) married Sarah Irwin. In 1777, April 22 at Calcutta, Mr. James Irwin, Senior Merchant in the H.C.'S Service married Selina Brooke (the Mrs. I. C. of Mrs. Fay's Letters who suffered shipwreck of the Dartmouth.] and (3) Rev. Robert Mapletoft, Chaplain of Fort William, 1750–77, one of the most interesting persons in the ecclesiastical history of Bengal. Anna Maria the eldest daughter of Rev. Robert Mapletoft and Sarah, widow of James Irwin and of Captain Palmer, married at Calcutta Aug. 25, 1770, Mr. William Wynne Secretary. Captain Robert Patton, A.D.C. to Warren Hastings, married Constantia Adriana Sally Mapletoft July 31, 1772. Mapletoft's portrait hangs in the vestry room of St. John's Church, Calcutta. He went through the siege by Surajah-ud-Doulah, only to die at Fulta of his sufferings. He and his wife are honourably mentioned by Holwell. Mr. Hyde in his "Parish of Bengal" informs us that Mrs. Mapletoft "upheld the cause of the Pretender to her latest days and used, so tradition says, to fling a pinch of snuff over her shoulder in contempt of the Hanoverians, when King George was prayed for in Church". George F. Cherry married secondly Charlotte Hughes, who survived him and afterwards married Richard Pohle. Their son was John William Cherry.

2029 25th April 1817. HENRY MILLER .. Lieut. and Adjutant HENRY MILLER of the 4th N.V. Bn., who served the Honorable Company 28 years. He was a sincere Christian and an affectionate husband, whom it pleased God to call away at the age of 48 on the 25th April in the year of our Lord 1817. This tribute of affection is erected by his disconsolate and affectionate wife Ann Miller.

2030 9th Mar. 1819. FRANCIS WHYTE ELLIS.

FRANCIS WHYTE ELLIS, Esquire, of the Madras Civil Service, whose valuable life was suddenly terminated by a fatal accident at this place, on the 9th March 1819 in the 41st year of his age. Uniting activity of mind with versatility of genius, he displayed the same ardour and happy sufficiency on whatever his varied talents were employed. Conversant with the Hindu Languages and Literature of the Peninsula, he was loved and esteemed by the natives of India with whom he associated intimately, and his kind and playful disposition endeared him to his own countrymen among whom he was distinguished no less by his capacity as a public servant than by a mind fraught with intelligence and information, and alive to every object of interest or utility. The College of Fort St. George which owes its existence to him is a lasting memorial of his reputation as an oriental scholar, and this stone has been erected as a tribute of the affectionate regard of his European and Native friends. John Law, Sculptor, Madras, 1827. (The monument is of marble.)

On the other side of this monument is the inscription in Tamil, a translation of which follows: "Sacred to the memory of him called ELLIS who entered into his rest, to the deep sorrow of the Goddess of Earth, on the 9th March 1819 A.D. (1741 of the Salivahana Era) at Muhavai, otherwise called Ramnad, during one of his tours from Madras to the districts of the South. He was deeply learned in the English language, that language which spreads like a creeper penetrating into every nook and corner of the world. In his profound learning, he shone like a sun, wherever he went, dispelling the darkness of ignorance. He was well versed not only in the 3 kinds of Tamil, but also in Sanskrit. His Tamil was as sweet as fresh ambrosia; he translated into English all that bore upon litigation and morals in the Code of Manu. He wrote a wonderful version in English on the first part of the sacred "Kural" of Tiruvalluvar which treats of virtue. Again, he translated into English inscriptions on stones and copper plates reciting the mutual duties of Kings and of their subjects. He caused 27 wells and tanks to be dug that people might be benefited."

			He arrived in India in 1796 and was all his life a great oriental scholar. Sir Walter Elliott in presenting to the Library of the India Office a valuable Tamil manuscript, the Tembavani of Beschi, obtained by Mr. Ellis gives the following account of him in the pages of the "Athenaeum": "For upwards of twenty years he devoted all his spare time to the cultivation of Sanscrit and the various dialects peculiar to Southern India. Having determined to publish nothing until he had exhausted every available source of information, he had amassed a vast amount of material, the elaboration of which would have shed a flood of light on the still obscure history of that region, and likewise anticipated much of the knowledge of its philology and literature which recent researches have brought to light. When his task was almost completed, he undertook a journey to Madura, the Athens of the South, for the elucidation of some minor details and resided for some time with Mr. Rous Peter, the Collector of the district. During a short excursion to Ramnad, in the same province, he accidentally swallowed some poison and died on March 10th, 1819. No one was at hand who understood or cared for his pursuits. His ordinary tangible property was sold by auction at Madura and Madras under instructions from the Administrator-General, but all his papers were lost or destroyed." Prinsep, Charles C., also gives 10th March 1819 as the date of his death in his 'Record of Services of Madras Civilians.'
			A writer in the Asiatic Journal of Oct. 1819, says: "We believe we may say without fear of being accused, either of partiality or exaggeration, that no European Gentleman was ever so well acquainted with the science of Hindu Law and with the Theology, habits, customs and general literature of the Hindus. Many of our readers remember with pleasure the learned and interesting lectures delivered by him lately to the Literary Society at Madras; he was engaged in active researches to enable him further to elucidate the subjects which those lectures embraced."
			An extract from his readings on Hindu Law is given in the same journal of July 1819.

TELLICHERRY.

Nestling amongst the cocoanut palms that fringe the west coast between Calicut and Cannanore, lies the picturesque little seaport of Tellicherry. One seldom hears or reads of it now-a-days, but in other times it was a place of importance, for it was here, in 1683, that the East India Company founded their first regular settlement on the Malabar Coast, and opened a factory. The building is still standing and is now used as a salt godown.

After the custom of those days a fort was built on the rising ground that runs down to the shore. The garrison were several times in desperate straits, especially when besieged by Haider Ali's lieutenant, Sirdar Khan, for eighteen months in 1780–82, but fortune seems to have favoured them as the fort was never taken. It was during this time, when coming to the assistance of the garrison, that H.M.S. " Superb " was wrecked on the rocks in the roadstead, which form a natural breakwater, but are very dangerous to shipping.

The fort, built of laterite, is still in a fair state of preservation. It is entered from the land side by two flights of steps leading to a quaint archway. On either side there stands a sentry in bas relief who, in his old world uniform, still silently challenges the wanderer. A dwarf lighthouse now crowns the northern bastion and flashes out a warning, or a welcome, to the mariner and fisherman.

Just below, on a small promontory, are the English and Roman Catholic churches, each surrounded by its neatly kept " God's Acre." They recall to one's memory the lines in Jean Ingelow's poem—

" A little country churchyard
On the edge of the cliff by the sea."

Truly an ideal " Garden of Sleep," with its shady casuarinas sighing softly overhead, and the sea singing its lullaby on the shore below. Here are the last resting places of many worthies who served their country by sea and land. Among the memorials is a stone " Sacred to the memory of the Revd. J. J. Martyns, a Wesleyan missionary, formerly a Friar of the Order of St. Francis, who departed this life at Tellichorry on 11th September, 1830, aged 36 years." One pauses for a moment to wonder what caused such a radical change of faith.

The town was once surrounded by a wall which was built, according to Hamilton, who was an outsider and no friend of the factors, " to keep out enemies of the chief's making," but it has now disappeared. When the setting sun is weaving long streamers of amber light athwart the amethyst and red sky, bathing the whole scene in a glow of molten gold, it is difficult to imagine a fairer coast line than the small beach at Tellicherry with its yellow sands, rocks of dull red laterite and background of palms and low wooded hills. It is deserted save by a few solitary fishermen who are landing from a small dugout after a day's toil, and the men and the boat are sharply silhouetted against a sea of red and gold. Then as the light fades and shadows deepen, the sand crabs, with their stilted eyes, come from their burrows and scamper about in search of an evening meal. The bell of the small church on the promontory above sounds the Angelus and then all is still except the ceaseless song of the sea. (J. S. Rush-in Times of India, March 1911).

				Disney commanded the batteries in the attack on Tippoo's earthworks at Seringapatam, April 1799. In November 1799 he was appointed by Colonel Wellesley to the charge of Bednore. Bednore had been captured in 1763 from its Ranee by Hyder. Colonel Wilks in his " Sketches of the South of India " says that a few days after its surrender, some person, speaking of its population, says in Hyder's hearing that it had been intended by the former dynasty to augment the houses to 90,000, the distinctive number which constitutes a town or nugger. " We will not mar the project," said the Sultan, " and it shall be called Hyder Nugger," an abbreviation which was generally shortened into Nugger. Kundapore, the present station of the Sub-Collector of South Canara, is two stages from Bednore.
				A son was born at Cottai Perumbo in the Malabar Province, March 19, 1798; a daughter was born at Tellicherry, March 7, 1799.

ANJENGO FORT.

The best description of Anjengo is that given in the Reminiscences of Colonel James Welsh, who was nearly drowned in the many rivers he had to cross to get there in 1819: "This place once so famous in Eastern History is now fast going to decay; the fort on the sea-shore resembled that of Tuticorine, being a commodious square, with the interior completely occupied by a capital Government House and other public buildings, all of which tottering to their foundations have been lately sold for the materials, and are now dilapidated. I put up in a small Portuguese house on the backwater, immediately under the eastern face of the fort, and said to be the very house in which Eliza Draper was born; but which, like all the rest of the place, bore evident marks of better days. Sic transit gloria mundi. The remembrance of the Abbé Raynal's apostrophe to Sterne's Eliza from his History of India, made me somewhat desirous of beholding this place; but time has now left no trace of a woman, whose name has been most capriciously handed down to posterity by two eccentric priests, who might have employed their talents on a much better subject, so far as we can learn at this distant period. Still, in spite of my disapprobation of Lawrence Sterne's heroine, I found myself mechanically led to seek some relique and actually robbed a broken window of two or three pieces of oyster shell, in memento of my visit to the birth place of Eliza Draper. Another century, and even the site of the house will be washed away, or mingled with promiscuous ruins; while Sterne's writings will last to the end of this sublunary sphere; a proof to after-ages of his transcendant wit, his energetic feelings, and, I am sorry to add, his unfortunate depravity." Eliza Draper was the daughter of May Sclater, a Bombay factor, who married a Miss Whitehill. She was born at Anjengo, April 5th, 1744, and educated in England. On July 28th, 1758, when little more than 14, she married Daniel Draper, Secretary to the Bombay Government, a man 20 years her senior; and in 1765 paid a visit to England with him and her two children. It was there that Sterne met her at Commodore James' house in Soho. Two years later she returned to India and lived with Mr. Draper at Tellicherry and Surat, of which places he was Chief. But her married life was not a happy one, and she eloped from his residence at Mazagon near Bombay on January 12th, 1773, and sought refuge with her maternal uncle at Masulipatam, where she gave her name to Eliza's Tree. She died on August 3rd, 1778, at Bristol and has a monument in the Cathedral cloisters. An article in Hickey's "Bengal Gazette" No. XLV, 1780, describes her as a native of St. Helena, but apparently without foundation. Another celebrity born at Anjengo was the historian Orme, once Fourth in Council at Madras. His father was a physician who rose to be Chief of the factory, and his son was born on Christmas Day, 1728. James Forbes, F. R. S. grandfather of the well-known Montalembert, was Resident of Anjengo in 1772 and describes it at length in his Oriental Memoirs. His engraving of it, taken from the sea, shows the cemetery on the beach with its tall white monuments. Thirty of these have no inscription, but one of them certainly marks the resting place of J. Whitehill, a relative of Eliza's who joined the Company's service as writer. "On the application of Charles Whitehill an old servant of the Company his son John Whitehill entertained a writer in Madras in 1752 and sometimes ago allowed to resign with leave to reside in India as a free merchant is permitted as a particular indulgence to resume his former rank." (Despatches from the Company to George Pigot dated Jan. 23, 1759.) He was Chief of Anjengo prior to 1743, and died in 1769. The massive laterite fort is still standing and in a good state of preservation. Richard Bourchier (1688–1770) was Chief of Anjengo in succession to Whitehill in 1743, appointed 2nd in Council at Bombay 1749 and succeeded Mr. Wake as President 1750. For Anjengo see Lockeyer, Forbes, Bombay Quarterly Review No. XII Oct. 1857 (art. 1. The E.I.C.'s Factory in Malabar). For Sterne's Eliza see article by Lewis Melville in Fortnightly Review for June 1910. XIII, p. 1137.

2133 12th [sic] Sept. 1704. DEBORAH BRABOURN. Here lyes DEBORAH, the wife of JOHN BRABOURN, Esquire, Commodor of Anjengo. She was born the 4 of November 1676, married the 25 of September 1695, deceased Sept. the 2 1704.

Deborah Brabourn's two little children are buried at Fort St. George, 1708. Her husband John Brabourn married secondly Ann Bright, June 28th, 1705 (see No. 50).

2134 1777 .. JOHN TORLEPE .. JOHN TORLEPE.

This appears to have been the name inscribed on the slab opposite Deborah Brabourn's. The stone is now worn perfectly smooth. John Torlepe was second Resident of Anjengo, the Chiefship having been reduced to a Residency in 1776.

So famed for virtue, piety, charity and more,
Formed in mind without a single fault,
Scarce any body is free from envy but in part.
Can any one pass by this lifeless tomb
Without reflecting how short it is to come
That every body must follow her ere soon or late.
To live and be like her may wish to be their fate.

CHETWAI FORT.

2137 — 2nd Feb. 1729. — WILHEM BLASSER — Ter gedagtenisse van den E. WILHEM BLASSER in syn leeven Cappetyn Luytenant en eerste commandant ter fortresse Wilhelmus tot Chettua overleeden den 2 February A 1729.

This slab was recovered from the site of the old fort of Chetwai (about 4 miles south of Chowgat in the Ponnani taluk) by some Moplas who took it to their mosque. Mr. Logan, Collector of Malabar and author of the District Manual, had it removed to the Deputy Tahsildar's office, and it now lies in the compound of that building.

PORTUGUESE TOMBS IN THE CHURCH OF ST. FRANCIS, COCHIN.

The Church of St. Franccis is the oldest church in India. The year 1500 A.D. saw the first arrival of the Portuguese on the Malabar Coast at the port of Cochin. They obtained permission to live on this tongue of land from the Rajah of Cochin; and, to protect themselves, they built a fort and religiously erected a fine Cathedral, which has since been destroyed. When these two works were completed, the Franciscan monks, who accompanied Vasco da Gama to India, built in 1504 A.D. a small wooden church on the maidan for their exclusive use and named it St. Francis. The Portuguese prospered; therefore the Governor, Alphonso Albuquerque, erected the present structure of laterite and cement some time between 1504 and 1524 A.D. On the return of Vasco da Gama in 1524, he had the church enlarged and he himself was buried in it at the close of that year. (Fourteen years afterwards his remains were removed to Portugal by his fifth son, and deposited at Vidigueira: there they remained in 1872 when they were removed to Lisbon).

The church is a large one, being 160 feet long, 70 feet wide and 50 feet high. The walls are made of laterite and are about 4 feet thick. The north and south sides are supported by heavy buttresses on each side. The chancel and nave are the same breadth throughout, but the chancel is separated by four stone steps and a large arch. In the west end is a small gallery. The only church furniture that the Portuguese left were two old brass lamps. In 1663 A.D. the Dutch took Cochin and turned out the Portuguese, and used St. Francis Church as their special place of worship, turning the Cathedral into a storehouse. Unfortunately the Protestant Dutch destroyed all the symbols of Rome, and the old record books were lost. Not content with this vandalism, they used the backs of the old Portuguese monuments to inscribe their own inscriptions, the reason being that there is no stone in Cochin, and it has to be hauled from the hills which are sixty miles distant. The Dutch tenure was not quite so long as the Portuguese, when they, in turn, were ousted by the British in 1795 A.D. Only the Communion Table and an old reading stand, used as a lectern, now remain of the Dutch possession and all their records have been lost.

The interesting feature of the church is the Portuguese and Dutch monuments. These were removed from the floor of the church, to save the inscription from being erased by the feet of the worshippers, and placed among the sides of the north and south in 1884. Thus they can be easily inspected. One curious monument is worth translating; it is as follows:—"Here rests the corpse, the chill, cold bones of the late Mr. Adrian Polvliet, Junior Merchant, and formerly chief of . . . Cannanore. Died 10th Sep. 1799." See No. 2193. It seems the man died under some mysterious circumstances and only his bones were recovered.

Cochin was first visited by Portuguese ships under Admiral Cabral on December 24th, 1500, when the Rajah of Cochin gave the strangers leave to trade. Vasco da Gama came in 1502 and left some of his men. In 1503 Alphonso Albuquerque arrived with a fleet of six sail and commenced the Fort St. Emmanuel. The Franciscan friars who accompanied his expedition built a small wooden chapel, on the site of which the stone church of St. Francis (Francis of Assisi 1182) was afterwards erected. On January 8th, 1663, the Dutch took Cochin and converted the Franciscan church into their own place of worship and turned the cathedral of Santa Cruz into a sugar warehouse. The Dutch occupation lasted 132 years. In 1795, on the conquest of Holland by the French, the place was besieged and captured by Major Petrie. In 1806 for strategic reasons the English blew up the cathedral. The town of Cochin is a mile in length and half a mile in width. It was a prosperous and fine town when in possession of the Dutch.

"Grave of Vasco Fernandes Pimentel of the council of his Majesty having (ruled) three years and five months in this city." Vasco de Pimentel was Governor of Cochin from 1564 to 1567. This slab was long pointed out as the tombstone of Vasco da Gama from the occurrence upon it of the name Vasco. It is broken into two equal halves, the upper portion bearing a coat-of-arms, the lower a much defaced epitaph. The armorial bearings are well preserved and the first quarterings somewhat resemble the original arms of the Gama family which, since Vasco da Gama, are quartered with the Quinas or national banner of Portugal. Vasco da Gama, Conde da Vidigueira, Almirante, Visorei das Indias, died in the town of Cochin on the morning of Christmas day 1524 and was buried with great pomp in this church, then the principal chapel of the Franciscan monastery dedicated to St. Anthony. Fourteen years later the mortal remains of the discoverer of the Cape route to India were removed to Portugal by his fifth son Pedro da Silva da Gama and deposited at Vidigueira. Alexander Lindsay, the first earl of Balcarres, and a devoted adherent of Charles the First, died in exile at Breda in 1659; and his son Colin, the third earl (1652–1722), lived in exile on the continent for many years. The connection of the Mackays with Holland is still maintained, and the heir-presumptive of Lord Reay (Governor of Bombay from 1885–1890) is Baron Aeneas Mackay, a former Prime Minister of the Netherlands and President of the second Chamber of the Parliament.

ALFRED FORBES SEALY, M.A., of Caius College, Cambridge, late Director of Public Instruction in the Cochin State and Principal of Ernakulam College for 25 years. He was the zealous Lay Trustee and finally the beloved Minister of this Church. Endeared to all classes of society by his loving sympathy, he "fell on sleep" suddenly on the first anniversary of his ordination, Sunday 28th October 1894, aged 63 years. This memorial is erected by his friends. It is to Mr. Sealy that the preservation of the Dutch and Portuguese tombstones of Cochin is largely due. He had the different monuments collected and planted against the walls of the church and careful facsimiles of the inscriptions taken.

Vasco Da Gama had four sons: Estevam, Viceroy of India in 1539; Christoval, who commanded the Portuguese invasion of Abyssinia in 1541; Pedro da Silva, Governor of Malacca, the firm friend of Xavier; and Alvaro d' Ataide, who succeeded Pedro in his office. One of these four sons was the father of Francisco, born 1566, and Viceroy in 1597 and 1622 and of Luys, Admiral of the Indies and Ambassador to the Court of France in 1648. Paulo, Vasco's brother, was Captain of a ship on his first expedition to Cannanore in 1497.

TOMBSTONES IN THE STREETS.

There are a number of scattered tombstones used as doorsteps to houses or as platforms to wells. Eight of these slabs are readable. Another slab in front of the Cochin Library is illegible.

A tombstone used as a doorstep has been discovered in a lonley farmhouse situated near to Cassiobury Park, Watford. This stone, a fine piece of Portland, served as a doorstep leading from the dining-room to the conservatory and was lying face downward. It has since been replaced and the tombstone is again fulfilling its somewhat singular purpose. The inscription runs as follows " In loving memory of . . the beloved wife, etc."

The modern cemetery is some distance beyond it and bears this inscription with translations into Malayalam and Hebrew. " This compound wall and the shed inside were erected by Jacob Hai Ephraim Cohen to the memory of his father Mr. Ephraim Jacob Daniel Cohen and his sister Miriam. May their souls rest in peace. Rahanaim. 5658 A.M., 15th Sept. 1898." All Cohens are of the tribe of Levi, the Sacerdotal tribe and their tombs bear the symbol of two hands crossed in prayer. There is another tombstone of interest kept in the lumber godown just outside the White Jews Synagogue. It runs " Asion alaz shel kiar DAVID bar Kiar HAIM CASTEEL niftar belel shelishe shenad atarsu ".—" This is the tomb of David, son of Haim Casteel, who died in the night of Tuesday 5466." ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH AND CEMETERY, OOTACAMUND.

Mr. Marmaduke Lawson, late Government Botanist, was a great lover of the Nilgiris and in a letter quoted by Sir M. E. Grant Duff in his "Notes from a Diary" (1881–86) wrote: "I cannot understand why English people, who live out here, should always be wanting to rush from a lovely place like Ootacamund to spend their winters in the Cimmerian smoke of London, Leeds and Liverpool. The climate of Ootacamund is pleasanter and more healthy than any other in the whole world. The work people have to do out here is very little and very unirksome. The hunting, to judge from the number of limbs which are broken every year, is far better than anything that can be got in England. For sport, there are always plenty of crows and sambur to kill; and when everything fails, the place possesses the prettiest of churchyards." Dodabetta is 8,762 ft. high.

The foundation stone of St. Stephen's Church was laid on 23rd April 1829, the birthday of George IV (vide a large tablet in the porch). Materials such as teak timber of the Lal Bagh Palace at Seringapatam were used for construction. The Church was consecrated by Bishop Turner, Bishop of Calcutta on November 5, 1830 and was called after Mr. Stephen Lushington. It was finished and opened for divine service on Easter Day 1831. It was dedicated to God in honour of St. Stephen. It was generally understood locally that this particular choice of a patron saint involved an inoffensive reference to the founder (Penny's Church in Madras, Volume II, page 321). Captain J. J. Underwood of the Madras Engineers was the architect. The cemetery was closed in 1881.

The tomb is no longer in existence. Urquhart mentions Beale and prints an elegy of thirteen stanzas to his memory. From the words " Beale, firm asserter of our rights, is dead " it seems probable that he took a prominent part in the " half batta " controversy of 1784.

Sacred to the memory of JAMES IVES, Esq., late Lieutenant-Colonel in the Honourable Company's Madras Establishment, who after a period of service of 21 years departed this life on the 16th of October 1819, aged 37 years. Having distinguished himself at the head of his corps in the memorable action at Mahidpore, he fell a victim to the return of fever with which he had been attacked during the zealous discharge of his duty in the field. This tomb was erected by his disconsolate widow, Maria Wilhelmina as a tribute of affection to his virtues.

He married Miss W. Soutters, September 8th, 1810, at Cochin. She had a daughter born on May 3, 1817, at Cochin. (Asiatic Journal, January 1818.)

KRISHNAGIRI.

On the 12th November 1791 Kistnagherry Fort was attacked by Colonel Maxwell (No. 1217) who was repulsed with the loss of Lieutenant Forbes (No. 190) and Lieutenant Lamont, both of the 74th Regiment, killed. The Fort was surrendered by Tippoo under the 1792 treaty with the rest of the Baramahal.

There are 19 tombs in the cemetery, three to children, and some with an enclosure now gone. All of them are without inscriptions. One must certainly commemorate Captain Harry Smith (No. 2351), Commandant of the Garrison, who with many others was blown up at midday on April 25th, 1801, by the explosion of the magazine (see Welsh's " Military Reminiscences," Vol. 1, p. 306). The ruins of this magazine are still visible on the top of the Rock. Cf. the blowing up of the powder magazine at Trichy. in 1763 (Schwartz's life by Pearson, H. Vol. 1, p. 149) among them 3 very pious Europeans.

2360 29th Nov. 1811. ROBERT MONTAGUE STRANGE Near this was interred the body of Colonel R. M. STRANGE in the service while living of the East India Company. Ever kind to the natives, himself beloved by the army to which he belonged, dear to relatives, connections and acquaintances. He died after a short illness at Ryacotta, the 29th of Novem ber 1811. An object of heartfelt regret with all to whom he was in any degree known. This stone is inscribed by brothers, who, cherishing his memory, thus record his worth.

A very fine raised stone. Colonel Welsh stayed in 1809 in his house built by Colonel Doveton, a former commandant and afterwards Commander-in-Chief of Madras. "If there ever was a pure heart in wretched sinful man Bob Strange possessed it. He was very abstemious; an early riser and great walker; he required no conveyance on a journey; night or day was perfectly the same to him; and he would cheerfully walk 20 or 30 miles to breakfast in a morning, and return the same night, as a matter of course. His mild and gentle manners particularly endeared him to the natives; and when walking out, he always carried some money and little scraps in his pocket, to give the little children he was sure to meet in his perambulations. Still, he was not a soldier; he could not drill; and a smart dress was his abomination; but he was of more consequence, in my estimation, than 1,000 soldiers, raising the European character wherever he went and compelling the natives to love their usurping rulers." He was the youngest son of Sir Robert Strange, the engraver. His brothers were James Strange, C.S. (1751–1840), and Sir Thomas Strange, C. J. of Madras (1756–1841). Colonel Strange married, November 1810, Miss E. M. Hargrave (see No. 2547).

2369 20th April 1869. CHARLES FREDERICK CHAMIER. CHARLES FREDERICK CHAMIER, Esq., Civil and Session Judge of Salem, with good will doing service as to the Lord and not to men. Ephes. VI. 7.

He married, June 26th, 1849, Florence Letitia, daughter of Captain T. Brown, Bombay Army. He belonged to a family of civilians, his father and grandfather having been Secretaries to the Madras Government under Lord Macartney and the Marquis of Tweeddale. Chamier is an old Madras name, which appears in ancient days. John Chamier was in the service from 1772 to 1809, and a Henry Chamier from 1812 to 1848. The Madras Courier of the 16th January 1793 states that the wife of Mr. John Chamier presented him with a son, name not mentioned. It was possibly Henry Chamier, whose son Colonel Stephen Henry Edward Chamier was Inspector General of Ordnance from 1881 to 1886 when he retired. He died at the age of 76. He succeeded Colonel "Bob" Cadell. A road in Madras perpetuates the memory of Chief Secretary Chamier. George Fitz William Chamier, Bo., C.S., 1810–18, died at Salsette, January 3rd, 1818, and William Chamier, Bo., C.S., 1821–29, at Surat, 30th June, 1829. TRANQUEBAR.

Tranquebar, in Tamil Tarangambadi, " the village by the sound of the wave," dates from 1618. A Danish East India Company was founded at Copenhagen in 1612, and six years later, the first Danish merchantman the Oeresund landed in India. Its Captain, Roelant Crape, was a Dutch sailor, who had been at the court of Tanjore in his youth. He was pursued from Ceylon by the Portuguese and wrecked off the coast of Coromandel. With a few of his crew he escaped to the Naik Raja of Tanjore, who befriended him and gave him the site of Tranquebar, 5 miles long by 3 broad. Crape was then joined by a small fleet under Admiral Ove Gedde, a youth of 24. Gedde, whose manuscript diary of his voyage has been published by Schlegel, laid the foundations of the Dannesborg and of the Church in the Fort, of which the first pastor was Peder Sorenser Aale, who died some years afterwards at Tranquebar. In 1624 the Company made over their territory and charter to King Christian IV in liquidation of a debt. In 1845 Christian VIII ceded his Indian possessions to the East India Company for £120,000. Tranquebar is in many respects the most interesting old European town in India. It is surrounded by a fine Fort wall in remarkable preservation. The carriage road enters through an imposing gateway bearing the date 1792 and the monogram of his most Christian Majesty of Denmark. The principal thoroughfares still retain their ancient names of King Street and Queen Street, and the houses, which are solid and well-built, have no compounds, but adjoin each other. Some of them contain old fashioned cisterns to catch the rain, and tradition has it that the Danes used to keep their drinking water sweet by stirring it occasionally with a red-hot crowbar. On the south side of King Street is the Lutheran Mission Church called New Jerusalem, and on the opposite side lies the English Church or Zion, formerly reserved for the official Danish community, as opposed to Ziegenbalg's native congregation. Inside Jerusalem's Kierke is an altar screen with symbolic devices and a text of seven lines in Portuguese followed by twenty-four lines in Tamil. " De tal maneira amou Deus ao mundo, que deu a seu Filho unigenito, para que todo aquelle que n'elle cré nao pereça, mas tenhas a vida eterna. S. Joao cap. 3 ver. 16. Zum Tische des Herrn. Aufgerichtet 1807. Erneuert 1850." Upon the communion table are two silver candlesticks inscribed " Christian Hansen Pauch. Anno 1688. Anna Maria Erichs Dotter." The pulpit is the identical one from which Ziegenbalg and Plütschau preached in periwigs: the high chairs were made by the Moravian brethren, who so vainly attempted to colonise the Frederic's Islands of Nicobar: the last century hymn books are in Portuguese, printed at " Trangambar, na officina da Real Missao de Dinamarca " and contain an " oraçao por a illustrissima Companhia da India Oriental." Zion Church possesses other curious relics of the past. Its spire, shaped like a soldier's spiked helmet, has a bell with the date 1752: and within the vestry hangs an extraordinary painting of the Last Supper, coloured in relief upon wood after the manner of Albrecht Dürer with the motto " Tu vis esse meus per conam, Christe, sacratam; Fac ut in aeternum sim mancamque tuus." The Dannesborg, recently used as a district jail, is a massive building facing the sea. In one of its disused chambers can be seen the date 1677 and the arms of Christian the Fifth. Another piece of the old wall preserves the escutcheon of the Danish Company (Asiatiske Handel) with the figure of an elephant underneath. There are as many as five cemeteries in the town, containing inscriptions in nine languages, Armenian, Danish, Dutch, English, French, German, Latin, Portuguese and Swedish. A chalice in Zion church bears the inscription " Zion's Kirkes Alter Begueri—alter beaker) Tranquebar Forfoediset Anno 1689 af H.C. Winther i Kiobenhavn."

In Ringeltaube's life by W. Robinson of Salem is an old picture of Tranquebar from the sea (1804).

			Commandant Brun, the layer of this foundation stone, was the successor of Johann Sigismund Hasius, who had imprisoned Ziegenbalg and told him " that Heaven was very high above his head and Copenhagen very far off." A deed of amnesty between them was drawn up on October 15th, 1714, and signed on one side by J. S. Hasius, Andreas Krahe (Kragh?), C. Brun, Jacob Pauch (Hauch?) and on the other side by Ziegenbalg and Gründler. Hasius was recalled by the company in 1716, the year Ziegenbalg returned from Europe. See Fenger's " History of the Tranquebar Mission " for a very curious account of these times. He reprints Ziegenbalg's sermon preached at the foundation of the Church, on the text 1 Corinthians 3.11.

2375 23rd Feb. 1719. BARTHOLOMEW ZIEGENBALG. In spe gloriosæ resurrectionis quiescunt hic ossa beati BARTHOLOMEI ZIEGENBALG Sacr. Reg. Maj. Dan. et Norw. missionarii ad Tamulos, viri doctissimi gravissimi fidelissimi et per XIII annos ecclesiæ evangelicæ ex iisdem collectæ Præpositi præclarissimi nati 24 Jun. 1683, denati 23 Feb. 1719.

Native of Pulsnitz in Saxony, graduate of Halle; arrived 1706. Præpositus is the translation of the German "Propst" or Provost. As Ziegenbalg was the first to preach in New Jerusalem Church, so he was the first to be buried there. He lies on the right hand of the altar, opposite his colleague Gründler. Their places are marked by thin copper-plates let into the wall, with Latin inscriptions from the pen of Schultze, who was like Schwarz a native of Sonnenburg in Brandenburg. The Latinity is not remarkable, except for the use of the ante-classical word "donatus," which is found all over Tranquebar. Ziegenbalg is the father of Protestant Missions in India. His name, though little known among Englishmen to-day, was once received with enthusiasm in London. He had audiences of King George in 1716, and preached many times in the Chapels Royal and Savoy. The S.P.C.K. gave him a congratulatory address in Latin, to which he returned a reply in Tamil. Encouraging letters were written to him by Dr. Wake, Archbishop of Canterbury, and one communication, received in India after Ziegenbalg's own death, bears the following testimony to his apostolic usefulness: "I consider that your lot is far higher than all church dignities. Let others be prelates, patriarchs and popes; let them be adorned with purple and scarlet, let them desire bowings and genuflexions. You have won a greater honour than all these and a far more magnificent recompense shall be given you." An account of Ziegenbalg is given in the first number of the "Calcutta Review."

2376 21st Mar. 1720. JOHN ERNST GRÜNDLER. In spe futuræ resurrectionis hic placide quiescunt exuviæ beati viri multum venerandi Magistri JOHANNES ERNST GRÜNDLER per XI annos regii inter Tamulos missionarii et ecclesiæ Christi ex iisdem collectæ pastoris fidelissimi nati 17 Apr. 1677 denati 21 Mart 1720.

Native of Weissensee, graduate of Halle; arrived 1709. After Ziegenbalg's death his mantle fell upon Gründler, a woolcarder by origin, who survived him only for one year and was succeeded by Schultze, the founder of the Protestant Mission at Madras. Plütschau had returned to Europe in 1711 and never came out again. Plütschau was native of Wesenberg in Mecklenberg; graduate of Halle; arrived 1706; invalided 1711. He died as pastor of Beyenflieth in Holstein about 1746. Schultze died 1st May 1799: "he must have lived 57 years after quitting India and 80 from the time of first coming" (Taylor, p. 85). He succeeded Treylinghanson in 1788.

and died regretted. To record his worth this monument is erected as affection's last sad tribute by his sorrowing daughter.

Born at Wusterhausen in Brandenburg, June 22nd, 1767. Cammerer's first arrival at Tranquebar was by swimming ashore; the ship or boat being wrecked (Robinson's life, p. 39). It was in his time "that the Mission in Tranquebar, the mother of all others, sank down to be a small institution in one place only," in other words it was a sleepy hollow. He had a son of the same name, who entered the S.P.G., and whose daughter married firstly H.G. Smith, C.S., and secondly A. L. Lister, C.S. A daughter of Mrs. Smith married Lieutenant-Colonel Rogers Harrison, I.M.S. These are evidently the old ladies alluded to in a former edition of Murray's "Handbook to Madras." "The Danes lived at this place to a great age. And it used to be a pleasant sight some years ago to see, as the sun was about to set, the very old ladies coming out in their best attire to call on their neighbours." Cammerer's first wife died February 10, 1805, in the prime of life.

Æret elsket og begrædt af enhver som kiendte hendes ædle Hjerte og retskaffne Vandel, thi huuslig omhygelighed og utrattet Velgiörenhed var hendes Daad, Tækkelighed omhed og Gudsfrygt hendes Hæder.

"Look with reverence on this tomb, for beneath it lie the remains of a virtuous woman, tender friend, careful mother, and true wife, A. E. Pingel, born Née Rostmand the 20th March 1757. She was married first to J. A. Seieroe, factor, and secondly to J. C. Pingel, factor. By these two husbands she became the mother of 13 children, of whom five survive. On the 14th March 1795 she died. All who knew her noble heart and upright conduct honour and love her with tears. Her deeds were domestic carefulness and indefatigable charity; her thoughts were tenderness and piety."

Johan (or Jan) Abraham Sejeroe was the first English Military Officer.

2435 18th April 1872. MARIA BARBARA STEVENSON.

MARIA BARBARA, widow of E. W. Stevenson, second daughter of Colonel Mathias Jurgen Von Mühldorf, Royal Engineer of Denmark, born in 1791, died 18th April 1872.

E. W. Stevenson was Master Attendant at Porto Novo and Cuddalore, where he died in 1823. There is a tradition that Colonel Mühldorff was a son of Frederick V of Denmark and aided the Crown Prince and the Queen-Mother in their conspiracy to depose Struensee, Christian VII's Prime Minister and Court Physician, and that he was sent abroad in consequence. Struensee intrigued with Christian VII's Queen Caroline Matilda, grand-daughter of George II. He was beheaded, and she retired to Zell with George III's permission. Mühldorff was born, December 5th, 1750 in Copenhagen. He received a military training and was commissioned as a Second-Lieutenant 1769. He applied 1777 for the post as Engineer of the fortress Tranquebar, and was in November 1777 made a Premier Lieutenant. He sailed from Denmark Dec. 9, 1777 on the "Rigernes Onske" and arrived at Tranquebar July 23, 1778. Here he spent his life, being used both in military and civil appointments. In 1791 he was made a Major and Commanding Officer of the Tranquebar troops. He became a member of Council 1792. He was sent to Denmark 1801 to report the capitulation of 1801. He retired 1804 and went home 1805, but returned in May 1807 and arrived at Tranquebar Dec. 31, 1807.

He married Jan. 27, 1780 Maria Barbara Sundt (daughter of Michael Sundt and Agathe, née Lem). She was born about 1765, and died June 24, 1814 ("49 years old"). They had 14 children, of whom at least six died as infants.

In his old house at Tranquebar is a curious arch, evidently a copy of some arch in Denmark, with the inscription, "D.E.M.E.P. anno 1791," and Mühldorff used to say that these five letters were the initial letters of the sentence which was the secret of his life. He died July 23rd, 1836, and lies buried in what was then called the New Cemetery in a nameless tomb near his wife, Agatha née Sundt, whose sister married Blücher's brother. Mühldorff had a brother Count Danneskjold Samso, a title so ancient that he was considered the senior nobleman in Denmark. The Count's estate was named Holme-gaard. The Mühldorff blood runs in several Madras families through the Colonel's five daughters (see Nos. 1139, 1246 and 2534).

GOANESE CHURCH IN TRANQUEBAR FORT.

"Tranquebar had in 1663 a Catholic Church situated near the principal gate of the Fort. It is there still".

Ringeltaube visited this Church in Tranquebar "close to our house" dedicated to Xavier. Father Laurence an Italian and a worthy man was in charge Jan. 17, 1805. From it he went to the compound of the Moravian Mission in former days—in other hands now—a lovely gethsemane (Father Laurence, superior of the Roman Catholic Church died Feb. 1810).

2440 28th Mar. 1779 and 5th June 1782. FRANCISCA ABBESTEE. ROSALIA STEVENSON. Hic jacent duae sorores FRANCISCA ABBESTEE nata Lange d. XV Jan. MDCCXLIX, obiit d. XXVIII Mart. MDCCLXXIX; et ROSALIA STEVENSON, nata TOURNAC d. IV. Jun. MDCCLIV obiit d v. Jun MDCCLXXXII.

Abbestee, who married Miss Lange, December 28th, 1768, was Chief Justice of Tranquebar, 1761–75. Miss Tournac married firstly Colonel Johan Jorgen Fischer, member of Council, Tranquebar who died at Tranquebar Aug. 15, 1778 and whose sister Wendela (1730–61) became the first wife of the Rev. J. Z. Kiernander (1710—99). She married secondly on Feb. 24, 1779 Mr. Edvard Stevenson, merchant in Tranquebar, the brother of Daniel Stevenson (1748—1806), and of Major-General James Daniel Stevenson, a friend of the Duke of Wellington's, who fought at Seringapatam and died February 14th, 1805 (see No. 1261). A Mrs. Tournac and child were among those at Calcutta who escaped to the ships at Fulta and were there in July 1756. John Lewis Tournac, her husband, sent provisions to Fulta for the English and seems to have been a French subject.

It appears on the gravestones of John Carvalho (1723) at Fort St. George and of John Ross, merchant (1751) in the Charnock mausoleum at Calcutta, where an English rendering is appended from Francis' translation (the father of Sir Philip Francis): "With equal pace impartial fate Knocks at the palace and the cottage gate; Nor should our sum of life extend Our growing hopes beyond their destined end." Jan Corte married (1) Maria Lindeborn who died at Port Novo on Jan. 27, 1686 ætat 27. 6. 1. and (2) Elizabeth Turenhout widow of Caspar Nilo, who died 17 Nov. 1687. cf. Urquhart's Oriental Obituary Vol. III, p. 162: "To the memory of John Campbell M. D. Assistant Surgeon, in the Service of the Honble E.I. Co. who was carried off by a fever at the General Hospital, Presidency, on the 19th Nov. 1803 at the early age of 24."

KARICOP CEMETERY, NEGAPATAM.

The Dutch Church at Negapatam is a Government Church vested in the Madras Government by right of capture. The Wesleyans eventually got possession of the said large Church and were not ousted without difficulty at a much later period. (Taylor, p. 219). In 1758 Kohlhoff and Schwartz visited the Dutch Lagarette at Negapatam and preached in the town to nearly 200 Germans of different ranks.

The Dutch Governor promised to build a Church for native Christians which he did a year later. Thirty-two pagodas the Dutch (including soldiers) gave to the missionaries.

There is a story of one of the largest tombs here that it contains a Dutch Sea Captain buried sitting in his chair and hung in chains (J. Inglis, Salem 31st August 1906).

			A very large domed tomb. There is an escutcheon in the church to this lady. A female figure is represented standing on a nautilus on the sea, and a coronet surmounts the coat of arms inscribed "Nata 21 September Ao 1687, obiit 13 November 1709." The verses here run: "This tombstone covers the body of Lady Van Steelant with four of her offspring. What was mortal of her becomes dust in this grave. What was immortal is with God and sings his holy praise."

It is curious to find the rank of Captain-Lieutenant among the Dutch as among the English. Lord Valentia found this lady (Feb. 7, 1803) a very civil and respectable old Dutchwoman. "A most excellent dinner was prepared and she joined me afterwards in a bottle of her own madeira and my own claret. She spoke English and was a very pleasant companion". She had a descendant who kept an inn at Sadras, where Colonel Welsh stayed in 1802. "Nona Mallee or Miss Isaacks is one of the greatest curiosities in the East. This enormous spinster had formerly weighed 21 stone; but at this period she was by severe illness reduced to 15; and she shortly afterwards paid the debt of nature. Having relations at Negapatam, she had occasionally performed the journey in a palanquin made expressly for her use, and, it was asserted, was then carried by no less than 36 bearers; while other Europeans had but twelve, and many a fat Brahmin was actually moved about at the same rate by four; the sacred character of the latter no doubt lightening the apparent weight; but could an European mountain, though a young one, which her native appellation (Nona Mallee) indicated, be carried by fewer sable and imbecile emmets? This young lady kept the inn or hotel at Sadras, where she lived well herself, and never starved her customers; but being in the habit of favouring them with her company at meals, the sight of her shrivelled form, her skin hanging in flakes, for all the world like the hide of a young rhinoceros, was not exactly calculated to improve our appetites at the dinner table."

2506 9th Mar. 1794. FRANCIS SWAIN WARD. Sacred to the memory of Lieut. Colonel FRANCIS SWAIN WARD, who departed this life the 9th March A.D. 1794, aged 60 years.

A well-known artist. He advertised as follows in the "Calcutta Gazette" of March 4th, 1784. "To the lovers of arts in India. Captain Francis Swain Ward, of the Madras Establishment, whose paintings and drawings of Gentoo architecture are well known, and esteemed in Europe and India, having been solicited by many of his wellwishers to publish his work, which are of too extensive a nature for him to effect without support, makes known, through the channel of this paper, his intention of publishing by subscription twelve views of curious buildings all taken on the spot by himself. They are proposed to be on a large scale and will be engraved by the first masters in England. The price will be 25 pagodas or 100 rupees for each set. Subscriptions will be received by Mr. J. M'Clary or at the shop of Messrs. Williams and Rankin, in Calcutta. The publication consists of the following Nos.: 1. The grand entrance of the Pagoda of Seringham. 2. Carey's Good old days of the Hon. J. Company: "Of F. S. Ward there is little to say except that he was born in London in or about 1750 [?] and gained some reputation as a landscape painter. His fancy was to delineate old castles and mansions. He travelled about the countries and made sketches from which he painted pictures both in oils and in water colours. The E.I. Co. often generous in such matters took him into employ later on in his life, and he came out to Calcutta and made many drawings of temples and tombs; and perhaps also some of the English houses such as Belvedere, which if it was as Mrs. Fay says 'a perfect bigon' would have fallen in with Ward's tastes. He died in 1805 [?]."

Francis Swain Ward:—Captain September 16, 1773; Lieutenant-Colonel April 17, 1786; pensioned, 1787.

In June 1806, Mrs. Ward, widow of the painter, died at Negapatam—See No. 2523.

SWARTZ'S CHURCH, TANJORE.

In the little Fort, close to the Shivagunga Tank. Over the Fort gate is the date 1777 and on the facade of the church is the inscription "Haec domus precum constructa est A.D. 1779." The small house adjoining the church is said to have been Schwarz's habitation. The name given by him to this church was Christ Church. He also built St. Peter's Church. Major Stevens built a temporary building for service in the large fort costing him 100 star pagodas. "On the 10th March 1779 the General [Munro] laid the foundation stone 9 feet deep and the garrison being assembled I [Swartz] preached a short sermon from the 67th Psalm": (Pearson's Life of Swartz, Vol. I, p. 341). "The originating cause for the building of a Church at Tanjore was because a European Regiment was stationed there and Government gave the ground and materials for building so much the more readily because of that circumstance" (Taylor, p. 64).

2545	13th Jan. 1780.	SOPHIA MAITLAND ..	Here lies the body of Miss SOPHIA MAITLAND, who died on the 13th of January 1780, in the 17th year of her age. Baptised May 26th, 1763, at Fort St. George, daughter of Lieutenant Richard Thomas Rokas Maitland, who married Miss Jane De-Morgan, February 3rd, 1761, and died of wounds at the siege of Madura 1764. Their other children were Catherine (b. 1762), who married firstly John Taylor, her cousin (see No. 1633) on 2nd February 1779, and secondly Benjamin Roebuck, C.S. (No. 2802); and Richard (b. 1764), who married a daughter of George Westcott, C.S. (No. 306). Jane De Morgan (1742–1818) married secondly in 1767 Dr. Duncan Buchanan. In Calcutta April 20, 1765 Thomas Charlton married Elizabeth Maitland, widow.
2546	23rd May 1789.	SARAH BURROWES ..	Mrs. SARAH BURROWES, the beloved wife of Thomas Burrowes, Major of Cavalry; she died the 23rd May 1789. Her life was distinguished by every virtue which flows from a native purity of mind and a just sense of religion. Nor was she less admired for her taste and proficiency in the fine arts, than respected and beloved for all those amiable qualities, which truly enrich the female character and constitute the chief ornament of the wife, the parent and the friend. "This lady died on the 22nd May 1789 at Adriapatam where she had gone some weeks before in pursuit of health, two days after the birth of a daughter who lived only a few hours." (Urquhart Vol. I, p. 111.) His first wife Mary Burrowes died at Madras, April 19th, 1778, aged 22 years, and is buried in St. Mary's Cemetery (No. 138). Burrowes resigned in 1790.
2547	15th Mar. 1791.	MARGARET STRANGE. Impressed by the most lively sense of those distinguished and most amiable talents which endeared the wife, companion and friend, he, with the trembling hand of true affection, inscribes this marble to her memory. "Mrs. Strange is a very lively lady and that keeps up her spirits under her severe complaint. Another would perhaps not be able to stir from her couch"—Schwartz's Life by Pearson, Vol. II, p 231, Tanjore, July 28, 1790.

At Trichinopoly (S.P.G. Church Fort) is buried the infant son of Mr. and the Honorable Mrs. Strange died January 26, 1811.

James Strange (1754-1840), at this time Paymaster at Tanjore, was brother to Sir Thomas Andrew Strange, first Chief Justice of Madras (1800-1817). He was a witness at the latter's marriage in October 1806 to Louisa, youngest daughter of Sir William Burroughs, Judge of the Calcutta Supreme Court. Another brother Colonel R. M. Strange died at Royakotta, November 29th, 1811. Their father, the well-known artist and engraver Sir Robert Strange, fought at Culloden in 1745. The tale is told how after the battle he fled to Edinburgh, where his fiancée Isabella Lumisden concealed him in her hoop, while the house was being searched for rebels. Her brother Andrew Lumisden was private secretary to the Stuart princes. James Strange married secondly in 1798 Anne, second daughter of the first Viscount Melville and widow of Henry Drummond the banker. She died January 1852. Thomas William Lumisden Strange, born January 4th, 1808, was the eldest son of the Chief Justice and a Madras Civilian from 1825 to 1863. He died in England, September 3rd, 1884.

2543 13th Feb. 1798. CHRISTIAN FREDERIC SWARTZ. To the memory of the Rev. CHRISTIAN FREDERIC SWARTZ, born at Sonnenburg of Neumark, in the Kingdom of Prussia, the 26th October 1726, and died at Tanjore the 13th of February 1798, in the 72nd year of his age. Devoted from his early manhood to the office of missionary in the East, the similarity of his situation to that of the first preachers of the Gospel produced in him a peculiar resemblance to the simple sanctity of the Apostolic character. His natural vivacity won the affection, as his unspotted probity and purity of life alike commanded the reverence of the Christian, Muhammadan and Hindu; for sovereign princes, Hindu and Muhammadan, selected this humble pastor as the medium of political negotiation with the British Government, and the very marble that here records his virtues was raised by the liberal affection and esteem of the Rajah of Tanjore, Maharajah Serfojee.

The proper spelling of the name is Schwarz, not Swartz. The monument in this church is by Flaxman. The aged missionary is represented upon his death-bed and on his left stands Raja Serfojee, his pupil, with two attendants, while on the right is the missionary Kohlhoff. Schwarz was the son of a simple German brewer and baker. He entered Halle University in 1740 and became intimate with Hermann Francke and Schultze, who inspired him with a desire to go to India. He landed at Cuddalore in 1750 and joined the Tranquebar mission. In 1760 Schwarz went to Ceylon. On his return, he learned that a wife was being sent out for him, a Miss Anna Sophia Pap. On her arrival he refused to marry her, not wishing to change his state. Anna Pap refused to return to Europe and was the guest of Maderup. She was married to a Lieutenant.

In 1768 Schwarz was chaplain to the Company's troops at Trichinopoly and remained there till 1778, when, leaving Trichinopoly in charge of Pohle, he took up his residence at Tanjore by Raja Tuljajee's request. About this time he was entrusted by Governor Thomas Rumbold with a mission to Hyder, who received him courteously and kept him three months at Seringapatam. Schwarz's report was never published, but the details of his mission may be found in Pearson's "Memoir" and in Wilks' "Historical Sketches of the South of India." Previous to the treaty of Mangalore the Government sent him on another embassy to Tippoo, who, unlike his father, refused to see him. In 1787 Raja Tuljajee adopted a minor Serfojee and made Schwarz his tutor. Serfojee was the last representative but one of the Mahratta dynasty of Tanjore, founded by Shahjee, father of the great Seevajee, who obtained Tanjore as a jaghire. It is of Serfojee that Lord Valentia speaks with such praise in 1804 and Heber in 1826. Heber says that he quoted Fourcroy, Lavoisier, Linnaeus and Buffon fluently, that he had an accurate judgment of Shakespeare, that he wrote tolerable English poetry, and "was respected by the English officers in the neighbourhood as a really good judge of a horse and a cool, bold and deadly shot at a tiger." His statue by Flaxman is in the Durbar Hall. He stands with his hands joined as if in prayer and wears the curious three-cornered hat used by the Tanjore princes. He was succeeded in 1832 by his son Seevajee, who died childless in 1853.

The writer appears to have composed his elegy at Gingee to whose "horrid hills" he more than once refers and concludes with the sentiment "Dunwoody, Dods, and I, shall meet again." Munro writes as follows to his brother James from Sankridroog, 25th January 1796:—"My attachment to India has been much weakened since you left it by the loss of many valuable friends. You already know of James Irving; but Dods, the oldest and dearest of them all is now gone: he was my tent mate at Conjeeveram in 1780 and from that time till the day of his death my affection for him grew stronger and stronger: he was carried off in the course of a week by a hill fever which he had caught at Gingee, . . . no year ever passed that he did not contrive to spend several weeks with me. He was going to see some friends at Trichinopoly, and from thence had promised to come through the Baramahl on his way to Arnie. I wrote to him that I had a tent ready for him; but my letter came back under a cover, informing me of his death". (Gleig, Vol. I page 181). The peculiarly melancholy loss of this inestimable life to his family is, and ever must continue, a source of the deepest affliction. For in him do they mourn the affectionate husband, excellent parent and faithful friend. In every respect, O! how truly worthy was he of imitation. 2576 — 31st July 1839. — HENRY WILLINS .. — Lieutenant HENRY WILLINS, of the 30th N.I., aged 29 years.

2577 — 25th Jan. 1844. — MARTHA SAYER .. — MARTHA, relict of the late Mr. STALKER SAYER (formerly resident at Palghautcherry), who departed this life on the 25th day of January A.D. 1844, aged 69 years. This monument has been erected by her surviving daughters, Mesdames Poulson and Madden as a memento of their affection.

Colonel Welsh writes of her as follows : " Mrs. Sayer the industrious widow of a Conductor, who had long been stationed at Paulghaut, and who was a capital upholsterer, had been for some years employed by us to make up articles of furniture ; which she sends to all parts of India ; and sometimes I blush to own, gets nothing but empty promises of payment in return. Her furniture, generally made of cedar, is strong, handsome and reasonable. She has a command of wood of every description in the neighbouring jungles and the improved Tellicherry chair I have sketched was made by her. Such people are as rare as they are useful in the East." Three of her daughters were married to officers : Eliza Ann to Captain John Poulson, April 25th, 1822 ; M.F. to Lieutenant Barnett, 7th N.I., June 19th, 1823 ; Caroline to Ensign John Mills Madden, December 22nd, 1831.

"In this grave is interred, Susanna, daughter of Juan de Cruz, Syndic, on the 2nd day of December 1618. Those who read this, please recite one Kyrie Eleison, and Ave Maria in the name of God."

This is the oldest mortuary inscription in Tamil characters over a European or Eurasian. It is locally known as the Syndics' tomb, and forms the only memorial of the Portuguese occupation of Tuticorin. The town was a Portuguese settlement from about 1540 till 1658, when captured by the Dutch. The Protestant Church still bears the V.O.C. crest of the Netherlands Company and the date MDCCL.

DUTCH CEMETERY AT TUTICORIN.

Ringeltaube writes June 19, 1806, that he attended the Dutch Church at Tuticorin, a spacious octagon building "where my Country man Rev. Mr. Cleaver read a good sermon in Dutch to a few attentive hearers" . . . . . "a singular but truly pious character at that place the Rev. Mr. Cleaver Dutch Minister."

These three tombs are buried under a mass of rubbish, which has been shot over the cemetery wall. They are most difficult to read.

2593 7th Dec. 1809. JOSEPH BAGGOT .. Here lieth buried the earthly remains of JOSEPH BAGGOT, late Master Attendant of this place. He was born at Kirby in Warwickshire A.D. MDCCLXIX and departed this life the VII December A.D. MDCCCIX

In 1800 he was Beachmaster at Negapatam. When at Tuticorin he was the hero of a singular incident. The Polygar prisoners, interned at Palamcottah after the suppression of the Tinnevelly disturbances by Major Bannerman in 1799, made their escape on February 2nd, 1801, and occupied Tuticorin. Among their captives were Lieutenant Ormsby and Mr. Baggot, both of whom were released unmolested. Mrs. Baggot petitioned for her husband's liberty, and the "Cat," as the chief was called at once set him free. "This was the infamous Catabomia Naig, who had lately been confined in irons and treated with every indignity; upon whose head a price was set and who was on no condition to receive quarter if found in arms." "Baggott, Jos. Captain of a Country Ship, 1786, resides at Tuticoron". At Pondicherry Lieut. Robert Ormsby 6th N.C., was married to Madame Welsh de Chermont Oct. 1, 1800 (Courier 5 Nov. 1800).

At Tuticorin, Sept. 30, 1843, Joseph Baggott, Esq., Master Attendant, died, aged 49 years.

2600 11th July 1784. WILLIAM LIGHT ..

Sacred to the memory of WILLIAM LIGHT, Esq., a man who with the fewest failings possest the noblest virtues of the mind. As a citizen he was respected; as a friend esteemed; as a husband beloved, but respect esteem and affection were too soon followed by their attendant regret. Reader! If human felicity be the search it may be found in his life. But his death will better instruct thee in its fickleness and brevity.

Tho' placed remote from all he loved or knew,
This pillar catches but the stranger's view,
Tho' to the Indians' gaze it rears its head
Obscure its purpose, and its language dead,
On Asia's sands like Europe's lettered plains,
The muse shall hallow virtue's frail remains,
And on this altar to remembrance dear
Preserve that relic rich the widow's tear.

Obiit 11 July 1784. Ætat 35.

Writer in 1765; Senior Merchant in 1776. Brother of Miss Hester Eleanora Light who came out to India with Eliza Draper in 1767 and married January 19th, 1768, George Stratton, afterwards acting Governor of Madras during the eight stormy days that succeeded the deposition of Lord Pigot (see No. 340).

2602 23rd May 1785. WILLIAM GEORGE WASEY.

Raised by friendship and hallowed by affection, this pillar, the monument of WILLIAM GEORGE WASEY, records the vanity of human wishes. While youth regards it with a sigh, the fair, the virtuous and the happy shall ponder on their lot, and ere the blessing flies improve the day of friendship and the hour of love with mental usury. So shall the grateful tongue of female truth deplore their loss and on the tomb obscure their memory live in friendship's strain. Obiit 23rd May 1785, aged 24.

The event referred to is the first assault on Panjalamkurichi during what is known as the Bannerman-Poligar War. The attack failed and was only remarkable for the very heavy casualties sustained by the British troops. Referring to this Major Bannerman wrote: "The moment my time will allow of it, I shall state to the Commander-in-Chief my sentiments relative to the conduct of the native officers and troops. The circumstance of one native officer being only wounded, contrasted with four European

CAMPBELL, MICHAEL EGAN, WILLIAM FRASER, KAY MANGNALL, CHARLES TORRIANO. — Sacred to the memory of Captain JOHN CAMPBELL, Lieutenants A. CAMPBELL, D. GILCHRIST and P. SHANKS of H.M. 74th Regiment, Lieutenants J. SPALDING and A. CAMPBELL, H.M. 77th Regiment, Lieutenant M. EGAN 1st Battalion 3rd Regiment N.I., Lieutenants W. FRASER and K. MANGNALL 1st Bn. 4th Regiment N.I., Lieutenant C. TORRIANO, 1st Bn. 9th Regiment N.I., who bravely fell or died of wounds received in assaults on the fort of Punjalumcourchy, on the 31st March and 24th May 1801.

These casualties occurred in the second and last Poligar War, after which the district came permanently into the hands of the British. Colonel James Welsh, who served throughout the campaign, describes it in detail in his Military Reminiscences, remarking that "no account of this service had been given to the public, and it was customary, while gallant fellows were falling covered with glorious wounds, to put down the casualty in our newspapers as if they had died in their beds, thus 'Deaths.' Lately to the Southward, Captain—or Lieut.—". Panjalumcourchy fort, the Gibraltar of the insurgents he calls "an abominable dog-kennel, the system of defending which would have done credit to any engineer." His description of the Dumb Brother, who was the soul of the defence, is so curious as to be worth quoting: "I cannot close this account of horrors without a few words in memory of one of the most extraordinary mortals I ever knew; a near relation of Catabomia Naig's, who was both deaf and dumb, was well known by the English under the appellation of Dumby or the Deaf Brother, by the Mussalmans as Mookah, and by the Hindoo as Oomee, all having the like signification. He was a tall, slender lad, of a very sickly appearance, yet possessing that energy of mind, which in troubled times always gains pre-eminence, whilst in his case the very defect which would have impeded another, proved a powerful auxiliary in the minds of ignorant and superstitious idolaters. The Oomee was adored; his slightest sign was an oracle, and every man flew to execute whatever he commanded. No Council assembled at which he did not preside; no daring adventure was undertaken, which he did not lead. His method of representing the English was extremely simple; he collected a few little pieces of straw, arranged them on the palm of his left hand to represent the English force; then, with other signs, for the time, etc., he drew the other hand across and swept them off, with a

IDAIYANGUDI.

A Model Christian Settlement.—Idaiyangudi is the village in Tinnevelly where Bishop Caldwell took up his abode in 1841. It is two miles from the Coromandel Coast and only 30 miles from Cape Comorin. The meaning of the word is "The Shepherd's Habitation", and it surely was an appropriate name for the residence of a Missionary-Pastor who came here as a servant of that "Good Shepherd who gave His life for the sheep."

The Psalmist declares that "the righteous shall flourish like the palm tree", which in the Tamil Bible is translated "palmyra tree," and it is a striking fact that wherever in Tinnevelly sand and palmyras abound there also may be found large congregations of Christians. Idaiyangudi was no doubt originally founded by shepherds, but there were none of that caste here on Bishop Caldwell's arrival, and to this day it is difficult to obtain milk in this shepherd's abode. It was the Bishop's aim to make this place a model Christian settlement with its handsome Church, Hospital, schools and institutions forming a centre of work and influence to the surrounding neighbourhood. It is on record that Dr. Caldwell, on his arrival here, found only one old Christian convert who remained steadfast; all the others having relapsed into Hinduism.

The Church here is dedicated to the Holy Trinity; it was commenced in 1847 and completed on the 6th July, 1880. The style is decorated Gothic, and its chief beauty is in the east and west windows, all the tracery work of which was modelled by Bishop Caldwell himself in clay, and then copied in the white stone of the neighbourhood by native masons. Each pillar in the nave is a monolith.

2667 28th Aug. 1891. ROBERT CALDWELL.. Here rest the remains of ROBERT CALDWELL, D.D., LL.D., Assistant Bishop in Tinnevelly. Born 1814. Arrived India 1838. Consecrated 1877. Died August 28th, 1891, aged 77 years.

He has a tablet in St. George's Cathedral composed by the late Bishop Gell. (See No. 518).

The following inscription is in Tamil on the Church wall on a handsome brass made by Messrs. P. Orr and Sons, and the Bishop lies buried in the adjacent Chancel:—

Sacred to the Memory of
The Right Reverend Robert Caldwell, D.D., LL. D., Fellow of the University of Madras, who for 53 years devoted his eminent talents to the furtherance of the Gospel, and the building up of Christ's Church among the Tamil people in Tinnevelly, the last 14 of those years
as Assistant Bishop to the Bishop of Madras.
Excelling as a Scholar and Philologist, intimately acquainted with the Tamil people, their history, language and customs,
a ready and elegant Writer, he attained a wide reputation,
bringing honour thereby to the Missionary's calling, and strengthening the cause of Missions in the Church at Home.

			But all his attainments and fame did not divert him from his great purpose and the simplicity of his Missionary life. He continued to be an earnest, sympathising, vigilant watcher of souls. By his Apostolic labours and example, he trained many native agents, brought thousands of heathen into the Church of Christ, raised the character and status not of the Christians only, but also of those without the Church, and won their attachment and reverence. He was born near Belfast, of Scotch parents, on the 7th May, 1814, and died at Kodaikana on the 28th August, 1891. 2668 — 8th Feb. 1765. — ELIZABETH STOCKWELL. — Here lieth the body of ELIZABETH STOCKWELL, who died February 8th 1765, aged 6 months. She being made perfect in a short time fulfilled a long time; for her soul pleased the Lord, therefore He hasted to take her away from the wicked.

From Wisdom, IV. 13, 14. This quotation from the Book of Sapience is a favourite tombstone text. It is found in Latin over an Armenian grave at Calcutta, 1738. "Consummatus in brevi explevit tempora multa, placita enim erat Deo anima illius, propter hoc properavit educere illum de medio iniquitatum" (see also No. 766). Mr. James Stockwell died at Madras, May 18th, 1789, and Mrs. Jane, May 29th, 1791. These are presumably the parents. Charles Stockwell was Ensign, 26th August 1778; Lieut., 13th June 1783; resigned the service 22nd July 1788.

2669 — 26th Sept. 1766. — CATHERINE FAIZAN .. — CATHERINE FAIZAN, wife to Captain Abraham Faizan. She departed this life the 26th September 1766. Was aged 32 years, who resigned this life to Almighty God, in hopes of a glorious resurrection.

In October 1758 "in order to encourage desertion among the enemy's troops," Pigot and Lawrence directed "that the deserters be formed into a separate company, with officers who are conversant with their language that they may apply to them for redress on all occasions." These officers were Captain De Monchanin (since dead), Ensigns Faizan, Bonjour and Vilarete. Nicholas Bonjour was in the Artillery. Lieutenant-Colonel Faizan died at Madras, January 5th, 1776. Captain (the Baron de) Vasserot was a cavalry officer who distinguished himself in the defence of Madras against Lally (1758) and in subsequent operations as Commander of the English Cavalry. Orme has his letter to Vansittart.

2670 — 1766 .. — MARY and NANCY KENNEDY. — Here lie the bodies of MARY KENNEDY and NANCY. The former was aged 5 years and the latter 9 months. The children of Captain Kennedy and Ignatia, his wife.

John Kennedy died a Colonel of Artillery at Madras, April 30th, 1785 (No. 161). This tomb has no date, but it adjoins Mrs. Faizan's and from the similarity of the lettering, clearly belongs to the same year. The older grave stones are inside the church, where constant trampling has worn away many of the words.

2671 — 24th Mar. 1767. — JOHN HENDRIK MEYER. — JOHN HENDRIK MEYER, Surgeon, who departed this life 24th March 1767, aged 41 years.

2672 — 7th June 1768. — RICHARD ROSE .. — RICHARD ROSE, Lieutenant in the Honorable Company's Service. He died 7th June 1768, aged 27 years.

2673 — 27th Aug. 1768. — PETER CRANCH . — PETER CRANCH, Captain in the Honorable Company's Service, who died 27th August 1768, aged 31 years.

2674 — 17th Nov. 1771. — JAMES BUTTLER .. — JAMES BUTTLER Esquire, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Artillery, who died November the 17th 1771, was aged 52 years. Time the supreme; Time is eternity, pregnant with all eternity can give. Who murders time, he crushes in the birth a power etherial only not adored. Time, how short; Eternity, how long.

Then follows a Persian distich from Hafiz which rendered in English means: "Whether I am good or bad, be thou always good; for whatsoever a man soweth he reapeth at last." (See No. 216.) The English quotation is from Young's Night Thoughts—Night II, Lines 107—111, omitting line 109.

Know all, know infidels, unapt to know ; Tis immortality your nature solves ; Tis immortality decyphers man And opens all the myst'ries of his make. Without it half his instincts are a riddle, Without it, all his virtues are a dream, His very crimes attest his dignity ; His sateless thirst of pleasure, gold, and fame Declares him born for blessings infinite ; What less than infinite, makes unabsurd Passions, which all on earth but more enflames ? Fierce passions, so mis-measured to this scene, Stretched out like eagle's wings beyond our nest Far, far beyond the worth of all below, For earth too large, presage a noble flight, And evidence our title to the skies. (From Young's Night Thoughts—Night vii, Lines 505—520).

Kind death has put an end to his sufferings and the friendly grave has shut up the mournful scene.

Stewart was in the 25th Battalion.

Miss A. Stewart married at Gazeepore, J. H. Sinclair on 9th August 1817 (Asiatic Journal, February 1818).

2696 — 9th Nov. 1794. — William McKillop. — William McKillop, Esq., late Surgeon to His Majesty's Royal Artillery, aged 26.

2697 — 5th June 1795. — Jane Shortt .. — Mrs. Jane Shortt, wife of Major John Shortt in the 59th year of her age.

See No. 2371.

2698 — 17th July 1797. — Rebecca Darke .. — Sacred to the memory of Rebecca Darke, wife of Charles Darke, who died July the 17th 1797, aged 53, daughter of William and Sarah Gyles of Northamptonshire. She has left one daughter, Rebecca, wife of John Floyd, and four grand children. Reader, humble thyself before God. Here lies a form that once glowed in gracefulness and beauty, the meanest of her ornaments. She eminently possessed the higher virtues of Christianity thro' which she endured the severe trials of this life with the most exemplary patience and pious resignation. Her trust was in God. O! May the bright example of her virtues soothe the sorrow, still guide the heart of her afflicted daughter, and be a lesson to all.

Pohle who buried her entered her name in the Register Book as "the Lady Rebecca Darke."

This tomb is in the chancel of the church. One of the four grandchildren mentioned became the wife of Sir Robert Peel, Prime Minister. A list of inhabitants of Fort St. George taken in 1788 shows Charles Darke to have been a licensed free merchant then in distressed circumstances, living with his wife and family at the Red Hills near Madras. He arrived as a cadet in 1770 by the Princess Royal, Captain Kerr (the "old commodore" who died at Cuddalore March 1800). E. I. Kalendar (for 1791) records: "Charles Darke from England 1770." Four years later he resigned the service and obtained indentures to practise as a free merchant. He was employed and trusted by the Nabob of Arcot and finally ruined in his service. His letters disclose many curious details. In one of them addressed to the Nabob himself he says, "I will not for the present mention the bribes given by your Highness on account of the unhappy business of the arrest of Lord Pigot; but the amount of them make up a great part of your Highness's new consolidated debt." Capt. Elers talks of "an old gentleman of the name of Darke, formerly very rich and to whom the Nabob of the Carnatic was indebted for many lakhs of rupees". His name continues to appear in the Madras Almanacs under the heading of Europeans not in the King's or Company's service, up till the year 1810, when it drops out. He seems to have lived mostly at Trichinopoly where Darke's Bridge still preserves his name. On January 29th, 1791, at Fort St. George, his daughter Rebecca Juliana was married to Lieutenant-Colonel John Floyd of the 19th Light Dragoons "by A. Bell, chaplain, in the presence of George Harris and Charles Darke." Floyd was born Feb. 22, 1748. He was the Murat of the Mysore campaigns and the most dashing cavalry officer of his day. It was during his command of the Trichinopoly district that the future Lady Peel was born. The Outstations Register of St. Mary's Church, Fort St. George, records: "Trichinopoly; Julia daughter of Major General Floyd and Rebecca his wife, born and baptized the 19th of Nov. 1795 by Christian Frederick Schwartz, English Missionary. Flavia, daughter of ditto born the 1st June 1797, baptized Feb. 1798 by Christian Willaim Gericke, English Missionary." They had two other children, Henry and Miranda. Mrs. Floyd died Feb. 3, 1802, two days after her daughter Flavia who died Feb. 1, 1802. Sir John Floyd remarried in 1805, was created a baronet March 30, 1816 and granted a special crest of a lion rampant bearing the standard of Tippoo in its paws. He died Jan. 10, 1818 at his house in Mansfield Street, London, as Col. of the 8th light dragoons and Governor of Gravesend and Tilbury Forts. In 1880 a memoir of Sir John Floyd was published by his godson Combermere Floyd, M.I.C.E. From a miniature of Lady Floyd still in existence, it would appear that she was of great beauty. A monument stands to her memory in Farnborough Church, Kent, bearing a representation of a rose in full bloom torn from its stalk and below it a bud also broken off. Three buds remain, typifying the three remaining children, of whom the youngest Julia married Sir Robert Peel, June 9th, 1820. Though in her own phrase "no politician" she became in time his closest and only companion. The statesman's third son Captain Sir William Peel, V. C., commanded the Naval Brigade during the mutiny and died at Cawnpore, April 2nd, 1858. A statue stands to his memory in Calcutta opposite the Eden gardens.

Ensign Joseph Darke was promoted Lieutenent in November 1757.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH CEMETERY.

2731 22nd Dec. 1815. PAULINA LUSHINGTON. PAULINA LUSHINGTON, died 22nd December 1815, aged 8 months.

This stone is in the vestry. The father of this child was Charles May Lushington, C.S. He married Miss C. A. Andrews, March 5th, 1814. (See Nos. 506 and 1109.)

William Lushington married at Calcutta Miss Paulina French, March 23, 1769.

Tablet surmounted by a Bust, Eastbourne Parish Church:—

Sacred to the Memory of HENRY LUSHINGTON, Eldest son of Henry Lushington, Vicar of this Parish, and Mary his wife, whose singular Merits and as singular Sufferings cannot fail of endearing him to ye Latest Posterity.

At ye Age of Sixteen in ye Year 1754 He embarqued for BENGAL in ye Service of ye India Company, and attaining a perfect knowledge of ye Persian Language, made Himself essentially Useful. It is difficult to determine whether He excelled more in a Civil or a Military capacity. His Activity in Both recommended him to the Notice and Esteem of LORD CLIVE: Whom with equal credit to Himself and Satisfaction to his Patron He served in the different characters of Secretary, Interpreter and Commissary. In ye Year 1756 by a melancholy Revolution he was with others to the amount of 146 forced into a Dungeon at CALCUTTA so small that 23 only escaped Suffocation. He was one of ye Survivors, but reserved for greater Misery: for by a Subsequent Revolution in ye Year 1763 He was with 200 more taken Prisoner at PATNA and after a tedious confinement being singled out with JOHN ELLIS and WILLIAM HAY, Esqrs. was by the order of the Nabob COSSIM ALLY KAWN and under ye Direction of one SOME ROO, an apostate European, deliberately and inhumanly murdered. But, while ye Seapoys were performing their Savage Office on ye first-mentioned Gentleman, fired with a generous indignation at the Distress of his Friend, He rushed upon his Assassins unarmed and seizing one of their scimitars Killed Three of them and Wounded Two others, till at length oppressed with Numbers, he greatly fell.

His Private character was perfectly consistent with his Publick one. The amiable Sweetness of his Disposition attached Men of ye Worthiest Note to Him, the integrity of his Heart fixed them ever firm in his Interests. As a Son He was one of ye Most Kind and Dutiful: As a Brother ye most Affectionate. His generosity towards his Family was such as hardly to be Equal'd, his circumstances and his Age considered, hardly to be Exceeded. In short he lived and died an Honour to his Name his Friends and his Country. His Race was short (being only 26 years of Age when he died) but truly glorious. The rising Generation must Admire, May They Imitate, so Bright an Example.

His Parents have erected this Monument as a lasting Testimony of Their Affliction and His Virtues.

(Mary Lushington, the mother of Henry and Stephen Lushington died in 1775 aged 68. There is a tablet to her memory in Eastbourne Parish Church.)

poor a parent and man-kind a man. He died November 13th, 1821, aged 58 years.

2736 — 12th Feb. 1822. — HENRY LUTTRELL .. HENRY LUTTRELL, merchant at this station, aged 51 years.

On 3rd March 1828, C. W. Eaton, Master Attendant at Coringa, married Eleanor Ann eldest daughter of Mr. Luttrell of Trichinopoly.

2737 — 20th Jan. 1823. — MUNGO PARK .. [MUNGO PARK, M.D., aged 23 years.]

The tombstone has disappeared. His father Mungo Park (1771–1806), the celebrated African traveller, married, August 2nd, 1799, the eldest daughter of Thomas Anderson, Surgeon, of Selkirk, to whom he had been apprenticed in his youth. He is supposed to have been killed at Boussa, a town beyond Timbuctoo. His wife and three sons and a daughter survived him, and £4,000 was paid to them by the Government. The second son, Thomas, a Midshipman on H.M.S. Sybille, obtained leave to attempt to reach Boussa, in order to set at rest all doubts with regard to his father's fate: but died of fever, October 31st, 1827, after accomplishing 200 miles of the journey.

2738 — 3rd April 1826. — REGINALD HEBER .. Here rest the remains of REGINALD HEBER, D.D., Third Bishop of Calcutta.

The inscription is incorrect, for he was the second Bishop. His grave is within the sanctuary at the north of the altar. Bishop Heber visited Trichinopoly in 1826. He was entertained by the Judge, who is still referred to in the place as "old" John Bird. His house is now the District and Sessions Court. On its north side, a few steps from the house, is the plunge bath in which the Bishop lost his life. He had had a long and fatiguing service at Christ Church Fort, including the confirmation of a number of young persons. At the conclusion of the service he went into the adjoining house to unrobe. The churchyard was full of a crowd of Christian natives seeking his blessing. From the steps of the house, just over the grave of Christian Pohle, he addressed the gathering a second time and added to his fatigue. On his return to Mr. John Bird's house he plunged into the bath in his exhausted condition, and his heart stopped. The Garrison Surgeons did their best to restore animation; one of them, Mr. A. B. Peppin, left a report on his examination of the body; this paper came into the hands of the Rev. C. S. Kohlhoff of Erungalore, who gave it to the Rev. F. Penny. It is now in the chaplaincy file book under the date. The body was buried on the north side of the altar in St. John's Church. A mural tablet was put up by the memorial committee, but there was no monument over his grave till the Rev. Thomas Foulkes became chaplain of Trichinopoly in 1865. He raised money by subscription and placed over the grave a handsome marble slab inlaid with brass and coloured enamels. Twenty years later the Rev. Frank Penny, LL.M., raised money in the same way and put in the east window of stained glass as a further memorial. The bath in which the Bishop was drowned was railed off in 1882 and a stone erected with the following inscription: "In memory of the devoted, accomplished, beloved an universally honored servant of God, Reginald Heber, D. D., second Bishop of Calcutta and one of India's truest and most loving benefactors. This stone was erected in the year 1882 at the expense of Government on the margin of the bath in which he was drowned while bathing on the 3rd April 1826. His body was laid under the chancel in the Church of St. John, Trichinopoly, in the hope of the resurrection of the just to eternal life through Jesus Christ." There are two statues by Chantrey to his memory, one in St. Paul's Cathedral,

"This bridge is dedicated to the memory of Captains KILPATRICK, CALLIAUD, DALTON, KIRK, Lieutenant HARRISON REVEL of the Madras Army whose bravery and fortitude in the defence of Trichinopoly and in the actions fought in its vicinity, A.D. 1752 and 1754, under their heroic leaders Lawrence and Clive mainly contributed to lay the foundations of the British Empire in India. Designed and completed by Captain Edward Lawford, Madras Engineers, A.D. 1849. Proposed by Arthur Pooley Onslow, Esq., Collector of Trichinopoly, and sanctioned by the Most Noble George Marquis of Tweedale, C.B., K.T., Governor of Madras, A.D. 1846."
			Inscription on a slab let into the parapet-wall. A picture of the bridge may be seen in the "Illustrated London News" of September 16th, 1854. The defence of Trichinopoly is one of the lesser-known episodes of the great struggle in the Carnatic between the French and English, possibly because neither of the protagonists played a prominent part in connection with it. The two actions which saved the city—the battle of the Golden Rock on June 26th, 1753, and the battle of the Sugar-Loaf Rock on September 21st, 1753—were fought by Stringer Lawrence, who was at the time in chief command of the English forces: but the siege lasted intermittently until the suspension of hostilities in October 1754. In his report on the former engagement, which resulted in the complete defeat of Monsieur Astruc, Lawrence writes: "I ought to mention, because it is due to their merit, the extraordinary gallant behaviour of Captains Kilpatrick and Kirk, who forced up a rock against four times their number of Europeans, and in the face of 2,000 sepoys, and dislodged them and attacked them in flank, whilst we did the same in front; a more extraordinary action I have never seen." Captain Kirk fell in the second battle which was fought in September some 3 miles south of French Rocks.

Captain James Kilpatrick was more fortunate. He was originally a Lieutenant of Marines. He had served at Fort St. David before Lawrence's first arrival and succeeded Capt. Dalton as Commandant of Trichinopoly in September 1753. He was, in July 1756, despatched to Bengal in command of the small force of 230 Europeans hurriedly collected by the authorities at Madras on receipt of letters announcing the capture of Cossimbazar and the march of Surajah Dowlah upon Calcutta. They arrived in the Hooghly on August 2nd to receive the news of the Black Hole tragedy and to find the remnants of the Company's servants huddled together in boats or in mat-huts at Fulta. When Watson and Clive joined them in November, half of Kilpatrick's 230 Europeans were dead and of the remainder hardly thirty were fit for duty. He acted during the intervening months as a member of the Provisional Committee and his name appears among those present at the consultations held on board the Phoenix schooner. His salary as Commander-in-Chief of the Company's forces in Bengal is given in the "proceedings" of the time as £40 per annum. He is also one of the signatories to the treaty of June 1757, by which Meer Jaffier was secured the Subahship of Bengal, Behar, and Orissa; and he was present at Plassey and at the famous Council of War at Cutwah, when he voted with Clive in opposition to an advance, and against the opinion of Eyre Coote, who counselled an "immediate decision of the contest." Clive writing on December 23rd, 1757, to the Court of Directors from "Camp Fatehpoor near Rajmahaul," mentions the loss of several officers, "among the rest Major Kilpatrick, who acquired much deserved reputation in his long course of service in India." He died of fever in October 1757.

Captain James Dalton, the real hero of the defence of Trichinopoly, was born in 1725, began life (like Kilpatrick) as a subaltern of marines, joined the East India Company's service in 1749, and was made Captain of the Grenadier Company. When stationed at Fort St. David, he was very intimate with Clive, who afterwards stood godfather to one of his daughters. From 1752 to 1753, he was in command of Trichinopoly during its continuous investment, and his letters to Madras were considered so important that orders were given to open them immediately they arrived, even if the President were absent. After successfully beating off the besiegers, Dalton resigned the service through ill-health in March 1754, and was succeeded in his command by Kilpatrick. On his return to England, on March 7th, 1756, "James Dalton Esq. of the parish of Hauxwell and Isabella Wray of the same parish" were married in Ripon Minster. He died July 11th, 1811, at the age of 86. His journal of 166 folio pages contains a full account of the siege. It is largely quoted by his relative, Mr. Charles Dalton, F.R.G.S., who published in 1886 a memoir of his ancestor; and it was extensively used by Orme for his "History of the War in India" which appeared in 1763.

His father James Dalton, a Captain in the 6th Regiment of Foot (Domer's Regiment) (Commission dated May 2, 1718 when he was in his 19th year) married Miss Elizabeth Smith of Limerick and died on active service in the West Indies in the spring of 1742. (Gents. Magazine for 1742: Died in the West Indies, from March 8 to May 18, Guide's Regiment, Captains Hunt, Bell and Dalton and eight Lieutenants). The expedition had sailed from Cork, October 24, 1741. (He was known as Fighting John Dalton). "Mrs. Elizabeth Dalton widow of Captain Dalton of the 6th Regiment departed this life 11th of July 1769" (Kendal Parish Church). Their only son John [?] was born about the close of 1725 in Dublin in Dublin county.

Isabella Wray was the second daughter of Sir James Wray 11th Bart. of Glentworth, Lincolnshire and Sleningford Park, Yorkshire, who married March 4, 1727–28, Frances Norcliffe, daughter and eventual heiress of Col. Fairfax Norcliffe of Langton. He purchased Sleningford Park from his father-in-law Sir John Wray and had three sons (1) Thomas who assumed in 1807 the surname and arms of Norcliffe, (2) John, Lt.-Col. 4th Light Dragoons, who inherited the Wray estates and married, March 1, 1783, Susanna eldest daughter of General Robert Prescott of Rosegreen, Sussex, and (3) James, Rector of Croft, Yorkshire, for over 30 years.

Captain John Calliaud succeeded to the command of the Company's troops in Madras in February 1759 on the departure of Stringer Lawrence for England. In the following October, Eyre Coote, who had been appointed from home to the Madras Command, arrived at Fort St. George; and Calliaud, now a Major, was despatched to Bengal with 200 men, Clive having requested that he might be sent to command the army in that province, if Colonel Coote should be detained to serve on the Coromandel Coast. He reached Fort William in November, and took over charge from Clive and Forde who, at the beginning of 1758, was, on the invitation of the Select Committee at Calcutta, appointed by Clive to the command of the troops at Bengal in his place. During the years 1760 and 1761, Calliaud was occupied in Behar in aiding Meer Jaffier to clear the province of the armies of the Shah Zadah. In 1763, he became Commander-in-Chief at Madras and in November 1766 concluded at Hyderabad a treaty with Nizam Ally. He retired in 1775 and on December 27, 1812, at Aston House, Oxon. he died in his 88th year "an indulgent husband, sincere friend and pious christian," "highly respected by the surrounding nobility and gentry". There are four journals of Calliaud's marches in Orme's Mss. 1761–62, also Joseph Smith's account of D'Auteuil's attempt against Trichinopoly and Calliaud's relief of it in 1757. Lieutenant Harrison Revel commanded the artillery under Clive at the defence of Arcot in September-October 1751, was taken prisoner near Conjeeveram as he was returning wounded from the siege, and was killed in February 1754, at the disastrous engagement near Kelli Kotah when a valuable convoy and £7,000 in specie was captured, and an entire company of grenadiers cut to pieces. "This brave man," says Orme, "seeing the day lost and the enemy on the point of getting possession of the cannon, suffered himself to be cut down without making resistance, rather than quit the work in which he was employed, of spiking one of the field pieces."

WARRIORE CEMETERY, TRICHINOPOLY.

Warriore and Ranipet were noted for cholera. The old maidan is still there with the old ruined bungalows behind it. It is now noted only for cigar manufacturers and jewellers. Serjeant Major Dalton murdered his wife with a hammer there.

"Your letters I communicated to Colonel and Mrs. Knox. Both are well with their daughter. The place [Warriore] they do not like at all; almost two-thirds of the people died by a dreadful famine which lasted three years."—Schwartz's letter, 1794 (Pearson's memoirs, Vol. II, p. 303).

Warriore lies to the west of Trichinopoly Fort and is the site of the old cantonment. It proved so unhealthy that after ten years the site was altered to the higher and more open ground, where the cantonment now is.

2763 — 29th Nov. 1789. — GEORGE GRANT .. — Here lieth the body of GEORGE GRANT, late Serjeant in the 2nd Regiment of Cavalry. He served the Honorable Company and His Highness the Nabob 17 years, and died the 29th November 1789, aged 43.

2764 — 14th Dec. 1789. — MATTHEW HORNE .. — Sacred to the memory of MATTHEW HORNE, Brigadier General in the Army of the Honorable E.I. Company on the Coast of Coromandel. who departed this life on the 14th December 1789, aged 57 years. He commenced his military career in 1757 under the auspices of those immortal heroes Lawrence and Clive, who at an early period honored his virtues with their notice and friendship. He passed thro' a series of active and distinguished services in the several gradations of army rank, with uniform esteem and approbation; and he attained the honorable distinction of the chief command of the Coast Army which he held with credit from February to October 1789. To high professional talents, he joined an enthusiastic zeal which peculiarly marked his public exertions, especially in the memorable defence of Madras and in the reduction of Manilla, of Tanjore, and of Pondicherry. Blessed with a feeling and friendly heart thro' every chequered scene of life he maintained unsullied the proud characteristics of our Englishmen, loyalty, bravery and honour. His remains are deposited in the church of Trichinopoly.

Urquhart: "He served at the capture of Manilla under General Draper, and at the defence of Madras against the Compte de Lally. He was long the favourite friend and confidential Aid-de-Camp of General Joseph Smith. On his way to take the command of the Southern Army, he was intercepted by a frigate, dispatched expressly for that purpose by M. Suffrein, and made a prisoner." Lord Pigot, it will be remembered, was kept in his custody at the Mount in 1777. He married Miss Anna Salmon, October 10th, 1774. He was a prominent Freemason, and when a captive of war in the Island of Bourbon received fraternal kindness from a French lodge there.

He was Lieut. Fireworker June 15, 1758, Lieut. June 14, 1759, Captain Oct. 1, 1764, Major Nov. 17, 1771 and Col. Oct. 11, 1772.

Each mournful breathing rived his tender heart
The storm increasing as increased his years.
Weakly a while his lonely way he led,
Thro' life's perplexing road, till anxious cares
And inward griefs bow'd down his infant head;

And let the weary pilgrim take his rest.

MALAYADIPATTI, KULITALAI TALUK.

2768 4th Feb. 1747 CONSTANTINE BESCHI.

A little monument stands at the foot of the hill near the village of Malayadipatti. It is divided into two compartments. In the southern one, which is the shorter, lie the remains of யாகப்பர் சுவாமி, i.e., Father Jacob and அருளாநந்தர்சுவாமி, i.e., Father Thome. In the middle of the other compartment are the remains of பட்டணத்துஸ்தானியசுவாமி, i.e., Father Constant come from Town. The town at that time was Trichinopoly and this Father Constant appears to be none other than the celebrated Jesuit Beschi. His full name is Joseph Constantine Beschi and he was a native of Italy, born at Castiglione, November 8th, 1680. Educated at Rome, he entered the Society of Jesus on October 21st, 1698. In 1711 he arrived at Goa and joined the Madura Mission, founded about a century before by Robert de Nobili the nephew of Cardinal Bellarmin. He gave himself out as a white Brahmin from the West and adopted native customs and costumes. He soon became famous as a linguist. In three months he is said to have mastered Persian and Hindustani for the express purpose of obtaining an interview with Chanda Sahib, Nawab of Trichinopoly, who gave him the title of Ismatti Sanyasi and made him his Dewan. Among the natives Beschi was known as Veeramahamunivar, "the great fearless man of God." Muni in Tamil means any thing pointed or acute, vira for strength = man of acute knowledge and strength. After being driven by the Mahrattas from Trichinopoly, he passed to the Pearl Fishery Coast, and in 1744 was Rector of Manapar, where there "is a Dutch factory and a very large church built of stone." (Ringeltaube). He died in this post on Feb. 4, 1747. Of all the Jesuit Missionaries, who have worked in India, Beschi is probably the most distinguished for learning and intellect. His knowledge of Tamil was simply wonderful. He was equally familiar with the high and low dialects; and his compositions in that language have excited the admiration of many a South Indian poet. Unlike de Nobili he was averse to introducing many Sanscrit terms and expressions into his Tamil works; and rather aimed at acquiring a perfectly pure and idiomatic style. And in this he was perfectly successful. Had Tamil been his native tongue, it would have been impossible for him to acquire greater proficiency in it. His Tembavani, "the unfading wreath" (probably with reference to St. Joseph's lily),* composed in 1726 with two commentaries, prose and verse, at once became a classic. It occupies in the Tamil Roman Catholic household the same place which Father Stephen's Purana holds in the home of a Roman Catholic on the Konkan Coast. His grammars of High and Low (Shen and Kodun) Tamil, originally written in Latin, are standard authorities. His tale of the foolish priest Gooroo Paramarthan and his disciples, translated into French by the Abbé Dubois and into English by E. T. Babington, C.S., was for half a century the first reading book placed in the hands of the student. A Tamil life of Beschi dealing mainly with his Indian life has been written by Muthuswamy Pillai. A more comprehensive biography was undertaken in France.

VIZAGAPATAM DISTRICT.

Vizagapatam was taken from the French by Ananda Raj in 1758; he offered the place to the Presidency of Madra requesting them to send a large body of troops to drive the French out of the four provinces the French had obtained from the Subadar of the Deccan. Mr. Johnstone arrived on 12th September 1758 and was put in possession by Rajah's officers as the Company's representative. On hearing of his reception Madras sent away Mr. Andrews and several assistants to re-establish the Factory under their own authority. They arrived by sea at Vizagapatam on 21st November. Then followed the battle of Condore December 6th, 1758. Johnstone, the Commissary who had joined the grenadiers, was wounded. It is described in a letter from Captain Martin Yorke to Orme.

On return from Masulipatam, Ananda Raj died of smallpox at Rajahmundry. His two widows committed suicide.

The oldest European tomb in Waltair is said to be the large monument, almost hidden by a banyan tree, on the highroad a little below the Waltair Club. It is known in Telugu as Dhanudu or Ganudu Goli and is supposed to cover the remains of the French general or soldiers who fell at Bussy's capture of Vizagapatam in 1757. The natives believe it to be haunted.

Urquhart's account of her funeral, where the Governor Sir Charles Oakley, Mr. Huddleston, Colonel Capper and Mr. Oakes acted as pall bearers, recalls the description of the obsequies of Begum Johnson in Calcutta, 1812, which Lord Wellesley attended in the State coach with six horses and a detachment of the bodyguard.

"Gazette" for October 21st, 1780, describes the occurrence as follows :—

"We are informed that the Sepoy troops lately draughted at Vizacapatam, having all their arms, accoutraments, baggage, etc., ready to embark on board the Sartine Frigue, and some other vessels then in that harbour in order to carry them to Madras, the day of their intended departure the Governor of Vizac invited all the military officers to dine with him, and the Council. The troops were to embark that afternoon. The gentlemen made a cheerful repast, drank success to the British arms, and sat in company with all the tranquility of mind imaginable, but were soon alarmed by an uncommon noise. They sent some of their servants out to learn the cause, and was soon informed that the troops draughted for Madras had mutinied, and was endeavouring to force those Sepoys who were to remain behind in the barracks to join them, which they refused. This account soon brought their officers out, who instantly resumed their commands, and ordered them immediately to march down to the beach and go on board. This they refused one and all. The Grenadiers levelled their pieces, took aim, discharged a volley, and killed every officer on the spot. They took the Governor prisoner and all the civil servants, set free a French spy (Capt. Brulé) who had been confined there for some time, and placed him at their head, at the same time put the Governor and all the civil servants in the prison from whence they took the Frenchman. They plundered the Governor's house and factory of the treasure, plate and every other valuable that night, took the civillins out the next morning, tied them, and marched them off with them, with an intent to carry their prisoners to Hyder Ally, whom themselves intended to join. After they had marched several miles from Vizac, they unty'd the Governor Mr. Casmajor and the rest of the gentlemen, and told them they might return to Vizac if they pleased. Ensign Butler, the only surviving officer on that establishment, and who very fortunately had been on a visit to a friend at some distance from the settlement, finding what had happened, drew up a detachment of the remaining troops the next morning with a few field pieces, marched at the head of them in quest of the deserters, came up with them, and discharged a few rounds of grape shot amongst them, which brought several of them to the ground. Some ran off, leaving the most part of their arms behind, and the remainder he took prisoners marching them in the front with the field pieces in the rear."

An account of the mutiny is found in the Proceedings of Bengal Govt., dated 26th October 1780, letters from John Turing, chief at Ganjam, J. Russell and Thomas Lane [Forrests' Reprint].

John Venner married Sarah Hartwell, August 27, 1714. Miss Eleanor Venner married Captain Thomas Lane, November 11, 1775.

Wickens was an Engineer officer and died at Madras, aged 38. His wife was Miss Matilda Maule, married August 28th, 1783. Her brother must have been Capt. 2780 — 14th Mar. 1788. — CHARLES MAXTONE .. — Here lies the body of CHARLES, son to CHARLES MAXTONE, Esq., second in Council at Vizagapatam, aged 3 years and 5 months.

See No. 305.

2781 — 20th July 1788. — MARTHA BRIGGS .. — Mrs. BRIGGS, wife of Mr. John Briggs, Surgeon of Vizagapatam, whom it pleased God to call away from her family and friends, on the 20th July 1788, aged 30 years. Also her infant son CHARLES BRIGGS, aged ten weeks.

The date of death given by Urquhart, Volume 1, page 216 is 30th July. He does not mention the child.

Martha Briggs, married in 1784, was the eldest daughter of John Pybus, M.C.S. (1742–68), member of council and subsequently partner with Sir John Call, Bart., in the banking house now represented by the firm of Martin & Co., Leadenhall street. She was the widow of Major Arthur Lysaght, brother of the first Lord de Lisle. Her youngest sister Catherine married in 1800 the famous Sydney Smith, Canon of St. Paul's, whose brother Robert Percy Smith, Advocate-General of Bengal in 1803 and afterwards M. P. for Lincoln, was father of Lord Lyveden. Surgeon John Briggs (1758–1830) served as Physician-General on the expedition to Ceylon, where he became acquainted with Miss Honor Dodson (see No. 1270), his second wife. Of their nine sons, one died in childhood; the remaining eight entered the public service in India, five dying there. By his previous marriage there had been two sons, of whom the eldest, Major-General John Briggs, F.R.S. (1785–1875), is known to fame as the Translator of Ferishta and the Seir-ul-Mutakherin and of much else of great interest (see his Life written in 1885 by Major Evans Bell). General Briggs married December 3rd, 1811, at Madras his stepmother's sister Jane, youngest of the nine daughters of Mr. John Dodson, of the London Custom House. Another sister Elizabeth married in 1798 John De Morgan (No. 339), so that General Briggs became uncle by marriage to Augustus De Morgan (1806–71), with whom he contracted a warm friendship. Gilbert Briggs (see No. 1172) was a son of Stephen Briggs, the brother of Surgeon John Briggs. Stephen's wife, née Magdalene Pasley, was sister to Sir John Malcolm's mother (see No. 144).

Sophia, wife of Captain James Briggs, died at Madras, 24th January 1834, aged 33 years and 8 months (Cathedral Cemetery).

2782 — 18th Mar. 1789. — ANDREW FERGUSON .. — Sacred to the memory of ANDREW FERGUSON, late Captain in the county Service, a sincere Christian, an affectionate husband, and a true friend, whom it pleased God to call away at the age of 48. This tribute of affection is paid by his sons, Robert and James. He departed this life ten days after his affectionate wife, the 18th March 1789.

Andrew Ferguson came out a Midshipman and remained in the shipping service. He arrived July 1766 in the Anson. Urquhart in Volume I, page 211, calls him erroneously "Captain Lieutenant."

2783 — 1790 (?) .. — FRANCES DOWSET .. — Stranger! if thy breast be open to the charms of sensibility and its attendant virtues, the inmate of this cell might have enlarged the circle of thy comforts. Her early death has torn a leaf from Friendship's volume. Flattered with a smiling dawn, her days were quickly clouded by misfortune, and though a more than fraternal love tried all its tender influence to soothe and mitigate her sorrow, she reached not the meridian of life. What humility disclaims need not be unacceptable to virtue, nor will it reject this humble tribute offered by a faithful friend to the warm affections, the unassuming merit that distinguished and endeared the character of FRANCES DOWSET, who died—aged—.

This somewhat mysteriously worded eulogy bears no date, but obviously belongs to the latter part of the eighteenth century. Urquhart in Volume II, page 230, mentions " Francis Dowset ". The District list of tombs in Vizagapatam has an entry about Francis Dowset who died 24th January 1833. A Miss Frances Munro married Mr. Robert Dowset of the Civil Service, May 12th, 1766. The deceased may have been their daughter.

In Bengal July 1806, Captain D. Oliver married Miss Elizabeth Dousett.

Hickey's Gazette No. XXVI, July 14—21, 1781 : " By Letters from Coringa we are informed that the grab Straf from Bombay has been taken off that place by a French privateer of 16 nine pounders. She was taken the 24th of June last. They put the Captain, officers and passengers ashore and despatched the Vessels to Mauritius the same day. She belongs to Mr. Dowset a very unfortunate Gentleman ; this is the second vessel taken from him since the month of January. "

2784 — 8th July 1791. — ELIZABETH DAVIDSON. — Here repose the remains of one of the most amiable and best of women ELIZABETH DAVIDSON, the mother of a lovely progeny and for 25 years the wife of a happy husband. To the softer and more engaging qualities of her own sex, she added the higher virtues which dignify the other, perfecting without exceeding the gentle excellence of female character ; affectionate without weakness, generous without extravagance, gay without levity. Her smile was the beam of benevolence, her heart the seat of sympathy, and the uniform complacency of her temper illumined her countenance with the blended ray of sensibility and virtue. To her husband, to her children, to all, her dutiful affections, her pious cares, her beneficent zeal distinguished and endeared the faithful wife, the tender parent, the firm friend. AND if mortal ken may presume, her humane and moral virtues exalted by religion recommend a Christian to her God, obiit 8th July 1791.

10 Elegiac stanzas are quoted to her memory in Urquhart, Volume II, pages 15–16.

" The stonied Urn, the monumental bust,
The sculptured trophies vanities may raise,
Sunk by the hand of time to native dust,
Elude the record of dissembled praise.
While these shall moulder in oblivious shade
Or faintly catch the vacant passing eye,
The deep impression active Friendship made
Receives the heartfelt tribute of a sigh."

Their daughter Mary married March 27, 1795, Lieutenant-Colonel William Augustus Younge of the 4th Cavalry (baptized January 7, 1776).

At Batticalva : " Here lieth Jane Davidson, aged 2 months and one day, daughter to Mr. Alex. Davidson, Chief of Vizagapatam. Her afflicted parents have caused this tomb to be erected to the memory of the angelick infant. ' Suffer little children to come unto me for such is the Kingdom of God.' Saint Mark. Died twentieth December 1779."

2785 — 20th Sept. 1791. — ALEXANDER DAVIDSON. — Near to the remains of his faithful wife, here lies entombed the body of ALEXANDER DAVIDSON, late chief of Vizagapatam. The honesty and honor of this excellent man's character would have dignified and distinguished it in any sphere, but in the important and responsible trusts he held, his invincible integrity shone in the more heightened lustre the more it was tried. He attained, through the gradations of service, the chair of the Madras Government and though without the wealth of a Governor, he was rich in the real worth of a man. Nor were his private qualities less amiable. His peculiar pleasantry of mind and felicity of manner irresistibly attached attention and delight. He immediately followed to the tomb his death-divided partner, to part no more. Reader, prepare for the certain dissolution of human happiness by living with equal virtue to die with equal hope, obiit. Sept. 20th A.D. 1791.

It was during Mr. Davidson's acting governorship in 1785 that the first discovery of Roman gold coins (aurei) in the Madras Presidency was made by a ryot at Nellore ("Asiatic Researches," 1790, Volume II, page 332).

"What! A gold coin among these jewelled treasures Why send me such a relic?" So you say.
"Good to enhance some antiquary's pleasures;
Stamped for dead people in a buried day!"

True now, but look a little! If one ponder
The legend of this price, its gold may shine
With lustre leaving dull the gems of wonder
Which I did lay in those dear hands of thine.

An aureus of the Roman empire.—See! (Edwin Arnold).

Compare a passage in Sir Edwin Arnold's "India Revisited," 1886, page 260, "Among the curious treasures of the Madras Museum, which the Governor (Sir M. E. Grant Duff) has greatly developed, is a golden coin of Claudius, the Emperor, struck to commemorate the conquest of Britain. What chapters of fancy might be written about this aureus, which thus strangely links the past and present of England's history, and came perhaps to India in the scrip of St. Thomas!"

Thomas Davidson married Sarah Holland, 26th December 1797. In January 1792, Alexander Falconar, Esq., married Miss Davidson, eldest daughter of late Alexander Davidson, Esq., at Masulipatam (see Madras Courier). A daughter was born to them on January 19, 1807.

There was a merchant in 1808 by name John Davidson.

The inscription is rapidly becoming illegible. There is a long account of this exploit in the Asiatic Annual Register for 1804 in a letter from Colonel A. Campbell, 74th Highlanders, commanding the Northern division of the Madras army. The French ship is supposed to have been the Marengo.

His pious widow has caused this stone to be erected in grateful remembrance of his numerous public and private virtues.

"A more faithful and zealous servant the Company did not possess. The Mint at Madras and the public Docks at Coringa are monuments not less of his ingenuity than of his indefatigable and unceasing labours. . . In mechanics, chemistry and mineralogy he had few superiors . . . Political Economy had ever been with him a most favored study . . . His table was ever the resort of the best informed and most worthy members of society . . . To him the settlement are indebted for the first introduction of ice. He died . . . after a severe and painful illness which he bore with exemplary patience."

In connexion with the case of the notorious Reddy Rao, Sir George Barlow punished Mr. Parry, a private merchant, and Mr. Roebuck, by deporting the former to England and by removing the latter to an inferior station in the Northern Circars, where he died. Barlow's proceedings were subsequently found to have been unjust. The case was the outcome of the commission of enquiry into the claims of the late Nabob of the Carnatic, and the Government were induced to support Reddy Rao on the representation of certain officials who had an interest in his forged bonds. Roebuck was a highly respected member of society and uncle to the well-known T. A. Roebuck, M.P., the Sheffield Reformer. His brother W. Roebuck (No. 249) died in 1801.
